At least 17 lockers have been broken into on the Baruch campus, according to a report by the Student Government Association (FGSA) chairman, Professor Robert K. Gellman. The report, which was passed in a referendum at the next School Senate meeting, states that there was some feeling among students that the student body as a whole was more on the retailing side of the business world than the intellectual side. There is feeling that student attire is recognized solely as such and does not reflect adversely on the intellectual and professional capabilities of the student.

It was felt that "since our school is located in a business area which is one of heavy street traffic, our students are more on parade than they would be in a usual locker room."

The move to put the amendment before the student body was made by the amendment's author, Richard Ellis '55, and Inter-Club Board Chairman Stu Rosenthal '56. It was passed 11-10-4. Rosenthal later changed his mind and moved for reconsideration of the question. This was voted down 11-15-1.

The Ellis Amendment seeks to disenfranchise the ICB chairman on student activities in the event of a change in his position. The amendment would also require the Student Council to face the issue and to vote on the change in position. This was unanimously adopted by the student body.

Miller Pessimistic As Season Nears

By Martin Galbraith

With the opening of the baseball season only four weeks away, hardly could anyone have predicted a few days ago that Miller would be so pessimistic about his team's chances for a successful campaign.

"Only three of my starters from last year's team are returning this season," declared Miller in a practice session. "We're not a bad team, but I don't expect us to make much of a splash."
Walt ‘til next year’ goes the familiar cry, and that is just what the Beavers will have to do this year. Horizontal in their net-shooting until it is on a par with St. John’s because the Redmen unfurled some pretty nifty set-shooters Saturday night at Wingate Hall when they beat the Beavers, 77-69.

Walt Brady, of St. John’s, was the hero of the night for the winners. He hit seven of ten shots in the first half, mostly from the outside, and added up with a game-high total of 26 points. In one stretch, Brady and Hal Passell, who added 13 points, took turns popping sets to score nine points while City scored only two. This streak enabled the Redmen to hold on to an early lead and culminate a half-time margin of 40-30.

As the second half unfolded, George Jensen, who scored 21 points while plating his last game for the College, continued with Ralph Schefflin and Bob Silver to score sixteen points while St. John’s, scored 29. This kept the Beavers in the game at the 48-40 stage. Dick Barrett hit a jump shot and Brady, Bill Cowley and Mike Parenti converted on a couple of shots to make the score 67-48 within a minute and a half.

At this point, Joe Bernardo began driving for the Beavers and single-handedly scored eleven points to bring City to within ten points, 72-62, with 1:32 left to play in the game. Unfortunately, the Beavers missed four of their five shots in the last minute and a half, enabling the Redmen to hold on to the win.

A TWO-POINTER: Bob Silver (12) of City, converts on a rebound for two points in City’s, 77-69, loss to St. John’s, Saturday.

At the same time, Punkie Griffin, of the New York Academy, scored 20 points, 73-63, with 1:53 left to go, securing the win for the winners.

The game was played in a packed crowd and created quite the atmosphere. The Redmen were led by Bob Silver, who scored 20 points, and Walter About, who added 14 points. The Beavers were led by George Jensen, who scored 21 points, and Dick Barrett, who added 13 points.

Jensen was the most outstanding player for the Beavers, scoring a total of 26 points. However, the Redmen had a strong team effort, with four players scoring in double figures. This is a testament to the strength and depth of the Redmen team.

The Beavers will try to regroup and focus on their next game, hoping to bounce back from this loss. Meanwhile, the Redmen will look to maintain their momentum and continue their winning streak.
