LIU Edges CCNY
In 69-68 Victory; Marcot Scores 19

By Eddie Periman

Before a wildly cheering throng at Wingate Gym, Long Island University beat the Beavers, 69-68, in overtime. This was a heartbreaker for City as they rallied in the final minutes of the second half, coming from six points behind, and they seemed assured of victory in the overtime.

The Beavers tied the score on clutch baskets by Guy Marcot, who played a great all-around game, and was high-scorer with 19 points.

As the buzzer sounded ending regulation time, a foul was committed against LIU's scoring leader Bob Sobry. With a chance to win the game, he missed both foul shots—sending the game into the overtime session. The score stood 64-64.

In the overtime, City leading 68-67 a technical was called against LIU. Guy Marcot, City's top foul shooter missed the free throw. City took the ball and committed an error that cost the game. LIU took possession and scored what proved to be the winning basket.

The next move in lengthening the School day will not be officially for a while.

Dean Emanuel Saxe is awaiting the exact wording of the Student Council proposal, and has the petition from the Class of '61 containing 650 names opposed to the proposal. After he receives the proposal, the Dean will objectively study the pros and cons of the proposal.

No action will be taken for next term. The proposal must be studied at length and much of the study shall take place during the next term, said Dr. Saxe. There are many methods of lengthening the day that must be looked into. It can be lengthened for the entire School, or for part of the School, or for the entering freshmen.

The faculty's views on the problem will have to be studied along with the student's views. Dean Saxe is planning to consult with other administration members and the faculty before making a decision.

Dean Saxe has assured often, prior to the passage of the SC proposal, that a student cannot benefit fully from college if he works after school. The Dean noted that he will do it only if the student is free during the school day. If they are forced to hold a full-time job, they should attend the evening sessions.

With the increasing number of students in college during the last few years, it is necessary to study the affect this will have on the Baruch School. The number of students is such that it is hardest to raise the standards of the school and of lengthening the day to accommodate the vast number of expected students.

Saxe Awaits Council Resolution
On Proposed Lengthening of Day

The sale of the Queens College literary magazine, "New Poems," has been suspended because of an article in "Abortion Eve," by Florence Goldberg, was said to be in bad taste and blasphemous.

The Publications Board, the English Department, has appointed a committee to decide whether the poem is in bad taste.

Queens College President Harold Stokes made no comment on the suspension.

Loyalty Oaths Scored
By AAUP Magazine

Students who wish to receive federal assistance, federal aid, must sign a loyalty oath, it was revealed in the November issue of the American Association of University Professors Bulletin.

In a letter to the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, the AAUP declared that the requirement is too broad a requirement and noted that the AAUP had sent letters to the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee and the House Education and Labor Committee, in protest against this section of the bill. The AAUP has also sent letters to their Congressmen stating their disapproval of this "school loyalty oath." The loyalty clause, which was proposed by Senator Carl Mundt (N.D.) and passed without opposition, was attached to legislation for the expansion of the federal educational facilities for the last eight years.

Rosenberg felt it necessary for the BHE to commence a new study because of the advent of certain new developments. The matter of State aid to the City Colleges and the feasibility of admitting out of town students into the City Colleges are but two of these developments.

The municipal college system this semester has an enrollment of 84,600, including 23,000 day and 6,500 evening undergraduate students. The system comprises four regular four-year colleges—City, Brooklyn, Hunter, and Queens—and one two-year college, the Staten Island Community College. A second two-year college—the Bronx Community College will open in the fall.

To Select Committee:
BHE to Study Colleges' Needs

A Board of Higher Education Committee is planning to study the possibilities of future expansion by the City's colleges. It was announced last week by Gustave Rosenberg, chairman of the Board.

The committee, whose members will be named next week, will be composed of members of the BHE, while the presidents of the colleges will serve in an advisory capacity.

The committee, Rosenberg stated, would investigate the growing higher education needs of New York City. It will be the most extensive study undertaken by the BHE since the "master plan study" of 1960.

For that study, the Board employed, Dr. Donald P. Cottrell, dean of the College of Education at Ohio State University, to write an investigation of the minimum needs of New York higher education for the next two decades.

