Faculty Changes Set

Dr. Gadol Leaving Karis Announces To Teach Uptown Additions To Staff

After ten years of teaching at the Baruch School, Professor Joan Gadol (Sub-chairman, Hist.) will instruct solely at the Uptown campus as of September, 1966.

Professor Gadol, who said that she has enjoyed her years at the School "immensely" is moving Uptown because of the "greater variety of electives and equal opportunities available in the liberal arts school.

Individuals in the liberal arts departments naturally want to move Uptown at some time or other in order to "keep their field," the history instructor noted.

She added that many faculty members teaching liberal arts subjects were working on the paper to be published next semester.

Publication Plans for Bulletin Halted Due to Inconvenience Caused by Strike

The Baruch Bulletin will not be published this semester because of the strike, and the feasibility of printing on a regular basis fall, next term will be determined at a staff meeting today, Editor-in-Chief Irving Yankowitz 66 announced.

The paper was to appear today, Mr. Yankowitz said, but due to the strike, the editors were unable to go to their printer to assemble the paper.

Most of the material for the eight-page issue had been written, and Mr. Yankowitz noted that a reporter had started a reporter's file containing a schedule of final examinations and a list of instructors and the sections they will be teaching next term had been planned.

He announced that today at 10 a.m., all staff members and other interested in

St. John's Firings Assailed: Faculty, Students To Picket

"Members of the faculty and the student body of the Baruch School will take part in the protest against the administration of St. John's University today at Jamaica, announced Professor Aaron Levinstein (Mgt.), chairman of the Baruch chapter of the National Citizens' Committee to End Academic Freedom at St. John's University."

The protest against the firing of thirty-one professors by the university last month. A strike was called for January 23. To date, one action has been limited to picketing.

"The picketing will be represented by Professor Joan Gadol (Sub-chairman, Hist.), and a few students," Dr. Levinstein noted, "at the demonstration today. Many other people have expressed interest, but the transportation problem has limited our support.

"If it is decided to publish, Mr. Yankowitz said, "we will be on the picketing to contact him. He said that a group will be leaving the Baruch School in the spring of 1964. He substituted for Dean Samuel Thomas, who had to take leave in order to work on a special city problem."

At present Dr. Cohen is chairman of the Academic Freedom Committee of the American Civil Liberties Union, agreed with this analysis.

Professor Aaron Levinstein

"With the better schools, such as Harvard, Yale, and Mr. Kestenbaum noted, "it is the faculty who have the authority to make decisions."

"If this dismissal stands up," he added, "the "whole movement of the faculty gaining a larger voice will be retarded. The development of American Education will be retarded along with it."

At this point, the effect of the

Seven Baruch Faculty Receive Promotions

Seven Baruch School faculty members were promoted, effective January 1. The promotions were approved by the Board of Higher Education at its last meeting.

Attaining full professorships were: Professors Aaron Levinstein (Mgt.), Samuel Runnals (Great. Prof.), and David Valinsky (Stat.)

Associate professorships have been given to: Drs. Marvin Brown (Psych.), Alan Spiro (Econ., and Fraim), and Louis Joffen (Dept. Rep., Sociol.)

Mr. Raymond Kestenbaum (Speech.) was made an assistant professor.

Professor Kestenbaum received his B.A. from Columbia College and an M.A. and Ph.D. from Columbia University.

Also a member of the Committee on Research, Professor Spiro received his B.A. from Brooklyn College and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Columbia University.

The only member of the School's Germanic and Slavic Languages Department, Professor Joffen earned an M.A. at Brown University, a Ph.D. at Columbia University, and an M.S. at Yeshiva University.

Professor Kestenbaum is a member of the Faculty Ad Hoc Committee on Student Activities, and the faculty advisor to Student Council. He obtained a B.A. at the City College, an LL.B. at Brooklyn Law School, and an M.A. at New York University.

Good Luck On Finals
Thirty

The term "thirty" is a journalistic one that refers to the final issue of THE TICKER. It was the last issue of the magazine, which ceased publication after five volumes. This issue is significant as it marks the end of the magazine's run.

_Someone_ is grips with the text._

The TICKER was always a place where students felt comfortable sharing their thoughts and experiences. This issue, being the last, captures the essence of the magazine's legacy.

My colleagues and I have been working diligently to bring you the best possible issue. The content includes insightful articles, interviews, and reflections on the journey of THE TICKER.

I want to extend my sincere gratitude to all the contributors who have made this issue possible. Your dedication and passion are what have made THE TICKER a vital part of our community.

As we move forward, we hope to continue the legacy with even more innovative and thought-provoking content.

Thank you for being a part of this journey. We look forward to seeing where the future takes us.

Sincerely,

Hofstra Tops Hoopsters, 87-72; End Five Game Winning Streak

Because of the turnout, it took the Flying Dutchmen of Hofstra a long time to get to Wingate Hall Saturday night. But once they arrived the visitors were not to be stopped and they ended City’s five game winning streak, 87-72.

A highly partisan crowd of eight hundred fans welcomed the Beavers less than three game of the season. It was City’s second straight Tri-State Conference loss as they are now in fourth place.

Long Island University leads the league with a 3-2 record while Hofstra is third with a 3-2 slate.

The Beavers had trouble working the ball inside and they were forced to take shots from the outside. Unfortunately, the big Beaver shooters, guard Alan Zuckerman and Mike Pearl, were off the mark.

Hofstra, led by Mike Tilley and Mike Polish, allowed City to take shots at a time. They swept the boards clean.

The Beavers were far behind at the end of the first half, 45-30, and they never came close as they only traded baskets with the Dutchmen in the second half.

This was the first time this year that City was behind at the half.

A large part of the Beavers ineffectiveness was due to the fact that both Mike Pearl, the top scorer and Barry Eisenmann, the Beavers’ leading rebounder, were hit by an early accumulation of fouls in the first half.

Because of Pearl’s absence, City just kept the ball around and hit twenty-two out. Eisenmann’s loss helped Tilley to score thirty-nine points.

Tilley, the co-captain, who was having a very good season, was excellent. His shooting and ball control was a pleasure to watch — for the fans of the Dutchmen.

Despite the team’s overall performance, which was disappointing, and to say the least, there were some bright spots. Substitutes John Clifton, Richie Knel and Dave Schwartz, a freshman, all played well.

Violets Top City Partridges; Sophomores Are Improved

The City College fencing team was defeated by the New York University Violets, 16-11, Saturday at Wingate Hall. The Partridges now have a 1-3 record.

N.Y.U. has the top team in the country. Last year they finished in the first five nationally.

J.C.C.N.Y., the underdog coming into the match, fended extremely well, tying 9-9, at the end of the second round.

But in the final set, N.Y.U.
