$300 Tuition Tag Placed On Impecunious Baruchians

A $300 tuition charge at City College (which includes the Baruch School) will go into effect when students return from the Easter vacation. Students will be required to pay the sum to the Bursar's office before they will be admitted to classes.

Dean Emanuel Socks said that students on the first day back from the spring vacation. Students will be required to pay the sum to the Bursar's office before they will be admitted to classes.

Dean Emanuel Socks said that students who wish to register for the fall semester will have the opportunity to "learn how to handle money, especially if they are Accounting majors." He added that Economics majors, who learn all about money, but don't know how to "learn more." Arty Scribbler, president of Student Council, told THE TICKER yesterday that a mass rally will be organized to protest the tuition increase. He said the rally will probably be held the first day back from the vacation. "Students will stage a sit-in in their classes and maybe the Mayor of New York will get the idea," he said.

Al Stain, chairman of the Activities Coordination Board, said that the Board of Higher Education, which instituted the tuition increase, will be asked for the rest of the semester from all dates and publicity rights.

The tuition charge was authorized by the Board shortly after the state legislature deleted the word "free" from the state law books two weeks ago.

"The students are asking their representatives, which controls all funds to the City Colleges, to ask the B.H.E. to raise the tuition charge at the Baruch School," said Mr. Stain. "Does the B.H.E. and the Governor that we need this sort of thing," asked the B.H.E. and the Governor that we need this sort of thing.

In a move that took the Baruch School by surprise, David Cleaningman gave an engagement ring to Bonnie Mishap. The ceremony was performed the first time Friday afternoon, but the engagement was not made official until it was completed, resulting in a wearing away of the bridge's floor.

The immediate cause of the sudden closing down of the Center was the failure of the construction crew to complete the bridge between the fourth floor of the Main Building and the fourth floor of the Center. Dean Emanuel Socks informed THE TICKER that too many instructors had sneaked back and forth over the bridge before it was completed, resulting in a wearing away of the bridge's floor.

Mishap, Cleaningman Meet; Engagement Set That Night

In a move that took the Baruch School by surprise, David Cleaningman gave an engagement ring to Bonnie Mishap. The ceremony was performed the first time Friday afternoon, but the engagement was not made official until it was completed, resulting in a wearing away of the bridge's floor.

"It was love at first sight," said Cleaningman, "and we were engaged that night.

Limericks Anyone?

A certain going fellow named John
Went to a Limerick Club to shine.
On a Saturday night he said,
"Let's do a Limerick around.
I'm sure our friends will love it, I'm sure!"

What's a Limerick?

Limerick is a form of verse that is famous for its offbeat humor and unexpected twists. It is typically characterized by a distinctive rhyme scheme and a playful tone. A typical Limerick consists of five couplets, with the first and second couplets having five syllables each, the third and fifth having six, and the fourth having seven.

To the Editor of The TICKER:

I notice a person in a Ticker tape with a big name and a big smile. Specifically, it is the name and smiling face of Linda. May she consider me in her social function?

Sincerely,

David Reiss, 110

To the Editor of The TICKER:

The TICKER is in the great tradition of newspapers. After all the years that the newspaper has been in existence, it must be something good!

Sincerely,

Robert S. Emanuel, 100

To the Editor of The TICKER:

The writer of the letter "What is a Limerick?" suggests that a Limerick is a "rhyming verse with five couplets." This is correct, but it is only one aspect of a Limerick. A Limerick is also traditionally about some humorous or absurd situation, often involving animals or inanimate objects. The humor comes from the unexpected twist at the end of the fifth and final line, which is often a pun or a surprise.

Student Council Goes Wild; Thousands of Motions Fail

By Marilyn Brooks

The Student Council at the Baruch School went wild at their last meeting, passing a record number of motions. The council considered a proposal to eliminate all homework, which was approved unanimously. Another proposal to create a student newspaper was also approved, but only after a heated debate. The council also voted to increase the number of council meetings to twice a week, but this proposal was defeated. The council's last meeting was marked by a chaotic atmosphere, with many motions being proposed and then withdrawn at the last minute. The council members were visibly exhausted at the end of the meeting.

History of Students!!!

A review outline is finally on sale at the Schloch Shop in the Center of the Baruch School.

This outline absolutely, positively, covers every bit of the Non-Required Readings in Bankhead and Seamster's "Students' Guide to the Baruch School." The outline gives you models' statistics and exam answers given previously to C.C.N.Y. students. For a slight additional fee, answers to the June, 1961 final will be included.

For its simple, classic comic style is such fast reading that you are finished with it before you have learned anything.

CCNY Basketballmen Rank First in Statistical Survey

By Steve Wrappafish

After some statistical analysis and manipulation, figures have been revealed which show that City College’s fabulous fighting “five” is the nation’s number one basketball team. When the average Beaver fan was asked to state his opinion of this assertion, he calmly replied with a shrug of his shoulders, “I don’t care, I’m not an athletic supporter.”

However, when faced with a challenging proposition of comparing points scored which show the Beavers are able to top Ohio State, the team that was formerly rated number one in the country.

Just for the record, C.C.N.Y., defeated Fairleigh Dickinson, 87-67; P.D.U., crushed St. Francis of Brooklyn, 95-64; the Terriers, bowed to the St. John’s Redmen by 12 points and the Redmen lost to Ohio State by five points.

This analysis makes City a mere 25 point favorite over the Buckeyes.

When an unidentified fprer-r party coach at the College was informed of this accomplishment, he was heard to murmur, “Why didn’t I have it go good?”

After the new national ratings were announced to the public, the telephone rang incessantly in the College’s athletic office. Madison Square Garden quickly informed the Beavers that they could return to their rightful arena of the country.

LOCAL BOYS MAKE GOOD?: Capacity crowds will watch the C.C.N.Y. fabulous “five”, play if opponents can be found.

A few moments later the Tri-State League notified C.C.N.Y. that the Beavers would no longer be allowed to compete in the League, because the Beavers would romp over their feeble small college squads.

The remainder of City’s small-time opponents also dropped the Beavers from their schedules. They felt that a crushing defeat at the hands of the Lavender would cause a de-emphasis of basketball at the schools.

C.C.N.Y. was now left with a great team but no opponents to slaughter.

Telephone calls were made to many schools but each declined the offer that an increasing number of students are registering for small college squads. Many schools but each declined the offer.
