City Condemns Building

Students to Evacuate As Soon as Possible

By I'm Insulting (Special to THE TICKER)

The Baruch School has been condemned, it was learned yesterday by THE TICKER in an exclusive interview with the Board of Higher Education and the City College Department of Buildings and Grounds.

Officials said that the building was "unsafe and a menace to the lives of those who occupy it."

As impartial observers see it, damage is irreversible and it is expected that Baruch School students will be unable to enroll at the College for at least one year.

The BHE's notice was discovered by THE TICKER after this paper intercepted an official communiqué to Dean Emanuel Saxe yesterday morning. The reason was given that "there are numerous hazards in the Baruch School and it would be a definite danger to the students to have them remain in the School."

It was also noted that most of the hazards were highly neglected thereby leading to the immediate condemnation of the building.

One of the police officers at the scene reported that so many hazards existing was the work which would have changed the present direct current to alternating current. While working to pull cables through the floors, someone weakened some of the beams, making them unable to carry the strain and which is required of them.

It was also learned that a prime reason for the action was the intention of Dean Saxe to increase the present enrollment at the School by 1000, bringing it to a total of 3400 students.

Termites in the foundations has also been cited as a cause for the condemnation.

Announcement

The BHE's notice states that BBA degree offered by the Baruch School has been dropped effective immediately.

The change will be effective as of June, 1958.

Charlie Misanthrope:

Student Attacked on Ninth Floor

Charlie Misanthrope, a Baruch School senior, was knifed yesterday in front of Lounge C on the way to his 11 o'clock class.

The weapon, which was a 7-inch Swedish Steel switch-blade, after being removed from Charlie's stomach, was found to contain some short hairs which the police presume came from the assailant's side-burns.

In an exclusive interview, Misanthrope told THE TICKER about his attacker:

"I am most understandable and see this hit it comes so fast that I am unable to retal... retal... retal..."

"Right back."

"The next thing I know is that I blackout and wake up in this hospital room."

Under Observation

Misanthrope, who will remain in the hospital for a few more days under observation, was unable to give the police a complete description of his assailant. However, he was positive that the knifer had red hair, wore a black leather jacket and a Van Dyke beard with side-burns. The police have been on the job full-time.

The one thing that is bothering Misanthrope is that he recuperates from his stab wound is, as he so well put it: "I am afraid of missing too much work in Marketing 110 and Hygiene 71. I hope I'll be able to catch up."

The above photograph depicts Charlie as he lay in agony in Lounge C waiting for an ambulance.

CSC Digging Underground

In Hopes of Finding Oil

The Baruch School's Department of Buildings and Grounds has revealed that oil digging has begun on the 23 Street side of the building.

The digging is being held in conjunction with Student Council's Oil Drive.

Last week we called Industrial Packaging a no-good, triple-threat menace in this space. We should've known better. The problem was not with the product, but with the people associated with it. The packaging was fine, but the people handling it were not. We apologize for the misunderstanding.

The Society for the Advancement of Non-creative People

This week's event features the latest in the line of "Industrial Packaging." The presentation will be held at the Student Union Ballroom on Tuesday, October 11 at 7:30 PM. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Intra-Mural Board Dissolves After Ticker Wins, 72-50

By Mel Always-Whining

Camille Visconti, Chairman of the Intra-Mural Board, has announced the dissolution of that group. The drastic move is attributed to the smashing victory of THE TICKER over IMB in Friday's traditional basketball battle between the two.

THE TICKER won the game, 72-50, thereby ending a one-game IMB winning streak. However, the loss hit IMB so hard that they voted to disband immediately after the face-losing game.

The news of the loss came to Miss Visconti as she was hosting a Student Council tea. Her immediate reaction was to drop a plate of cookies, breaking Dean Emanuel Sax's foot. She thereafter ran from the room to the IMB office, 610A, where the fatal meeting was held.

The game itself was marked by the stirring play of a TICKER cub reporter, Mike Moskowitz. Moskowitz led the scoring with 38 points and thoroughly dominated offensive play.

Solomon Tallies 21

Also playing a marvelous game for the Mob from 911B, was Fred Solomon, who tallied 21 markers and snagged many rebounds. Solomon is not on THE TICKER, but was playing in the gym when THE TICKER team came down to practice.

Sid Davidoff, who scored 9 points, provided action when his striped shorts tore down the rear seam. However, Davidoff, true to the cause, refused to leave the game for surgical care. He finished the fray with both halves of his black and white shorts waving in the wind as he ran the length of the court.

Numerous Fouls

The playing of the game was marked by numerous technical fouls against the "gentlemen" from the sixth floor. Two such fouls were called, in succession, against one player. Needless to say, the fellow was quite perturbed and left the floor with his voice modulated at a low scream.

THE TICKER victory was accomplished despite the fact that both referees were from the Intra-Mural Board. It has been rumored that THE TICKER bid them at the start of the game was higher than IMB's so they foresook loyalty and remained true to Baruch School materialism.

It was also noted that, if IMB ever returned to the City College scene, these two gentlemen would never be eligible to join.

Hoop Squad Moving To Garden Squad Next Fall

City College President Buell G. Gallagher announced yesterday that next year's basketball team would play its usual 18-game slate, facing its traditional opponents.

"This move is necessary," Gallagher stated, "due to the crowded playing conditions now existing in Wingate Gym."

This means that, for the first time since 1951, Beaver basketball home games will not be played in Wingate Gym, often referred to as the "Ebets Field of basketball."

The statement was greeted with joy by the entire team, but Coach Nat Holman was particularly pleased.

"It will give me a chance to get back into the limelight, I've been sorry for seven years that we've not playing in that Eighth Avenue Bookie Jol-uh, Emporium, and I'm very glad to see the move."

Marty Groveman, who broke into the starting lineup as a soph this year, was also very happy.

"This will give me a chance to take some long jump shots. In Wingate gym, I was confined to a distance of 15 feet. Next year I'll show you some shooting."

Despite the move to the Garden, no change in opponents will take place. The Lavender will still play its usual 18-game slate, facing its traditional opponents.

Arthur DesGrey, Faculty Manager of Athletics, said "Just because we're moving to the Garden is no reason for changing our opponents. We don't want to go 'big-time,' you know. It's against our athletic policy."

Ned Irish, Vice-President in charge of basketball at the Garden, said "There are 206,000 City alumni in New York City. At two bucks a head, that comes to . . ."

At this point, THE TICKER'S reporter left.
