Valentine Reply to Mayers Refuses "Riot" Statement

Denying that he had used the term "riot," Police Commissioner Valentine sai" that the trouble which had been caused in the neighborhood of the City College by the explosion of some demonstration of the City College students. The report, which was a part of the early edition of the World Telegram, and then retracted, was denied officially by Commissioner Valentine in a press interview October 12.

Mr. Valentine said that what he had stated was that there were some students who were acting in a manner which might be described as a demonstration or an expression of some dissatisfaction with the conditions under which they were living. He denied that there had been any disturbance or riot.

ASU Sponsors Opening Faculty-Student Luncheon

The first of a series of faculty-student luncheons, sponsored by the American Student Union for the purpose of continuing the Faculty Associates organization, was held last week in the new faculty luncheon room. The luncheon included the announcement of the adoption of the American Student Union program by the American Student Union.

At the first luncheon, Dean Martin and 15 faculty members met to discuss the role of the ASU in the college community. The luncheon was attended by faculty members from the Science, Arts, and Business departments.

The luncheon was well attended, and many faculty members expressed interest in continuing the luncheon series in the future.

Boas Likens History to Billiard Rack

"History is like the breaking up of a rack of billiard balls in which every ball acts on another one," Dr. George M. Boas, Tuesday, during his speech in 416 on the "Problems of History." This was the first of a series of lectures recently instituted by the University. In discussing the causality of the City College community and the possibility of its elimination, Dr. Boas, head of the Philosophy Department at New York University, explained that two such systems are impossible in the interpretation of history.

One school of thought illustrated by the rack of billiard balls he stated, holds that happenings in one country exert influence upon events taking place in all parts of the world. Opposed to this school is the group which feels that history is a series of events, each one in full tide in one country, and the history of the world is fixed upon that on which it is based.

Acting President Martin presided at the lectures, which were attended by Professor Ralph Barton Perry of the History Department. Dr. Boas will continue to lecture on history at the University during the fall semester.

Renam Arm; No Tenure

A one year terminating appointment as tutor in American History was granted to John S. Arm at a Board of Higher Education meeting Monday night.

The appointment, effective from October 17, 1939, is for a period of one year. Mr. Arm was dismissed by the BHE last term, despite the fact that he was recommended for reappointment by the Board's Administrative Committee, the Faculty Council, and the Department.

The reappointment for a fourth year would have granted him automatic tenure. The Two Committee, of which one of the members of the Twenty-Third Street Association, and the冉 Committee, has recommended a term of three years for Mr. Arm's reappointment at the University, in procedure in reappointing instructors.
