Curriculum Proposals Prepared for Faculty

A special Student Council committee, charged with suggesting changes in the school's curriculum for further study, presented its findings to the College's Committee to Plan for the Future yesterday.

In a long letter to the faculty council chairman, Professor Bernard Bellush (Uptown-History), the council group suggested changes in the Baruch School's curriculum requirements.

The special group, chaired by Alan Joseph Traum '64, a former editor-in-chief of The Ticker and an expert in the field, will ask that courses which it feels pertain only to certain specializations (e.g., accounting 102 and mathematics 182) not be required for all students.

It suggests that other courses, in which "patterns of thinking" are developed, and which are extensions of "general knowledge" (e.g., Philosophy 1 and Calculus) should be required of all.

A desire for a general toughening-up of the curriculum is indicated.

Free Tuition Fight Continues
In State Capitol and Locally

Tuition Policy Blocks Aid

The refusal of the Board of Higher Education to impose tuition at the senior colleges of the City University of New York appears to be an obstacle to the granting of additional state aid to the C.U. The increase in state aid would be utilized by the schools to meet the demand for expanded facilities caused by the large freshman class that will enter in 1964.

State Senator Marshall Mitchell and Assemblyman John E. Bass proposed legislation to an Education committee to expand facilities to meet the needs of this year's students.

"Given the funds we seek," he said, "we believe in the continued preservation of the free tuition policy.

The two lawmakers have placed bills in the legislature hopper that would grant $2.6 million by competing aid on the basis of 1964 enrollment instead of 1963 enrollment, and give $2.6 million to the expansion of graduate studies by lump-sum grants.

The budget proposed by Governor Rockefeller for the 1964-65 fiscal year contains $20 million for four-year colleges. This is an increase over last year of $3.1 million. His budget would also provide $2 million for the graduate program.

City Students Plan Action

Students from Uptown and Downtown City and Hunter Colleges will meet tomorrow at 10:30 in the Baruch School auditorium and proceed from there to distribute leaflets under every door in Assemblyman Paul J. Curran's (Rep., Man.) district.

The leaflets are to notify the voters in Curran's district that he voted against the discharge motion on the free tuition bill.

The discharge motion was to get the free tuition bill out of Assemblyman Fred Preller's (Rep., Queens) committee and on to the floor of the Assembly where the bill could be acted on.

Students Denied Right
To Stay at Concord

Uptown and Downtown students were prohibited by the Department of Student Life from spending any extra time at the Concord Hotel during the winter session vacation, according to its coordinator for the Concord, Mr. Landau '64, senior class president.

Mr. Landau had already paid the Concord for additional days, had his money refunded. The announcement that all City College students would be required to return on the buses which they came by the student coordinator caused a debate in the dining room during lunch on the last of the three day stay, January 26.

In related developments, Mr. Landau stated that it was a Department of Student Life ruling that no cars could drive to the Concord by car. He stated that (Continued on Page 10)

Record-Breaking Budget Set
For City University Students

The 1964-65 budget for the City University, embodying a 30.9% increase, was approved by the Board of Higher Education. The total request was $84,037,697, an increase of $4,237,697 over the current year's budget of $84,252,600.

Gustave G. Rosenberg, chairman of the Board, said that the request was designed to meet "a record-breaking public need for college-trained personnel at the very time when the number of high school graduates in this city tops all previous figures."

"Given the funds we seek," he continued, "the Board and the City University will not ask the students to meet the needs of this city on college and graduate levels.

Next year the increase in the number of high school graduates will increase substantially, the demand for matriculation in the colleges. To provide for additional students, the University is planning to add 15% to the capacity of the senior and community colleges.

Gustave G. Rosenberg
Budget raises to accommodate full-time matriculated students. A sum of $7,000,000 was appropriated to enable the seven colleges of the university to enroll 5,000 more freshmen next fall. The state has been asked to provide $2,783,000 as its share of this item.

The doctoral programs of the University are budgeted at $4,650,000, of which $2,5 million has been requested from the state and $2 million from the city.

Brooklyn, City, Hunter, and Queens will receive $24,796,584 for the proposed budget. Of this, $1,215,000 has been asked to provide 216 instructional positions for assistant and associate professors.

Revenue was also provided for the Staten Island, Queensborough, and for the two new community colleges scheduled to open next year.

The President Speaks: Council's Meaning

Jeffrey Levi

The Faculty has authorized a Student Council. We are thirty people who represent 3500 constituent members. We have no formal authority in the sense that we are supposed to do anything. But we do possess a mandate; who do the planning often are responsible for the execution of their planning and we represent the wishes of students. The student organizations sometimes operate in conflict with the faculty and administration; when this happens
the Student Council is responsible. The Student Council must always be aware of the students' intrinsic interest in teaching methods, curriculum, and the library. They have the responsibility of being aware of the students' intrinsic interest in teaching methods, curriculum, and the library.

