City Nine Ends Season
By Losing Two to NYU

The fight for the coveted Metropolitan Conference baseball title is over. New York University, aided by the token opposition offered by the City College Nine, stoked hopes with a 10-2 record, while City finished off in a last place tie with a 3-9 slate.

The week-end games with the Violets saw the Beavers' season come to a close. Thursday, NYU, scoring at will, massacred the hapless Beavers, 16-1. The Violets came back Saturday and defeated a slightly rejuvenated City team, 12-4. Both games were played at Ohio Field, the Bronx.

The Beavers completed their second losing season in a row, recording an over-all mark of 4-12. Last season, the Beavers finished off in a last place tie with the Bronx.

The Saturday encounter against Hofstra was the last of the season for the Beavers. They have won three while losing five.

Losing Two to NYU

NYU actually saw the Beavers closer, even close. Thorsen winning 13-6. It was the eighth and final game of the season for the Beavers. They have won three while losing five.

Sports Fete

More than 300 of City College's varsity sportsmen, alumni and faculty took part in the 11th annual All-Sports Nite in the Grand Ballroom of the Finley Student Center, Thursday night.

Heading the list in the lineup of award winners was Sal Sorbera, the first four letter man in City College history. He was awarded a trophy for being the School's outstanding athlete.

Teachers Beat Pupils, 62-46

In a contest played before a standing-room-only crowd, in the balcony of the Hansen Hall gym, the Faculty basketball team scored a 62-46 victory over the students.

The win marks the sixth straight triumph for the teachers over the students.

Coach Miller

Coach Leon "Chief" Miller, who has openly expressed his disappointment in his team's showing so far this season, watched his charges score four goals in the second period and three in the third to clinch the win.

Leading the Beavers attempt Ronald Rehs and Sy Steigelgen, who scored three goals apiece. Merritt Stellin, Max H. Schmeling and Les Wiger each chipped in with two goals while Rollie Lafidis scored one.

The stickmen's final record almost complete a perfect turnaround in last season's statistics. Last year the lacrossemen turned in a losing season, while losing only two.

It is estimated that the loss of Ronald Riffer and Lenny Fages, two standouts on last year's varsity, hurt the team considerably. Only two first-stringers from last year's team returned to see action this season. They were George Jensen, a defenseman, and Les Wiger, a midfield.
