First Lady' Here Thursday

Bellush, Levy to Discuss FDR

A large turnout is expected Thursday for a special memorial to former President Franklin Delano Roosevelt. A talk by the President's widow, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, will highlight the event.

This is the first time since October 1949 that the "First Lady" has appeared at the Baruch School. On her last appearance, Mrs. Roosevelt spoke about her trip to the USSR.

Thursday's program will also feature History Professor Bernard Bellush and English Professor William Turner Levy discussing FDR: The Man and the Movement.

Professor Bellush, author of a book on Roosevelt as Governor, will speak on the former president's political orientation and beliefs.

Professor Levy, who is currently working on a book concerning Roosevelt's spiritual life, will discuss Roosevelt's spiritual life, and film clips showing highlights of FDR's life and "Here It Now" recordings of his many famous speeches will be presented.

According to Dr. Levy, it is probably the only memorial in honor of President Roosevelt other than the wreath ceremony held before his grave April 12.

Flowers

The semi-annual Sigma Alpha Phi Flower Festival will be held tomorrow. Proceeds will be used to purchase a flag for the new Student Center.

QC Council Delays Move

The Queens College Faculty Council, which was to vote on proposals to end the present tax teacher system, has delayed action until Thursday on the matter.

Action was to have been taken last Tuesday, but the meeting was adjourned before a decision could be reached.

The proposal, made by the QC Faculty Committee on Student Activities, called for the replacement of the two present student papers with one paper whose editor was to be chosen by the student body voting in the regular school-wide elections.

Although this provision was changed in an amended version of the plan, other provisions, including the payment of the editor and business manager, and a decreased teaching load for the faculty advisor, were maintained.

The Wrong Commandment

It is not often that THE TICKER comments on matters which are outside the academic or educational community. However, when an issue arises that is of general interest, we feel it is our duty to comment on it. The recent news of the death of the Owner of the Fabrik Park certainly deserves comment on our part, since many people have been affected by it.

NYU Newspaper Loses Advisor in New Move

The faculty editor of the New York University newspaper, The N.Y.U. Alumnus, has been removed from his position by the administration. The move is part of a larger plan to reorganize the school's newspaper and to bring it more in line with other campus publications. The faculty editor, who had been with the newspaper for many years, was informed of the decision last week. The reason given for the removal was that the newspaper had not been able to attract enough advertising to cover its expenses. The faculty editor, who had been a leader in the fight for student control of the newspaper, said that he would appeal the decision. The university administration, however, has stated that the decision is final.
Baseballers Lose Two Games To Met Conference Opponents

John LaPlace's baseball team found itself in a slump at a very inopportune time last week, dropping two Metropolitan League games to Wagner and the 14-1 to Manhattan. These two losses moved the Beavers to fourth place in the Met competition, with a 2-3 record.

In the Wagner game, City never got off the ground as Wagner took an early lead and held it off repeated Beaver rallies. Outfielder Tim Sullivan connected for two of the seven Beaver hits.

The Manhattan game was a treat with the word "beaver" as the Beavers were behind by a score of 11-1 as early as the third inning. Making seven errors, as contrasted to two in the Wagner game, they did not help matters any in the field. At bat, they came up with only seven hits.

Tim Sullivan led the Beavers at bat with three hits, keeping up his hot hitting streak. He is now one of the top men, along with Kenny Rosenblum, who has played only part time, in Met League batting. Both are hitting the 300 level.

The main reason for the losses were the numerous fielding errors that put the team in a bind. The Beavers did not get any runs in the Jaspers' home run total. Manhattan slammed four home runs in the game while the Beavers did not get any.
