A torrent of discussion and criticism followed the article as a result of Stanley Frank’s article on City College’s last week’s Thursday Street改进 the opportunity for an evaluation of CCNY. An article that reaches well over twelve million people certainly merits a good bit of study by everyone interested in a similar action.

In the initial stages of this action, we should realize that we are very close to the school that is virtually impossible for us to judge comment with an open mind. That is what happened. The article states that “...the recent selection of a new campus and the fact that our students live at home create serious (but surmountable) barriers to school-wide...”

The author graduated from this college in 1928. It is evident that his wisdom gathered at that time, in the period of social and economic stress throughout the nation, as well as armistice within the school itself, is past his portrait of the college. Little recognition was given to the new force that represented by the more mature and better-rounded student body.

In reviewing the shortcomings of Mr. Frank’s reportage, we are reminded of a significant part of his analysis. He tried to be objective, and to a high degree, he succeeded. He caught some of the underlying difficulties and problems of a campus and the fact that our students live at home create serious (but surmountable) barriers to school-wide

Centennial Fund Slogan Prize Captured By Edward Brodsky

Eddie Brodsky, whose slogan took first place in The Post-sponsored Centennial Slogan Contest, returned his seven dollar prize to the Centennial Fund. Revealing that he “didn’t need the money,” Brodsky said: “With the fund drive just under way, I couldn’t very well accept a credit on its cash book.”

Hoopering Head Speaks At SAM

Mr. C. L. Hooper, president of Hoopering, Inc., was awarded a membership in the Society for the Advancement of Management on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Hooper will speak on the topic “Hoopering and the Telephone from radio programs.” The Hoopering survey organization provides advertisers with statistical information concerning the popularity of radio programs, types of audiences contacted, and other pertinent information. A recording of an actual telephone survey will be played.

Available positions for full-time employees will be announced at the SAM meeting.

Senior Day regulations, seniors will be permitted to take over their dormitories on the last day of their residency for the benefit of their instructor. This will present no problem for the residence halls like many women, will never say “yes.”

Seniors will be turned down low, and music will fill the air at the penguin who will be the Senior Week on Friday night at 8:30 in Lounge C. Senior Week is strictly calculated to the stroke of midnight. Entertainment and refreshments will be served.

The seniors’ week will be held to attract around the halls with heads held high and chests expanded despite the nationally-circulated rumors that Cityites are not the “rah rah” type.

Nominations Due for AVC Posts

Nominations for six City Downtown AVC executive posts at the Annual National Convention will be held this Thursday. All Delegates representing all sections of the country will convene at Minneapolis the last part of May.

The six AVC ambassadors, whose service on the AVC will be annually elected as AVC policy, will have all their expenses covered by the College's chapter. To insure participation in the election of a maximum number of students, all nominations must be filed before May 22 AVC meeting.

Mike Lennex, in a directive to AVC members, states that “The purpose of the Minnesota Convention is to time for us to stop and religiously reconsider the different roads we have traveled, to establish policy on the many parameters these roads have traveled, and to determine progressive and militant direction for this next phase of the movement.”

Proud of its record of constructive and progressive action on all legislation affecting the American people, the club hopes to play an important role in formulating national AVC policy.
