The longed-for week of Christmas vacation, which commences tomorrow, is most important because the students may have two solid weeks for relaxation and study. It is a good idea to consider the possibilities of the future while we enjoy our present. The future is built upon the foundations of the present, and it is important to spend this time in the best way possible.

1. Study:
   - Review the material covered in class.
   - Work on any assignments or projects that are due.
   - Read books or articles related to your studies.

2. Rest:
   - Get sufficient sleep.
   - Engage in physical activity, such as walking or exercise.
   - Engage in hobbies or activities you enjoy.

3. Socialize:
   - Spend time with family and friends.
   - Attend holiday events or parties.
   - Participate in community activities.

Remember, the end of the year exams are only a few weeks away, and it is important to prepare for them. The time spent during the Christmas vacation will be crucial in your academic success.

Beatrice MacBride Proves That Life Begins at 40 for City's 'Mom'

By Paul Miller

After 40, according to the ad-old wisdom, a woman has nothing to look forward to but her daily shot of Vitamin B1. Her best bet is to lounge quietly in a corner or else devote herself to charitable work. As a living and happy refutation of this, Beatrice MacBride, a retired New York teacher, is cited here as a living proof that great things can be done at any age.

The story of how Mrs. MacBride, 71 in 1958, took a course

The Day Before Christmas

By Richard Alpert

Professor Matthews looked at his wrist-watch. Still ten minutes to go before the Five O'clock Bell, and the Room was shuttered. The room was an elegant one, spacious, with a sitting room off one end and a long desk running along the center of the room. On the big wall at the front, between the windows, was a large clock, the hands of which were visible from the far end of the room. The room was filled with students, eating, talking, laughing, reading, and preparing for the big last lecture of the year.

Professor Matthews smiled and walked to the window, repeating aloud the short prayer he had prepared:

"Goodnight, Mom."
Establish New Sports
Publicity Department
by Henry Kahan
In the past, when the City College football team was a major sport, writers would surely have covered the team in the City College yearbook. Now, in the post-war years, with the team struggling to maintain its former glory, the publicity department has taken over the task of promoting the team's activities and achievements. The department has been active in organizing events and games, and in coordinating with local newspapers to ensure that the team's successes are properly reported.

Cinderellmen Training
For Indoor Season

With the new indoor season just around the corner, the City College basketball team is ramping up its training regimen. The team, under the guidance of Coach Marguerite Schacter, is working hard to improve its skills and fitness levels. The practice sessions are intense, with the players pushing themselves to reach the peak of their abilities.

Max's Knishes
Triumphs, 40-38

In a hard-fought battle, Max's Knishes emerged victorious with a score of 40-38. The game was packed with action and spectators were thrilled by the high-quality performance of both teams. Max's Knishes showed their mettle in this match, proving themselves to be a formidable force.

Second Half
CCNY Surge Falls Short

Texas capitalized on their strong second half performance to secure a comfortable victory over CCNY. The team's focus and determination were evident as they took charge of the game and kept the score in their favor. Their success is a testament to their disciplined approach and hard work.

The Beaver Sportlight
An Analysis Of a Sports Complex

By Herb Thern
It is not difficult to analyze the mind and feeling of the City College team. The team is young, full of enthusiasm, and eager to please. However, they are not yet financially sound. The team has been hit by some defeats, but they have not given up. Instead, they have redoubled their efforts and worked hard to improve their skills.
