Goldminers Weeping

Big Event of Year Threatened

For the 600 members of '49, there will be little joy today. As they sit in the lounges, in the classrooms, in the restrooms reading this article they know that time is slowly but surely running out. For them there is only the certain knowledge of impending disaster, of imminent doom. The hair which holds the Dallas Goldminers is going away.

Arnold Day, 1947

Thirty years ago next Thursday the Allies had opened the area which they had been in for over a year. The world had been waiting for this day for some time. In fact, it was the day on which the Allies had declared war on Germany and Japan.

As quickly as possible they returned to their respective positions on the front lines, which made it possible for them to do so.

This year, the Allies have been fighting for democracy. They fought for the freedom of the people of the world and for the right to be free. The Allied forces are still fighting today, and the Allies are still winning.

The war was fought for democracy and the Allied forces are still fighting for democracy. The Allied forces are still winning.

In the end, the Allies won the war. The Allies were victorious. The war was won by the Allied forces. The Allied forces were victorious.

The war was won by the Allied forces. The Allies were victorious. The war was won by the Allied forces. The Allies were victorious.
Noted Columnist to Speak On Balfour Day Program

As one of its outstanding programs of the semester, the Hillside Foundation will present an IFBA "Balfour Day" program at the formal luncheon program at 12:00 on November 10. This speaker will have the first issue of the program, which will be read in each class. The ITA of the Social, will make a presentation of this speaker's work and a love for music. The only student tutor will speak on the "Interpretation of UN Proceedings." The program will be opened by Dr. Frank, secretary of the English department, and is the first of the series of luncheons to he held in this class. The luncheon has been found to be very beneficial toward projects, the staff reports.

It is the hope and desire of the officers of the Inter-Collegiate Club that this program will bring our school together the rest of the school in the country.
