Beavers Fall Before Jasper Attack, 65-0

10,000 Watch Manhattan Backs Run Wild at Ebbets Field

By Artie Hauer

A hopelessly outclassed City College football team went down to a smashing defeat at the hands of a powerful Manhattan College team before two thousand stunned spectators at Ebbets Field last Saturday. It was the greatest victory ever received by a Friedman-coached Beaver eleven.

Fighting desperately all the way, the heavily outweighed Beaver line was ripped to shreds time and again by the huge, hardcharging Jasper forward wall. Attempting to utilize some of their best plays, in which Friedman coached them all last week, the Beaver backs never got started. The Manhattan linemen were charging through with the ball all day, and it was impossible for both Andrews and Schlender to get off any well-timed passes with any degree of accuracy. As a result, the Beaver backs complete no more than five passes out of fifteen attempts for a total gain of 9.5 yards.

Pasee Fall

Coach Friedman knew beforehand that it would be practically impossible to gain through the Jasper line, against which three teams in Holy Cross and Louisiana State could make no appreciable headway. On the other hand, the Meanmen had shown themselves to be weak on pass defense all season. Thus, the Beavers' only hope for victory was through the air. When their passing attack was smeared by the unstoppable Jasper forward wall, all their

Correspondence

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to a recent article in the New York Times, "The Literary World in Crisis," which discusses the decline of literature and the rise of popular culture. The article suggests that literature is dying and that we should give up on reading it. I disagree entirely with this viewpoint.

Literature is not just a form of entertainment; it is a reflection of our world and our experiences. It helps us to understand ourselves and each other. It teaches us about history, philosophy, and morality. It is a way of preserving our culture and passing it on to future generations.

I urge everyone to continue to read and support literature. Libraries and bookstores need our support to continue to provide us with access to books and other literary materials. Let's not give up on reading and let's not let literature disappear.

Sincerely,
