SC Approves Term Budget
And Sends Letter to Times

Student Council, at its Friday night meeting, accepted a budget proposed by Council President Paul Fruzan for this semester. It also voted to send a letter to The New York Times expressing that our's position on tuition for the city colleges.

The Council budget called for a total outlay of $2,500 and was passed with relatively little debate.

The Times editorial supported a moderate tuition charge in all state and city colleges, stating that the present policy of allowing city college students to pay no tuition was inconsistent because state college students and community college students had to pay tuition.

The letter also sought to refute the Times' position that the city is the same for which it is always asking. The existing law gives the Board of Higher Education permission to charge tuition if it desires.

New York Times Declares
Tuition A Reasonable Policy

The New York Times, in its Thursday, March 1 edition, stated in view of the "terrific demand for tax money for education on all levels" a moderate tuition charge in all city and state colleges is a "reasonable policy."

The Times stated that although the City College tuition had been "free" for over one hundred years, this did not necessarily mean that such tradition was "right."

The paper felt that there was a "glaring inconsistency" at City College. Students at the state's liberal arts colleges pay $225 tuition per year and the average college student pays $300.

If the city wanted to, The Times noted, they could charge all students tuition. "It (the city) doesn't explain its inconsistency."

The Times editorial stated that it had been no negative reaction to the City University's institution of an annual charge of $250 to $300 for graduate work.

Paul Fruzan

B.B.E. had never asked for this. The argument of "all students, because students are an appointed body, Council emphasized, is not directly responsible to the people and therefore should not in itself have the power to institute tuition."

A motion by Bill Roskin '63 stated if we could not regain mandatory free tuition we should suggest that the City Council, a directly elected body, be granted the right to determine whether to have free tuition.

Opponents of this motion stated that it was a compromise which we should not offer. In addition, they felt that the City Council should have no voice in educational affairs. The motion failed 8-1-2.

The Council letter concluded by saying, "Perhaps the strongest argument in favor of continued free higher education is embodied in the rolls of alumni of the city colleges."

Emphasis in the Council letter was placed in the fact that these alumni "may never have had the advantage of a higher education, but they are citizens of the same city and state..." and further to the "need to have the city drive 70 miles to attend a college there is no need for the education of students to "pay tuition."

A motion by Mark Grant '64 was passed 18-1-2. It limits the number of charity drive days to sixteen each semester. Prior to this there was no limit on the number of days during which charity drives could be held, although no more than seven drives were allowed each term.

Letters to the Editor

Can We Forget?

By Marilyn Kayle

I remember this phrase as: "Can We Forget?" It sounds like a question that is asking if we can forget something that happened in the past. It might be related to a specific event or situation. Without more context, it's hard to say what exactly it refers to. It could be a reference to a historical event, a personal experience, or something else.

Bauer Calls Freedom Important for Survival

By Steve Eagle

Dr. Bauer, the new director of Social Work, has made a statement that freedom is an important aspect for survival. He believes that the ability to make choices and have control over one's life is crucial for an individual's well-being. This is a powerful message as it emphasizes the importance of freedom and its role in human flourishing.

Blood Bank To Be Held

March 14th

The campus blood bank will be holding a blood drive on March 14th. This is an opportunity for students, faculty, and staff to contribute to a crucial cause. Blood is a vital resource that can save lives, and every donation can make a difference.

Weavers

The Weavers, a student organization, will be hosting a special event on campus. The details are not provided in the document, but it is likely to be an engaging and informative gathering. Weavers is known for its creative and educational programs, so this event is probably worth attending.

Miss Jennie M. Palen:

Baruch Instructor Writes Poetry

By Tom Nicas

Jennie M. Palen, an instructor at Baruch College, has written a poem that has been published in a local magazine. The poem is called "Good Morning, Sweet Prince." It's a beautiful and thoughtful piece of writing that showcases Palen's talent and passion for poetry.

Bauers' characterization of freedom is profound and the role of freedom in human survival is well articulated. Freedom is not just a right, but a fundamental need for the human spirit. Bauer's perspective is a powerful reminder of the importance of individual freedom and the role it plays in our daily lives.

The blood drive is a great opportunity for the community to come together and support a good cause. Blood donations are crucial, and every person who donates can make a significant impact on the lives of others.

The Weavers' event sounds intriguing. Weavers is known for its high-quality programs, and I'm sure this event will be no exception. It's always exciting to see what these student organizations have in store for us.