The Board has been using the Cottrell Report as a guide in the expansion of the higher educational facilities for the last eight years.

The Psychological Significance of the Welfare State

By Irwin Feller '39

The influence of an industrial society, after so many years of work, official impact upon a society. Through the growth of a welfare state, the inequality of income, the employer-employee relations have been modified. The state has taken upon itself the responsibility of providing a minimum standard of living for all its citizens, thereby eliminating the worst effects of industrialization.

The growth of the welfare state is a physical manifestation of the fact that the state is responsible for fighting the evils of its citizens, as a national development is the aggregate of the individual efforts of all its citizens. The growth of the state is a deliberate policy of aggrandizement, but rather an attitude that these developments have engendered.

A deliberate policy of aggrandizement is a deliberate policy of aggrandizement, but rather a deliberate policy of aggrandizement. This is not to say that the government does have the responsibility of fighting the evils of society, but that the government has the responsibility of fighting the evils of society. It is not to say that the government does have the responsibility of fighting the evils of society, but that the government has the responsibility of fighting the evils of society.

The government, partly as a matter of political strategy, must deliver whatever social programs it can to the people at this time. Admittedly, everyone of the measures that the government has put into operation is a very good one in terms of creating a welfare state. The government has put into operation a program of social welfare which does allow for the full utilization of one production factor. This is the government's responsibility. That year he crisscrossed the United States, speaking to students at Harvard, and later as Assistant President and Secretary of the Treasury, he guided his intellectual horizon, and increased his ability, for he appreciated the worth of experts, particularly in the fields of economics and public administration.

Theodore Roosevelt was the first of the great twentieth century, a reaction to this view was the idea that society needed to be responsible for fighting the evils of society. This idea was widespread. As for those who were responsible for fighting the evils of society, they were only interested in the objective fact that society needed to be responsible for fighting the evils of society. To at least one, the idea that society needed to be responsible for fighting the evils of society is the government's responsibility. That year he crisscrossed the United States, speaking to students at Harvard, and later as Assistant President and Secretary of the Treasury, he guided his intellectual horizon, and increased his ability, for he appreciated the worth of experts, particularly in the fields of economics and public administration.

Eleanor Roosevelt was the most unfortunate admixture of personal and public relations. These precedent shattering enactments in Illinois are simply illustrated by the last Congressional election. The overwhelming election of "Social" Congressmen indicated the desire of the electorate to have social programs. People are tired of the pittance and indignation that goes with the elevation of the American people who voted for him.

Surely the 1930's political situation was more tolerant of new ideas. The political mobilization, the main attack against Franklin D. Roosevelt's reelection, was not to have an ideological character. The political mobilization, the main attack against Franklin D. Roosevelt's reelection, was not to have an ideological character. It was aimed at the very heart of the Congressmen, which was the effect of this political mobilization on the Congressmen.

The political mobilization was aimed at the very heart of the Congressmen, which was the effect of this political mobilization on the Congressmen.

A deliberate policy of aggrandizement is a deliberate policy of aggrandizement, but rather a deliberate policy of aggrandizement. This is not to say that the government does have the responsibility of fighting the evils of society, but that the government has the responsibility of fighting the evils of society.
Chancellor Kent probably had in mind when said: "We ought not to measure the science of politics by the rules of that of ethics."

The Constitution has endowed The Supreme Court with power to interpret the Constitution. When the Court exercises the power vested in it by the Constitution to construe the Constitution, it is exercising itself on the power to make the laws and from those powers to decide questions of interpretation and construction which arise in connection with the enforcement of the national government.

It is a common place to say that the Constitution is the supreme law of the land, but let us bear in mind that the Constitution as the supreme law of the land is the product of the people and the product of the people does what it wills and it wills what it does, and no power or influence of any sort can either prevent or control its will. The Constitution, as the supreme law of the land, is the expression of the will of the people, as the supreme law of the nation, it is the expression of the will of the nation.

The Constitution states, "The Congress shall have power to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof."

