

FOS Friendship Week In Full Swing for ’60

By Beverly Diamond and Sheldon Fredericks

Monday marked the beginning of Friendship Week for the Class of 1960. The program conducted by the Freshman Orientation Society, will continue until March 2.

All during the two-week period the freshman must wear their class pins while in school and at all school functions with the rules to be given out by FOS in the Freshman Assembly.

A special court has been set up by FOS in order to take care of any infractions of the rules. This term the Freshman council will have two advisers, Janet Rothenberg and Seymour Berger, who will guide the representatives and help out at their meetings.

The purpose of Friendship Week is to acquaint the incoming freshman with our extracurricular program and to encourage the making of lasting friendships. Each freshman must attend at least one club meeting and have the presiding officer sign a special form which each neophyte has received. He or she must take this slip and deposit it in a ballot box in 921. These slips must be in by March 2, the last day of Friendship Week.

"FOS is contemplating going back to hazing," states Vice-President Doreen Spiegel. A committee meeting will be held today in 921 at 1. The theme for the discussion will be, "Hazing as Opposed to Friendship Week." The idea of hazing was abandoned last year because it was felt that FOS wasn't accomplishing its purpose.

There was a marked decrease in participation and completeathy toward the whole program. "We have always felt," continued Miss Spiegel, "that we must constantly experiment in order to find dynamic policies for an aroused student interest among the freshmen and which can promote good feelings between them and the upperclassmen."
The chess team has a 2-0 record, all victories being against other University teams.

Council

In addition, a student from each council was selected to represent the respective council in the student body council. The representatives were as follows:

- Delta Sigma Pi: Edward White
- Alpha Phi Omega: Robert Johnson
- Beta Alpha Pi: Margaret Brown
- Lambda Chi Alpha: William Adams

TICKER

The next meeting is today, at 12 in 404. The council will be held in the Student Center.

Rings

Orders for the Class of 1960's rings were received last week. The rings were received from the goldsmiths in New York City. The rings are of 14 karat gold and weigh 1.5 ounces. The cost of each ring is $8.50. The rings will be distributed to the students in the next week.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I believe that the editors of the TICER should make an effort to improve their paper. Too often, their articles are mundane and uninteresting. I would like to suggest a few ideas for improvement.

First, the paper should feature more features and columns, such as an opinion column, a culture section, and a sports section. This would give readers a more varied and engaging reading experience.

Second, the paper should pay more attention to local news and events. Currently, the focus is too much on national and international news, which is often dull and irrelevant to local readers.

Finally, the paper should consider improving its design and layout. The current format is too cluttered and difficult to read. A cleaner, more modern design would be greatly appreciated.

I hope that the editors will consider my suggestions and make changes to improve the paper in the future.

Sincerely,
[Name]

Kwaertler's Korner

By Melvin Zamsa

In the last few minutes of this brief excerpt, the character of Melvin Zamsa is introduced. Melvin is a student at the university and possesses a unique perspective on various issues. He appears to be a thoughtful and analytical individual who is not afraid to express his opinions.

Reapportionment

The small size of this semester's engagement, in which students are required to participate in a series of elections, is an issue that has been brought to my attention. It seems hypocritical, since the cafe­ sentation of vested interests is dangerous to all students. After consultation with Mr. McCullough, cafeteria dietition, with the son, it was decided that the cafeteria should be opened to all students.

The Coin Flip

The 97 student council has set up a method of voting that is both fair and efficient. In our current system, we would have to wait until the last minute to make a decision. But with this new system, we can make a decision in a matter of minutes.

The Inside Story

The second paragraph of this brief excerpt introduces the character of Jerome Greenberg. Jerome is a student at the university and has a keen interest in literature. He appears to be a thoughtful and analytical individual who is not afraid to express his opinions.

Crisis: The Potential for a New Revolution

In the last few minutes of this brief excerpt, the character of Richard Ellis is introduced. Richard is a student at the university and possesses a unique perspective on various issues. He appears to be a thoughtful and analytical individual who is not afraid to express his opinions.

To the Editor

The current system of voting is unfair and inefficient. It is time for a change.

