Dear Editor,

I am writing to express my concerns about the recent developments in the House of Un-American Activities Committee. While I understand the committee's role in upholding the law and maintaining national security, I am troubled by the extent of its activities.

The committee's actions have raised serious questions about the protection of democratic rights. If the House Un-American Activities Committee wants to protect democracy, it must do so by limiting its scope and ensuring that its actions are transparent and fair. It cannot be the case that organizations are blacklisted simply because they oppose certain policies.

I think the main criticism of H.U.A.C. is that it does not punish the guilty. In fact, the committee has blacklisted organizations without the due process they deserve. This is unacceptable and goes against the principles of justice.

I urge you to consider the implications of the committee's actions. We should work towards a system where organizations are not penalized for their views, but rather for their actions. Only then can we ensure true democracy and freedom for all.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
Beavers To Meet LIU in Final Tilt; Will Be Cast in the Role of Spoiler

In just one week the City College baseball team fell from the peak of success to the valley of defeat. Last Saturday, the Beavers will meet the league leading Blackbirds of Long Island University—but not as competitors for the Conference crown. Instead, they will be cast in the role of spoilers.

Last week's loss against Brooklyn, one of the Beavers' top five season, will come as a shock to the home team. The Beavers, who had been leading the league for most of the season, will have to rely on their batting to keep up with the high-scoring offense of the Blackbirds.

Meanwhile, the St. John's University baseball team, who are currently leading the league, will face off against the Manhattan College baseball team in a crucial match up. The victory of the St. John's University baseball team will not only secure their position at the top of the league, but also put pressure on the Beavers who are currently in second place.

CCNY Tennis Team Roots For Brooklyn

Wednesday was an unusual day. The CCNY men's tennis team opposed Iona, favored Brooklyn, and competed against N.Y. U. The metropolitan championship hung in the balance. City hopes rested on the outcome of these events and Saturday's game against Pratt.

The most important game yesterday was original Brooklyn. The line-up was the same as it has been all year, except for the absence of Coach Seiden. The left-handers held a lab class Friday afternoon, so he will not be able to play in the double matches.

The play of second baseman Hayes was once again the highlight of the game. Hayes always considered an excellent base runner, a fine catcher, he has helped his teammates.

Coach Mishkin with his timely hitting, and his ability to keep cool under pressure showed. The Bears have been as good as expected, except for their tendency to knock any pitcher out of line. But their main weakness has been their lack of consistency.

For example, last Saturday, Ron Golembiewski was one of the best pitchers in the city, and the result was a 1-0 loss. With a couple of breaks he could have been 1-0.

The Bears' 'B' pitching staff—Howie Smith, Henik, Dave Minkoff and Bill Miller—has helped Sophomore Barry Mandel to adjust quickly. The failure of the important players to come through the way they were expected has been the main reason for the Bears' losing streak.

Hammering... the Bears' batting has been the most consistent. In league games, they have not done as well as they did last year.

The Bears have a number of strong players, but they have not come close to the potential they showed.

Co-Coach Seiden, in his return, said, "He has impressed me with his timing and his ability to keep cool under pressure. He has been as good as expected, except for his tendency to knock any pitcher out of line. But their main weakness has been their lack of consistency."

One of the Bears' players, Barry Mandel, who has a misleading 2-4 record, was elected the vice-president of the City College Athletic Association. He received 5% "yes" votes to 160 "no" votes.

Frank Cassidy and Richard Vespa were elected as the association's representatives to the association.

Baruchian Barry Mandel walks softly, carries a big glove

Baruchian Barry Mandel is a man that walks softly and carries a big glove. The CCNY baseball team optioned on Barry's play; says, "Barry has the best attitude and spirit a baseball player can have. He is well liked by his teammates and he keeps us every day."

Barry's is a left-handed man. As Coach Miskin says, "Barry has the best attitude and spirit a player can have. He is well liked by his teammates and he keeps us every day."

Barry was not outstanding as a freshman, but when spring training came around he proved himself. The coach started him right away because he could not keep the big glove out of the lineup.

Barry was asked how he liked playing for the BC baseball team. In response he said, "I love pitching for the team. I was the best player on the team and I have the big glove."

Baruchian Baseball remains at Baruch

The GCFAA motion was based on a recommendation of the team members of the Baruch School basketball team. The motion was resubmitted at the 1965-66 season.

Previously the Faculty Student Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics (GFCIA) had recommended dissolving Baruch basketball. This was at the time of the PSCA it seemed that there would not be sufficient time for the team to practice and compete. (2) Apparently there was not enough interest even among team members to warrant maintenance of the team; (3) It was reported that in previous years the attendance of players sometimes was as low as six.

However, Baruch basketball coach George Wolfe reported at the GFCIA meeting that this year attendance by players averaged about eleven.
