Student Proctoring Supported by Saxe

Dean Emanuel Saxe told Student Council Friday evening that a system of student proctors might be instituted at the Baruch School if it could be worked out with the various departments.

Dean Saxe touched on two other points in his talk: that proctor House should be evaluated for what it is, not for what it is supposed to be; and that replies received by him in answer to questions about conversation were unsatisfactory.

In reply to a letter sent to him by Student Council President Sheldon Brand about cheating, Dean Saxe said that the idea of having student proctors was a good one and should be worked out with the various departments. He added that one of several suggested by Brand.

Other ideas in the letter were: distribution of old finals, more stringent enforcement of present rules and the institution of an honor system.

Dean Saxe stated that if final distribution should be decided by the individual department, but could not see the advantage in having an old finalomination. He said that he was favorable to more stringent enforcement of present rules and an honor system, in his view, at the present time, if feasible.

Attempt to guide the Council in its discussion of Lamport House, the Dean stated that the entire plan was organized to strengthen group dynamics rather than individual living because individual living is taught at home. He noted, however, that inroads were being made into the field of individual thinking and activities at Lamport House.

Replies received by the Dean in reference to a questionnaire on proctor conversation attendance were, he said, indicative of the poor attendance. A small percentage of replies were received, and of those received, there were few new suggestions.

For this term, the planning for the conversation has been handed to a Student Council committee. The only administrative control over the group will be the power to veto any speaker selected. Saxe also made clear that the Insignium awards must be presented at this affair.

SC Votes to Increase Student Activities Fee

Student Council in an unprecedented move Friday evening passed a 50-cent raise in the student activity fee to bring the total fee paid at registration to $10.

The motion, proposed by Camille Viscconti '58 and Carole Groehler '60, was passed 14-2, after a move to place the issue on referendum, as had been done in all previous proposals to raise the activity fee, was defeated by the Council.

Tuxedos

Fittings for tuxedos for the Senior Prom will take place Thursday from 12-2 on the ninth floor. The rental price for the tuxedo will be $25. A shirt will be provided for an additional $1.

Tickets for the prom, priced at $21.50 for non-class card holders and $18.50 for those with class cards, are available at the ninth floor booth. Singers Charley Applewhite and Carol Burnett will provide music.

For this term, the planning for the convocation has been transferred to the Student Council committee. The only administrative control over the group will be the power to veto any speaker selected. Saxe also made clear that the Insignium awards must be presented at this affair.

Physics Department Offers Satellite Lecture Program

The first in a daily series of lectures on the Russian space satellite and its political and social implications was held yesterday at the Uptown Center.

The series, entitled "The Satellite: Scientific Achievement and Future Possibilities," will be held daily at 11:30 in Lounge C. The event was underwritten by the College's Physics Department.

Members of the Departments of Physics and Psychology will participate in the discussions.

The talks are sponsored by the College's Physics Department.

Two Faculty Members To Debate UN's Merits

A debate on the relative merits of the United Nations will take place Thursday at 12:30 in Lounge C. The event will commemorate the twelfth anniversary of the signing of the UN Charter in San Francisco in 1945.

Dr. Daniel P. Parker of the Department of History will debate against Dr. Arthur Waldhoun, English instructor. Dr. Parker will argue against the UN, while Dr. Waldhoun will take the "pro" position.

The debate is sponsored by Student Council's Speaker's Bureau.

Dr. Parker, an ordained Reform Rabbi, has been teaching at the Baruch School for 12 years. He has taught at the Baruch School for the past eight years. Dr. Parker received his bachelor's degree from Emory College in Georgia and his master's and doctorate degrees from the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Waldhoun, faculty advisor to Student Council, has been teaching at the College for 12 years, eight at the Baruch School. He has received his BA, MA and PhD degrees from New York University.

Dr. Parker participated in an "Arms for Israel" rally at the Baruch School in March 1956. At that time, he accused the Eisenhower Administration of "muddling" his Middle East policy. He said that Israel must be supplied with arms in order to maintain democracy in the Middle East.

Effigy of Rosen Found Hanged on Lamppost

A student who took a vacant tuxedo from the Student Council in an unprecedented move Friday evening passed a 50-cent raise in the student activity fee to bring the total fee paid at registration to $10.

The motion, proposed by Camille Viscconti '58 and Carole Groehler '60, was passed 14-2, after a move to place the issue on referendum, as had been done in all previous proposals to raise the activity fee, was defeated by the Council.
Psych Instructors Moderate Discussion of Racial Issues

An informal discussion of race that was held before a packed auditorium Thursday afternoon in Gore Hall, "Big Easy, New York," was the topic of interest as Professors Howard J. Morris of the Sociology and Professors of Political Science. The event was organized by Dr. Robert E. Clark under the auspices of the Department of the Week, "Focus on Race." The occasion was a chance for faculty and students to discuss the implications of recent events, particularly in light of current events in the United States and abroad.

