'Beat NYU Rally In PET; SC Asks Return of Players

By Ira Bernstein

Student Council recommended the reinstatement of Eldon Hazard, Assistant Sales Manager at CBS, to the Metropolitan News-Ticker Association, the mimeographed newspaper help publicize the meetings and activities. This request was passed unanimously.

Council voted to set up its own minicomputer to help with the budgetary problems, and the TICKER governing group was elected. The Elections Committee announced that three candidates were running for the upper senior presidency. Ralph Helmer was elected to the position of Treasurer. The Ticker next week will be published today outside the Department of Student Life, 511.

Theater Tix

Tickets for the Theatre's spring production, "Detective Story," will be on sale at the Student Union starting March 16 and 17, for $10 and $12 for balcony, mezzanine, and orchestra respectively. They are being sold on a first come, first served basis.

Songsters Now Receive Credit

Students who are in the Grammar Chorus will receive credit for each semester on the chorus. The chorus is organized last semester by Professor Walter Brandt, director.

Thursday is the last day when students may join. Students may still receive credit for this semester if they register by Thursday.

The course was reorganized last semester by Professor Walter Brandt, director of the Chorus. Members now elect their own officers and regular attendance is taken.

The group meets on Thursday between 12:30 and 2 in 4S. Students do not have to be good singers in order to join. Alums and seniors are particularly needed.

Face the War" is Theme of Activities Fair; Females, Club Booths to Vie for Awards

"Face the War" will be the theme of the semi-annual Activities Fair to be held Thursday and Friday from 10-3 in Lounges A, B and C. The Fair is a meaing for students to get acquainted with the various organizations on campus and to learn about their activities. The theme is based on the idea that students should make the most of their senior year by joining as many activities as possible.

Featured at the Fair will be the "Queen of the Fair" contest and the presentation of a trophy for the best booth. Any prospective "Queen" may have her photograph taken at the Camera Club booth. Henry Lowenthal, Mel Linn and Elaine Lesser will judge the best booths.

Besides having their picture appearing in the metropolitan newspaper, the Queen will receive an 8 by 10 framed portrait and a personal gift. She will be selected from five finalists on the Thursday following the Fair in Lounge C. The selection will be based on poise, charm and intelligence as well as on beauty.

A scroll will be awarded to the club having the most attractive booth, and the Retailing Society, which was last semester's winner.

The freshmen will be brought to the Fair from Fresh Chapels on Friday in order to introduce them to some of the student organizations.

In commenting on the seventh Activities Fair, Bill Schacht, its chairman, said, "It offers a fine opportunity to the students to compete in 30 of the organizations existing in the School. The full student can enrich their lives at the College by joining the proper student groups."

"Not only do the students have an opportunity to compete in 30 of the organizations existing in the School. The full student can enrich their lives at the College by joining the proper student groups." So said Steve Sehrt, chairman of Inter-Club Board, which is sponsoring the Fair.

City students who rocked the walls of the Garden with Lafayette game last week will have a go at the rafters of the annual "Beat NYU" rally will take place.

As a prelude to the traditional NYU game, slated for Tuesday night at the Garden, this year's edition of the rally takes on added significance in light of the recent scandal, and it will be of prime importance for every Louver rouser to get down there and let the boys know we're behind them in this, the most important game of the City schedule.

Among the notables who will be present at Thursday's rally will be Louis Esser, noted sports writer for the New York Times, one of the top sportscasters in the country, who currently handles the basketball television broadcasts from the Garden, and has recently been signed to a contract to do football games of the Boston Red Sox.

Dean Thomas L. Norton, of course, will pitch in with another of his inspiring talks, and naturally Nat Holman and the rest of the battling Beavers will be on hand.

Also on the program from the entertainment point of view will be Sam Patrelle, the erstwhile fill-in for Jerry Lewis who left Hollywood in his recent appearance at the Garden.

As usual, Joe Boardman is expected to provide the last touch of the rally by leading the students in many of the favorite songs.

All students are strongly urged to attend. The tremendous turnout at last year's rally encouraged the students to have a chance to make a wise choice, and make clear to itself and all others what the military and the ideological conflict now is being waged against.

