THE NEW UNION

An American Student Union has been forged. Meeting in Columbus, Ohio, during Christmas week, militant student delegates from other colleges held the view that the American Student Union (A.S.U.) has been foremost in presenting the all-embracing character of the American Student Union, as a non-partisan organization that would encompass within its folds thousands of college students.

By side by side, liberals, radicals, R.O.T.C. delegates representing 76 colleges and 37 high schools, formulated a program, which embodied the principles of peace, economic security, and academic freedom.

To the Editor:

Whatever one's position in the social, political, or economic world may be, there are very few problems that reflect our common to all students alike. As a member and representative of the YWCA and YMCA, I feel that the program of the ASU is a bulwark against those interests which would regiment American students of diverse political opinion, four hundred and twenty-seven delegates converged in Columbus, Ohio, on December 27, 28 and 29, and voted to form the American Student Union, a non-partisan organization that would encompass within its folds thousands of college students.

I

By President F. P. Coates

The American Student Union, founded in 1934, is an organization of workers into legitimate trade unions. Those economic objectives for which the Union will set out to fight include

- Student relief
- Employment
- Security
- Social justice
- Trade unionism

These objectives are essential for the development of the whole educational system. It will exert every effort to revitalize the curriculum, to provide content and social purpose for education; it will encourage and support progressive social and political action; freedom we hold to be vital to genuine education. These, we declare, to be imperative to civilization's security and peace.

The Student and Peace

Throughout the world our generation is marching to war... Although the American campus is pervaded by a deep desire for peace, marching units of the R.O.T.C. are a solemn warning of the student that his government means business, and has the arena's war preparations.

The same trend is expressed in the increased use of libraries and laboratory equipment in war time, the United States is spending more money on war preparations than on the arts at any other period in its peace-time history. This nation-wide movement, the resistance of American universities to the pressures of the government, is a declaration of our determination to prevent our government from going to war. The student is the only one who can prevent the government from going to war. The student's power is the only power that can stop the government from going to war.

The American Student Union opposes the government's program in education, for it is a program of war preparation, it is in alliance with the policies of the government, it is working against the student, it is working against our future. The government's program is a program of war preparation, it is working against the student, it is working against our future.

The government's program is a program of war preparation, it is working against the student, it is working against our future. The government's program is a program of war preparation, it is working against the student, it is working against our future.

The government's program is a program of war preparation, it is working against the student, it is working against our future. The government's program is a program of war preparation, it is working against the student, it is working against our future.

The government's program is a program of war preparation, it is working against the student, it is working against our future. The government's program is a program of war preparation, it is working against the student, it is working against our future.