Sincerely,

Brand, Rubenstein Ask To Reapportion Council

Student Council Representatives Rubenstein and Brand have proposed an amendment to the reapportionment bill which would completely alter the present system of representation. Instead of the present three-by-four class system, the Brand-Rubenstein amendment would shift both Council representation, as follows:

- Each year's upper class—upper freshmen through lower junior, would receive one additional seat for every 50 registered at the time.
- Each year's lower class, with 86 or more students, would receive one seat for every 50 students. In addition, those classes which would be granted one extra seat for every 50 registered students in the class, and one seat for a total of 50% or more over that.

The increasing—or lower freshman class, would receive one representative regardless of class population, and would get one seat for every 50 registered students in the class.

Brand and Rubenstein have

Hoopers Go for Second Straight Win Over Queens

"If we don't beat them, I'll be very disappointed," said Nat Holman, talking about the upcoming game with Queens College, Friday night, in Wingate Hall. "The boys have been playing wonderful basketball of late," continued Holman, "and I think this is the second time as the last." Holman was, of course, referring to the Beavers' first victory of the season in which they defeated Queens, 73-67.

The Queens are also optimistic about their chances for a victory against City. Coach Robert Salomon's charges easily defeated Pratt Institute Tuesday, by a 92-66 score, tying their third fifth win of the season against 14 losses.

"Our record doesn't really point out the team's constant improvement," stated Ed Conforti, student manager of the Queens squad, attempting to rationalize his team's poor record. "We had a lot of tough breaks throughout the season and we've improved, he added, to the Queens first game. Right now, we feel that the team is just a little bit further from being a real good team."

Captain Lou Berson, who by the way, stated Morty Glaser, Morty Glaser and Marty Stolzenberg.

Marv Rose Leads Downtown Basketeers to a 5-4 Record

If Coach George Wolfe had a team consisting of "Four Roses and a Chaser," he'd be a very happy man. Now that the New York City High School basketball team has only one Rose in the person of a 6-3, 235 pound junior named Marv Rose, who, by the way, has really been blossoming for the Downtown varsity this season.

Rose, who has been averaging a few percentage points less than 20 for the season, is playing his first year on the School's varsity. His most productive game of the season was against the Bronx Union YMCA when he threw in a total of 36 points.

Other standouts on the team which is 6-7 on the season and 3-2 in the City League include Captain Mike Gomahay and Marty Stolzenberg. Gomahay, who had stood 12 points and 14 boards from last year's squad, had been averaging 12 points a game and 14 rebounds.

Marv Rose has been the team's playmaker and backcourt man. Stolzenberg, a first man, has averaged 16 points and has been more than efficient under the boards.

The Downtown varsity's next encounter will take place today at the Tech gym. Uptown, against the Uptown Evening Session varsity. The game is slated to start at 7:30.

against the Beavers in their previous encounter, has been leading his team with an 18-point average, scoring a high of 31 points against Pratt, the first game of the season. Rose and Stolzenberg were the two high scorers in the Queens-City game scoring 16 and 15 points respectively.

Sid Levy, of City, will have to go a long way to reproduce his scoring figures against the Queens ninth. In the two teams' earlier meeting, he scored nine field goals and eight free throws for 26 points while dominating the boards for the Beavers.

George Jensen also had a hot night for the Lancer scoring 22 points against Upsala, only to find out that the team would suffer when he decided not to return for the season. Jensen manager of the Queens-City game scoring 16 and 15 points respectively.

Marty Glaser, Bob Rothman to lead the way for City in the epee events.

The Beavers, who carry a 4-3 seasonal record, cross swords with the Manhattan Institute Saturday at Cambridge.

Basketball Bits

Richie Garber, recently expelled from the basketball varsity because of his academic ineligibility, has only himself to blame for the forfeited victory against Upsala.

 Anyone who is on probation knows about it, especially here at City College where students are some 30 to 40 percent of the population.

I wonder whether he considered the team's chances for winning, then the team would be better off without him, regardless of his academic eligibility.

I wonder how George Jensen feels about scoring 22 points against Upsala, only to find out that he really didn't score at all in the game.

According to Gene Roswell, the New York Post's sports writer, in Sunday's column, "Frank Neely, former all-scholastic at Stuyvesant, and Demmy Mills, the new Washington center Beaver, are the two players who have been the most exciting this season. Neely dropped out of Muhlenberg two weeks ago, and Mills has had a sad experience recently at West Virginia, where what he thought was a scholarship proved non-existent in the beginning."

Sounds like pleasant news. It will be interesting to watch whether these boys will accept a pay-off for their scholarship, which will undoubtedly be...
