For Presidency of ’65

Barry Epstein ’65 will seek to invalid the election of Richard Sacks as president of the Class of ’65. He declared yesterday, Sacks defeated Epstein in yesterday’s classwide election 69-62.

“Have witnesses that were at the ballot boxes,” Epstein informed THE TICKER, “and they saw someone giving out ballots and telling people to vote for Sacks.”

Sacks denied “any connection with the alleged irregularities.” If he has no way to deny the charges, he added, “because I wasn’t there.”

Any petition to invalidate a classwide election must be given to the chairman of Student Council’s Disqualification Committee for consideration. Council President Mark Grant ’64, who chairs the committee, stated that if a complaint from Epstein is received, it can be considered by the committee as early as this afternoon.

If the committee should uphold Epstein a new election for the position must be held.

A Look Back

To the Editor:

Dear Sir: "The Ticker" of December 11 features an article which I consider to be false and misleading. The report states that "Student officers have expressed concern that the lack of clearly defined issues and lack of clearly defined goals were hindrances to voter turnout." The article quotes one student officer as saying, "We need more clearly defined issues. We need to motivate students to vote." This is not accurate. Our student leaders have not expressed such concerns. In fact, we have encouraged voters to turn out and vote. The election was held in November, and the student officers have been focusing on other issues, such as the upcoming S.A. elections, which will be held in March. Students who are eligible to vote should register and vote for their preferred candidates. The election will be held on December 20 and 21 on the campus of the City College of New York. The student officers have been actively campaigning for the election.

The Metropolitan Soccer Conference, which meets at C.N.Y. and New York University to its 1961-62 season has reversed the fortunes of the New York City and New York teams.

The National League, which met the American League for the first time next week, has a new league, the National League, with only NYU, Post and City.

The new league, besides Post and NYU, will be completed by C.C.N.Y., Brooklyn College, Pratt, Adelphi, Queens, and Long Island University. Adelphi won the title for the third time with Kings Point.

The Beavers met Post and NYU last week in an elimination competition and defeated both clubs by 3:2 and 2:1 scores respectively.

Hunter leaves the league because the Hawks are unable to field a varsity team. Kings Point plans to play more military schools and therefore cannot meet league commitments. Maritime, the perennial cellar dweller, is unable to compete successfully in the loop.