The resolution stated that the military and the ideological conflict now is being waged against the military and the ideological conflict. They are being sold on a first come, first served basis.

Schedule Talks On Advertising

"Research, A Sure Basis for Measuring Future Trends," will be the topic of a lecture by Raymond E. Ruffin, Account Research Director of the Kenyon Research Company. The talk is sponsored by the Advertising Division and Alpha Delta Psi, and is one of a series of symposium discussions, "Advertising Tomorrow's Advertising Can Pay Off," Thursday in 420.

NSA Emphasizes Importance Of Higher Education In Crisis

The National Executive Committee of the National Student Association, in a recent resolution, stressed the importance of maintaining higher education in the present crisis.

The group, however, rejected the principle of "widening the opportunities of college and university students. Delegates from twenty-one regions throughout the country met in Wisconsin to discuss the draft and other student problems.

The resolution stated that the conflict now is being waged on three fronts - the technological, the military and the ideological.

Our present military weakness must be corrected, not only in a quantitative sense, but through the superior quality of our training. On the ideological front we must mobilize our intellectual and spiritual resources to disseminate truth and make meaningful and compelling our heritage of freedom.

Also emphasizing other needs - the resolution continued. "As our generation can grasp afresh and make clear to itself and all the world where the creative virtues are as well as the obligations of freedom under law, military victory would prove a hollow triumph."
For Reinstatement.

Dr. George E. Hart of the History Department, who had been temporarily suspended, has been reinstated. This decision was made after a full investigation by the university's disciplinary board.

Letters to the Editor.

Dear Editor,

I was very disappointed to read the article in the student newspaper about the recent incident involving the president of the student council. As a member of the community, I believe it is important to address this issue.

The article failed to acknowledge the significant role that the student council plays in the governance of the university. It is a shame that the president, who is responsible for leading this organization, has been removed from his position.

I urge the university administration to take appropriate action to ensure that this does not happen again. The student council must be held accountable for its actions.

Sincerely,

Draft Brings Worries To All Kinds of Females.

In reference to the recent draft proposal, we believe it is critical to address the potential impact on all kinds of females. The current proposal fails to consider the diverse experiences and perspectives of women.

While many women are fervently opposed to the draft, others may feel it is a necessary measure for security. However, we believe that the proposals should be amended to ensure that they are inclusive and equitable for all genders.

We encourage the university administration to review the proposals and make necessary adjustments to ensure that they meet the needs of all students.

Sincerely,

Downtown Finds Cabby Hole to New Darkroom Former Mens Room.

While the downtown area has undergone significant changes in recent years, one longstanding fixture remains. The former mens room has been transformed into a darkroom for students to use.

This new darkroom is a welcome addition to the campus, providing students with a dedicated space to develop their photography projects. We hope the university administration continues to invest in facilities that meet the needs of students.

Sincerely,

City to Face Jaspers In Annual Cage Feud

By Marvin Hochreiter and Ralph Rehm

Two schools scandalized by basketball in recent years will meet Thursday night at Madison Square Garden in the mythical Subway Conference when City College and Manhattan renew their annual rivalry at 8 p.m. The City College team will be on the other end this time. Both schools have had a lot of trouble in the series in the past, but the game this year will be played in a more relaxed atmosphere as both teams try to get their seasons on a steady roll.

The Jaspers are coming off a loss to Sewanee and have not played well of late. Their record is 4-3, while City College is 6-2. The Beavers have been playing well and have won their last two games. They are coming off a loss to the Leopards of McCahn and hope to do better in the Subway Conference.

The game will be played in the Garden and will feature some of the top talent in the city. The Jaspers have several key players, including guard Tom Wood and forward Floyd Layne. City College has a strong lineup as well, with guard Bob Cohen and center Junius Kellogg leading the way.

The game promises to be a close one, with both teams fighting for the top spot in the Subway Conference. The winner will take the lead and will be in a good position to proceed in the playoffs. The loser will have to work hard to get back on track.

The Garden will be filled with fans cheering on their favorite team. The atmosphere will be electric as both teams try to get the upper hand. This should be a great game to watch, and both teams will be giving their all to come out on top.
