Nostalgia. Anyone

By Bill Singer

I never did realize the Brooklyn Dodgers so much as in that game up to pitch for the Mets. Mays got up there and threw three balls and changed the score. I think I was 12 years old, but I could have cried it was so beautiful.

I was at the party where we, well, I mean my father, cousin, aunt, uncle, and a dozen other relatives there. We heard that Mays had hit a double.

We went out to the party, and a lot of people were there. There were a lot of people there. We talked about baseball.

We heard about the Dodgers losing, but we were happy anyway. It was nice to be there.

The Dodgers are my favorite team.

Will History Repeat Itself?
City Hopes So in-NYU Tilt

Will history repeat itself? The C.C.N.Y. baseball team hopes so. Two years ago, in the throes of a fifteen-game losing streak, the team defeated New York University, 1-0. This season the Beavers have dropped thirteen successive contests and at 3 today host the Violets at Macombs Dam Park.

The fifteen-game winning streak was the longest ever accumulated by City. A win today would also help the Beavers to pass Manhattan in the Metropolitan Conference standings and move out of the cellar. However, City trails the Jaspers by two games and with only four league encounters remaining this will be a tough job. In league play Manhattan is 3-7, while City is 1-9.

The Beaver meeting with first place St. John's yesterday was postponed for the second time. It will be played, either May 17 or 18. If the former date is chosen, the Hunter game, a non-league affair, will be cancelled.

The Beavers have already won their first game against three major league teams this season. Facing the New York Yankees at Yankee Stadium the Beavers defeated the Yankees, 7-2. In their next game, the Beavers will host the Violets of Manhattan at Macombs Dam Park.

Howie Friedman

N.Y.U., in sixth place in the league with a .500 mark, will probably pitch Butch Shuster, who defeated the Beavers earlier in the season. Shuster, a senior, formerly played baseball and basketball for Midwood High School.

City Coach Frank Seeley will probably use his southpaw curveballer, Howie Friedman, who has won one time in five outings.

Another choice might be sophomore Mike Greiennan, who absorbed the loss to N.Y.U. Greiennan, despite his 0-4 record, has pitched well. Two of his losses were incurred at the hands of St. John's and Fordham, each by one run.

Following this game, C.C.N.Y. meets Warner in a league doubleheader at Macombs Dam at noon Saturday.

The Violets have split two games and are in fourth place in the league. The team's chief assets are a good infield and a senior pitching corps.

The ace of the staff is Bruce Wilkow, who made the league's third most star team last season. He is backed up by Dick Rine and Nick Reiter.

Second baseman Drew Kelly was the seventh leading base stealer in the country last season as a freshman.

No. 3?

City's outdoor track team seeks another championship at the Metropolitan Conference championships Saturday at C.W. Post.

The Beavers have already won the cross country and indoor events and a third win would be unprecented.

The faculty will leave their classrooms for a short on-the-basketball court when they meet a student team today in Hansen Hall. Dean Emanuel Sax will throw out the first ball for the tap-off.

In the second game of the doubleheader at 1 the I.M.B. will counter THE TICKER.

The faculty team is composed of the physical education staff; however, several others will participate.

The team includes, among others, Professor Iris Szoldoff, Robert Dever, Yustin Strata and Wolfe, all of the Physical Education Department. Alan Cooper, the English Department will participate.

Several unusual rules will be instituted to "even" the contest. These include the double-elevator step and two platoon regulations.

When the Violets come to town, the Beavers’ fans are sure to be out in force. The Violets are a tough team and City fans are eager to see them take on the Beavers.
