Baruch Leaves 1.75 Million To School That He Attended

"The passing of Mr. Bernard Baruch is a great loss to our nation, as well as to this college community which he loved so well," said Dean Emanuel Saxe upon the death of the statesman.

The noted financier, philanthropist, and "adviser to Presidents," who served as chief of a heart attack on June 29 at the age of 94.

The City College renamed its school of business in honor of Mr.
Baruch at a convocation October
5, 1953, in the School auditorium.

It was to this School that Mr.
Baruch left the majority of the fortune that he accumulated during his life. He bequeathed over $1.75 million to the School that bears his name.

William Killen: Adopts to His New Team

A coach must adopt to the talents of his players. If he attempts to manage his team any other way, a probable result will be failure.

William Killen, twenty-four year old graduate of West Chester State College in Pennsylvania, is beginning his first season as head coach of the City College basketball team. He sums up his coaching philosophy in a few words, "The best offense is a good defense.

However, the 1965 version of the Beaver booters will be a team loaded with offensive talent. Despite the presence of half-back Cliff Seas and goalie Walt Kopschilt, defensive standouts, it is the superior offensive players who will be the difference between a winning and losing campaign.

Consequently, Killen says, "I don't think you can define the terms at this time; its looks as though we will be relying mainly on our attack and the most offensive positions.

"My main problem will be getting the right people in the right positions," the coach added. "Once the backfield is set we will be ready. Coach Karlin left me with a very skilled team." Killen replaces Prof. Karlin who retired last January after nearly the lack of height, the coach called this team the most exciting he has ever led.

Leading scorer for City was junior Alan Zuckerman with 17.4 ppg. Although he is only 5-10, Zuck was also the second leading rebounder on the team, that was named to the all-City team. Sophomore Mike Pearl (12.5 ppg) showed promise. He was the only player to average in double figures.

Baseball

The Beaver "nine", touted as top New York City team, finished fifth out of forty teams in the Nation's Collegiate Athletic Association championship. Coach Lucia called this team the most exciting and was therefore surprised when the mentor of Beaver Jim O'Connell took the IC4A cross-country championship. The Beavers did finish in the sectionals, winning twenty five medals. Their total of 1143 was good enough to gain fourth place in the National standings.

Coach William Killen, CCNY soccer coach for eleven years, announced his retirement. During his tenure as head coach, the Beavers compiled an overall record of 133-22.