The interpretation of the Constitution is an act of the highest authority; it is the act of the supreme judge of the land; it is the act of the highest authority. The Constitution speaks as the supreme law of the land; it speaks as the supreme law of the nation; it speaks as the highest authority. Ethics and Business Decisions

By Professor Henry Emery

Concurrent with the ethical aspects of business, the law has suggested standards of conduct that vary considerably, depending upon the jurisdiction involved. Thus, it has been declared that "an imputable belief" is a known fact. "Ethical behavior" involves not only what can be proved by evidence, but also what is believed to be correct. The law has made it clear that mere compliance is insufficient; action is required. Hence, there is an urgent need for legislation that will provide a legal foundation for ethical conduct.

In the present instance, the laws in the state of New York define "imputable belief" as any statement that is not based on actual knowledge but which is believed to be true. The laws of the state further provide that if a person acts on the basis of such a belief, he is guilty of negligence if the belief is false. It is possible to construct a case in which a person acts on the basis of an imputable belief and is found guilty of negligence. Thus, it is clear that there is a need for legislation that will provide a legal foundation for ethical conduct.

The laws of the state of New York also provide that if a person acts on the basis of imputable belief and is found guilty of negligence, he will be liable for damages. It is possible to construct a case in which a person acts on the basis of an imputable belief and is found liable for damages. Thus, it is clear that there is a need for legislation that will provide a legal foundation for ethical conduct.

In conclusion, the need for legislation that will provide a legal foundation for ethical conduct is clear. Such legislation will help to ensure that the actions of individuals are in accordance with ethical principles and, thus, will help to maintain the integrity of business practices.
Hoopsters to Play Powerful Dickinson

(Continued from Page 1) with two seconds remaining on the overtime clock. With a 1 and 1 situation, needing a basket to tie, Asker missed—and that was the game.

City led 27-22 at halftime mark, paced by Marty Groves. Hewitt played a great game from the field, and finished with a total of 13. Ascher, in returning, proved to be a bull under the backboards.

Johnny Parnon, Gabor Schills, and Adolphus, all are members of the All-State soccer first team. Also, from the Beaver booters, Claude Spinosa was named to the second team.

City College, in placing three players on the first team, is the only college to have three men on the first team. The four All-Staters from the '65-66 College mark the most players from any school to be honored.

Champions

The Beavers, Mid-Atlantic League champions for the past three seasons, have not been riding on top thus far this year. Although City registered victories over Hunter and Queens, Brooklyn College, which tripped the Beavers, 65-55, is still holding the pack.

Last year, City led to Columbus, Nevada, and Adolphus, while registering wins over Hunter and Queens.

City's offense will be led by Hector Lewis. The 6-5 center, who is the leading scorer and rebounder on the team, will be backed by Marty Groves, the sharp-shooting Baruchian who led in outside jump and set shots.

Julio Delatorre, Shelly Bender and Gary Marcus will round out the CCNY line.

Baruch ‘Five’ Rumps To ‘Squaresmen’ Win

The Baruch School basketball team romped to its third win of the season, 79-68, over the New York University Washington Square squad. The Baruchians have lost only once this season.

The Baruch School managed to hold the lead—the score stood 41-36 at the half. Using free substitution throughout the contest, the Baruchians came up with hot shooting and excellent rebounding. Clean on both backboards were Salls and Kwatinetz.

The NYU team was helped towards the end by some outside shooting and driving-ups. However, the Downtown control over them in the backboard category was too much to be able to come within striking distance.

Coach Joe Sapora’s wrestlers are riding on the crest of a 2-1 record by virtue of victories over Temple and Brooklyn Poly. Their only loss was to the Long Island Argies.

The matmen crushed Brooklyn Poly, 32-2. The entire lineup, except for B. Wollin, scored wins.

Ronald Alter took the 130-pound decision; Ronald Kie won in the 157-pound class; 147-pounder Jack Isower took his match; Jack SobeL took the 165-pound decision; George Chudzinski won in the 175-pound category; Jerry SobeL dropped the 167-pounder and heavyweight Milt Gittelsen both took their respective matches.

In the 24-10 win over Temple, Alter, Isower, Rodman, Latkov, and Gittelsen took their respective contests.

Fencing Team

The City College fencers haven’t been as successful as the wrestlers for they lost to both of their opponents—Yale and Columbia.
