ASU Retracts Misstatement In Letter

The American Student Union last week publicly retracted a statement that appeared in its leaflet distributed Wednesday, November 8, Acting Dean Mayers called the statement to the attention of the student body.

Captained, "1917—1939—More Great Events—Only One" the two page handbill stated in the first paragraph, "Student opinion as expressed in student organizations was suppressed. Teachers were censored, and students were expelled wholesale.

It referred to the City College during the World War.

Contesting the truth of this statement, Professor Mayers requested the maker of the leaflet, Charles Gershenson, vice-president of the ASU, to retract the statement. He stated his plans for changing the college in a letter to this on November 9, Gershen son agreed he would do this.

ASU should not have publicized the statement. It was therefore agreed between them that the question of "Great Events—Only One" the statement was so inaccurate as to call for a correction. The statement was to be retracted by the students in six classes, to be presented to the faculty. That day, each class sent a letter to the ASU stating, "We retract the statement and do not agree with it."

ASU accepts the letter to the class president. Professor Mayers writes, "Desiring to clarify the matter, the statement shall be published in the Daily.

J.G. LeVan Discusses Job Factors In Series of Employment Talks

"Basic Factors in Applying for a Job," an address by J. G. LeVan, will open a series of employment conferences sponsored by the newly organized student union, temporarily named the CCNY Good Will Society.

Mr. Le Van, director of the College Commercial Employment Bureau, has spoken on this topic. His talk incorporates information from 5000 special interviews, which is now being used by the New York Exchange and the New York State Employment Service.

The purpose of the new organization is to aid students in securing employment. At present, the three methods of securing employment are team coaching, job placement by management as lecturers, and the reputation of the college, and the employment office bulletin board.

By Irving Weidler and Iris Zilpert

A.M. Dr. Mead, in an interview on department heads of the account of the "cheap labor" policy proposed by the university, said that the "cheap labor" policy was in the offing. Dr. Mead stated that the "cheap labor" policy, as proposed by the "cheap labor" policy, is not the "cheap labor" policy of the university. Dr. Mead declared that in his opinion, City College has never had a "cheap labor" policy or a "cheap labor" policy. He added that training in such fundamental fields as the languages, social sciences, and humanities are more important than the business subjects and not abstractly.

The majority of the faculty advocates a four year college education. The purpose of the new organization is to aid students in securing employment. At present, the three methods of securing employment are team coaching, job placement by management as lecturers, and the reputation of the college, and the employment office bulletin board.

The show must go on! How about the rehearsals? It's that time of year when the cast of students is beginning to rehearse for their upcoming performance. The director, Mr. Johnson, has been working hard to prepare the cast for their upcoming performance.

Mead Denies "Cheap Labor"

The debate over the use of "cheap labor" continues as Mr. Mead, the president of the college, denies the use of such labor. He states that the college is committed to providing a quality education to its students and that the use of "cheap labor" is not part of its mission.

If any changes or damage occur from such an observation, may I request that you change them? The college is interested in expanding its buildings and facilities, but it must be done in a way that does not negatively impact the campus community.

We still protest most vigorously if an offense is in harmony with the general plan at any time, particularly in the student voice for the right to print and distribute leaflets. Leaflets "often" should be eliminated by any mechanism of such for any cause, including the evil and not by stifling the democratic procedure in a student society, is the right of any and all students and organizations must be vigilantly supported and protected.

The Reverend T. A. Swett, Woliver. -Zippert preparations, will go to press on the windows. "Yeah, this is the college library." Jesse Fishkin and others were fortunate to me that the students saved himself and the ASTJ a lot of embarrassment by making his original retraction in all students and organizations must be vigilant and watchful for any and all students and organizations must be vigilantly supported and protected.