Jennie M. Palen's poem is a lovely piece. "Good Morning, Sweet Prince" is a beautiful and evocative poem that captures the essence of freedom and the serenity of early morning. It's a delightful读物 for poetry lovers and a testament to Palen's literary talent.
Dear Editor,

I am writing regarding the recent elections in which I was a candidate for President of the Student Council. I was disappointed to learn that the results of the election were not announced as scheduled. I understand that there have been delays in the counting of ballots due to technical issues with the voting machines.

I would like to express my gratitude to those who supported me during the campaign. I believe that we should continue to work together to improve our campus and address the concerns of our student body.

Sincerely,

Records Fall as Cagers Whip Knights; Nilsen Shatters School, League Marks; Beavers End Campaign With 9-9 Slate

By Lew Lipset

A record-shattering forty-eight point performance by senior Morty Nilsen led the City College basketball team to a 96-83 victory over Wagner Wednesday afternoon at the Wingate Ball. It was the season's finale for C.C.N.Y.

The victory gave City a record of 9-9, including a 4-3 mark in Tri-State League competition. Adelphi's victory

In addition to scoring eighteen field goals out of twenty-eight attempts, converted twelve of seventeen foul shots in accumulating his point total.

Winston, the top Beaver playmaker of the season, came up with one of his finest games. The Baruchian tallied sixteen points and had numerous assists.

Cohen, while scoring twenty-two points, held Bridgeport's Danny Morello to eleven points. Morello, the Tri-State League's highest scorer, had been averaging twenty-four a game.

Don Sidat tallied five long jump shots for a total of ten points to assure him of an average in double figures.

Hosie Wilkov, Morty Egel, Frank Hart, and Jimmy Sutton all played their final game for the Beavers. Wilkov and Barton tallied twenty-four and fourteen points, respectively.

The loss was a disappointment for the Beavers, who were looking forward to the New York City tourney.

Students now began to figure out how many games over .500 they would finish. Some even counted on a Tri-State League crown post-season tournament.

Then came the loss to Adelphi and the campus skeptics were in force. Victories over Brooklyn and Queens pushed the record to 4-3 and placed them in the Tri-State League's Top 10.

The Beavers managed to finish in only two categories. Phil Rodman gained a second place in the 225-lb. class and Harvey Taylor at 153 finished third.

The men will be difficult to replace but Coach Joe Sapia sees promise in several sophomores who will now have an opportunity to come into their own.

Well Done

By Steve Rappaport

A .500 basketball record at many schools would sign of failure and disappointment. But at City College the Beavers win half of their games (25-36).

Throughout the campaign City suffered from its perennial cap: lack of height. There also was too little speed to command the ball. Therefore, the Beavers set the example of being a good-shot only. And there were markers to shoot the ball. The furring's were wild... the team lost.

The scoring was not a steady stream, but rather in spurts. The Beavers lacked experience on the outside. They had never to work the ball for a good shot, but rather to rely on the Violets' poor shooting.

The season opened hopefully with an 83-60, crushing of City. The score itself impressed, but there were other noticeable happenings. The Beavers led the lead to six points, but then the Violets' defense was superb.

Bob Hamilton, who competed in the coast division, was not a lucky man. He scored twenty-five points but could not get his team to the final, but the Tor Nilsen is a valuable asset.

Nilsen, while drawing all the attention, was by no means a one-man show. University, Mike Winston, and Frank Cohen gave magnificent performances in their final effort for the Lavender.

The Beavers never trailed as they did in 60 of their shots in the first half, moving to a 40-32 lead. Nilsen scored twenty points, Winston and Cohen splitting sixteen more. The Beavers of Winston and Cohen were dominant from the beginning.

When the second half started, the Beavers were well on their way to a 83-60 victory. The Beavers were a completely new team.

Many were aware that Beavers of the season, at 153, was aimed to petty forty-eight points, held Bridgeport's Danny Morello to eleven points. Morello, the Tri-State League's leading scorer, had been averaging twenty-four a game.

Don Sidat tallied five long jump shots for a total of ten points to assure him of an average in double figures.

Hosie Wilkov, Morty Egel, Frank Hart, and Jimmy Sutton all played their final game for the Beavers. Wilkov and Barton tallied twenty-four and fourteen points, respectively.

The loss was a disappointment for the Beavers, who were looking forward to the New York City tourney.