The membership then are responsible not only for the students' intrinsic interest in teaching methods, curriculum, and the library but also for the continuance of the principles of the College. We have three purposes: to administer the principles of the College, to administer the principles of the College, and to determine the faculty and administration to determine the faculty and administration to cooperate.

BHE Response

With the ideas and implications of the working paper now before you, and after much thought, I would like to present some personal views on the current state of public higher education in this city and in the State of New York. I refer to the State University of New York and to the City University of New York, an institution of which I am a part. In my remarks I shall try to describe the need for some changes in the existing system, and to outline some of the alternatives which we shall be considering in the next year or two.

The City University of New York is an institution of approximately 110,000 students in 1964. It is a part of the City University of New York, which is a vast system of community colleges established by the State of New York for the educational benefit of the public. In 1964 and 1965 we have a few million dollars in capital expenditures on new buildings. This is the largest single expenditure in the history of the City University.

The City University of New York has a system of community colleges, and the State University of New York has a system of liberal arts colleges. These are the two major components of our system. The community colleges are the most important in the sense that they are the first in time and place. They are the most numerous, and they are the most accessible. They are also the most important in terms of enrollment and student population.

The community colleges are the most important because they are the first in time and place. They are the most numerous, and they are the most accessible. They are also the most important in terms of enrollment and student population. The community colleges are the most important because they are the first in time and place.  Regents React

The State Board of Regents, in December 1963, created the Tuition Task Force to study the question of free tuition. The Task Force recommended that the New York City Board of Education adopt a policy of free tuition, adjusted by scholarships where necessary, to create a major obstacle to the educational opportunities of students who could not afford to pay the cost of higher education in the State. This is eminently practical, the Task Force said, in view of the tuition policies of the State University of New York, which makes free higher education available to all New Yorkers who want it. The Task Force also recommended that the City Board of Education should adopt a uniform tuition policy. The anomaly now existing in the cost of tuition in the City University of New York (CUNY) institutions of the City University of New York, which make it possible to become teachers in the public schools at the free City colleges. It urged the action of the Board of Education in order to bring the tuition policies of CUNY in line with the tuition policies of the State University of New York.

Tuition Fight Continues

"There is another reason why the higher education in the State should not be exempted from the effects of the tuition policy of the State University of New York," said Dr. Bowker, the author of the text, "because the City University of New York is the only educational system in the United States that has a tuition policy that is not based on the cost of operation, but on the ability of students to pay.

Wagner Pledges Free Tuition

"We are proud and grateful," continued Dr. Bowker, "to announce that we have been able to negotiate a policy of free tuition for the students who are attending Wagner College, effective immediately. This policy is based on the belief that education is a right, not a privilege, and that every student who has the ability to attend college should have the opportunity to do so.

Tuition as an Obstacle

"Tuition fees," Dr. Bowker said, "are a major obstacle to the educational opportunities of students who are not able to pay them. We must remember that education is a right, not a privilege, and that every student who has the ability to attend college should have the opportunity to do so.

The proposed tuition rebate system, Dr. Bowker said, is an important step in this direction. It is a system that will help to increase the quality of education provided for every student, and will help to increase the number of students who are able to attend college.

City Upsets Wagner; But Bows To Pioneers

With all five starters scoring in double figures, the City College basketball team registered its biggest upset since the Fordham game of 1962 by defeating Wagner College 68-65. The Seahawks brought a 12-2 record into the game, which included a triumph over a highly rated N.Y.U.

C. W. Post thwarted City's bid for a second consecutive upset when it came from behind to defeat the Wagnerians 63-74.

City wasn't given much of a chance against Wagner, according to the local papers, but the Beavers outshot as well as outrebounded (44-26) the taller Seahawks, City hadn't beaten Wagner since 1956.

Behind the Scenes: Schedule Making Extensive Preparation Is Required

A few weeks ago Army announced that in 1969 it will meet Texas Christian University in football. City College's basketball schedule requires extensive preparation — but all five years.

This is the first in a series of articles dealing with the behind-the-scenes activities in City College basketball. The next article in the series features a story on the referees.

The hoop slate, however, is completed at least one year before the season opens. For example, in 1984-65 C.C.N.Y. will play eighteen teams, including three new opponents: University of Hartford, University of Rochester, and Hofstra College. Hofstra recently joined the "university" division of the Tri-State League, which also includes Adelphi; Bridgeport, City, Fairleigh Dickinson, Rider, I.L.U.; and Wagner (a new member).

According to Professor DesGrey, faculty manager, "We have to fit our league track record into the schedule./ Dr. DeaGrey and the next year the foe

C.C.N.Y. This home-and-away co-op program is fine, but the schedule is filled. The only way to fit the schedule is to break it into the league slate and the non-league slate.

The Beavers play three two-series opponents: league, traditional and non-league. The later categories include teams put on the schedule to fill non-league slots.
