Students Get Chance
To Rate Instructors

Students will be given the opportunity to evaluate their instructors. Questionnaires and instructors' ratings will be sent out to students, who will rate the course, the text, and the outside readings.

In the second section, the student will give an appraisal of the instructor's techniques. This part will contain questions such as: "The teacher's organization of the course," "The instructor's attitude toward the subject," and "The teacher's system of evaluation, with other questions of a similar nature."

Questions: Students

Their overall impression of the course will be revealed by the questionnaire. Questions concerning the student's background and degree objective will be contained in the last section. This is necessary because it was found that students have different things from an instructor.

Accomplishing the questionnaire with his students' opinions and the course is the real purpose behind the questionnaire. The questionnaire, as a voluntary affair, is to be given a free hand in the administration of the questionnaire and the evaluation of its results.

Cafeteria Price Increase
Due to Rising Expenses

"The cost of living is the topic of the "Cafeteria has long attempted to maintain its prices in the face of accelerating costs, it is the rising inflation that, according to some of the students, has left the student worse off." The question is, of course, their minds, at the last moment, revealed George Fauberbach, director of the cafeteria.

As of yesterday, prices increased from $0.10 to $0.20. Here are the items that have been increased:

- Coffee has gone up from 5 to 75 cents. Captain and other coffee, even at 10 cents for certain foods have been increased a nickel.
- The decision to raise these prices was arrived at by a Student Council-Faculty Committee, after the inflation recently forced the committee to hold prices effective just before the prices.
- However, when the GSP froze prices during the inter-session break, it was decided to postpone the action, even though the prices have gone up.

Mr. Fauberbach disclosed that the committee was faced with a difficult decision, at a meeting held last December, to raise prices effective just before the prices.

In addition, the board will also be made available by the students who make up the student body and the added revenue will still fall short of covering increased costs.