Dr. Morris, who has been active in this area for many years, opened the discussion by highlighting the historical context in which the current events occurred. He emphasized the importance of understanding the roots of racial tension and the ways in which they manifest themselves today. He encouraged the participants to think critically about the role of education in addressing these issues.

The discussion then turned to more specific events, with participants discussing the importance of empathy and understanding in navigating these complex situations. The group acknowledged the need for education and critical thinking to foster a more inclusive society. The session concluded with a call for continued dialogue and action to address racial issues.

Justifiable?

Student Council Friday evening hit the student body where it will hurt the most— the pocketbook. And we don't believe the students will be able to rebound from this blow.

The Council voted overwhelmingly to rescind the social activity fee last Friday, about $1.50 to $2, which would have brought the overall fee paid on registration time to an even $10. Although the Council was expressing a revolt against the registration fee, we believe this is a shallow revolt. We believe the students realize the necessity for community fees and the money raised will be spent for services and activities the students need.

The Council has failed in two respects— it failed to provide an opportunity for anyone to give any indication as to why raising the fee was justified. We are ashamed of the Council for its thoughtless action. We urge a reconsideration of the question.

The Effigy

Some uptown students attempted to have a bonfire last week. It was supposed to be in front of the City College dormitory on Lexington Avenue, but it lasted only a few minutes.

When Dr. Ross G. Gallagher said this year, "It will be interesting to note how the reaction to the effigy of the 'buck' will be when it gets returned to the polls," this statement was made in a session where all the information means any action of this sort.

Upset students in the past usually fail and complete and the eye of the beholder. It is up to the Council, the student people, to demand that the Council fulfill its duties. The Council, in the fall 1945 semester, every student demand the right to know the results of the proposed fee increases.

But Student Council this semester de-
City College's Institute of Fine Techniques Upson is offering 12-credit-hour tuition. The Institute has made arrangements for the use of two months to live and work at the White House and other institutions in the field.

The scope and objectives of the conference will be developed at the meeting in April. The conference will be directed to the following ends:

1. To bring together the talents of the Institute's directors and other interested persons in the field.
2. To provide a forum for the discussion of current problems and issues in the field.
3. To present the findings of the Institute's research to a broader audience.

Polansky: Realistic About Hoop Future

By Richard Gruian

City College's basketball team began practice last week and, if there's one person who can see the handwriting on the wall, it's Coach Dave Polansky. For Polansky, who is replacing Nat Holman again this year, the picture is not to be bright. -

"The team is going to be very, very good," Polansky said. "I don't think we'll have any problems finding good players and at a reasonable price."

"The best part about the team is that it's a good one."

The team is composed of the following players:

- Quarterback Joe Polansky
- Linebacker Richie Garber
- Wide receiver Bennardo and Friedman
- Tight end Lewis, Silver, Ascher, and Lamport
- Placekicker Howard Mandel
- Fullback Mark Goodwin
- Safety Jim West
- Center Mike Keating
- Left tackle LaVerne Fowler
- Right tackle Mike Keating

The team is expected to have a good conference season.

"The team is going to be very good," Polansky said. "I don't think we'll have any problems finding good players and at a reasonable price."
Tough Schedule Facing City College Soccermen

By Artie Schreiber

The City College soccer team, fresh from victories over Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and Lehigh University, will attempt to extend its winning streak this week. The booters will face Adelphi College and the United States Naval Academy.

Tomororw, the Beavers will play at the Panthers' home field in Garden City, Long Island. University players in action this year, is coached by Anthony Bonnano, who graduated from the College in 1949.

Adelphi's scoring power is centered around letterman Ed Schultman, who has scored eight goals this year, and Carlos Marquez, who has tallied six times. The goalie is Roy Kessennich who, in his first year of soccer competition, has allowed only six goals in four games.

Face Army Saturday

Saturday, the Beavers venture to West Point to face the Black Knights of the Hudson Army. They will face a well-balanced array of booters who will be trying to improve on last year's tie with the Lavender.

With a nucleus of ten lettermen, Army has compiled a record of two wins and one loss, defeating Penn and Yale and losing to Ithaca College. Goalie Fred Lanza, the mainstay of Army's defense.

The first serious injury of the season has cost City the services of George Bristia who will be out of action for the remainder of the season. Co-captain Billy Sund, Goalie Fred Schlisser, Les Sonley, and Claude Spinoza were all sidelined with Asiatic flu for the first time.
