Four-way Race Is Likely For SC Presidency; Three Students Petition for Second Position

Marc Berman
Allen Broslovsky
Jan Chason
Alan Wiener

These four students will probably contest the presidency of Student Council in the election for executives which will be held on May 4.

Views to Be Aired at Talk-out Tomorrow

The first session of the talk-out will be held tomorrow at 3 in 45.

The first session of the talk-out, at the request of the Student Council, was held Thursday at 9.

The session will begin at 9 and last until 10.

The Student Council has also scheduled the second session of the talk-out for tomorrow at 9.

Parties Make Statements

Platform Is Issued By 'Rights' Group

The newly-formed Student Rights Party has declared that it intends to "work with, but not be used by," the administration. This desire was expressed in the party's first policy statement which was prepared over the weekend at a meeting attended by members of the organization and released yesterday.

The party's method of working with the administration and faculty was discussed in an interview with Lenny Diener '67, the party's nominee for the vice presidency. "We hope to coordinate our demands with those of the Student Council, the Interfraternity Council, the faculty and the students. In this way Student Council, when it speaks, will not be autonomous from the student body, but will be a direct organ of the people whom it truly represents." Mr. Diener

Independents Set New Organization

A second political party has been formed at the School by Allen Broslovsky '67, Joe Slager '68, and Harry Wacht '67 to foster their "common interest for the good of the students and the School.

This statement of purpose was given by Mr. Broslovsky, who has taken out a petition for president of Student Council. He described these goals as being profits going to the World University Service.

He described these goals as being profits going to the World University Service.

He described these goals as being profits going to the World University Service.

He described these goals as being profits going to the World University Service.
Show Set for 'Strike City'

The Human Rights Society has joined in the efforts of a New Yorkwrite group which is presently preparing a play, "Strike City," which will be given at the United Temple Mission, Fifth Avenue and 117th Street, on Wednesday, April 24th. The play will be directed by Max Roach and the cast will include students from various colleges and university centers.

"Strike City" is a modern version of "The Jungle" by Upton Sinclair. It deals with the social and economic conditions of the working class in the United States today. The play will run for three performances: Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, at 8:00 p.m. Admission is free.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor of The Ticket:

I recently read an article in the New York Times about the Human Rights Society's plans to produce a play about contemporary social issues. As a student and a member of the society, I would like to express my support for this effort and encourage others to attend the performances."
Challenging the Hierarchy

By J. S. CAMERON

When our generation deals with another, the inauthentic consequence is often evident because there is a lack of respect and understanding. The trend toward self-esteem and confidence has led to a false sense of superiority. It is important to recognize that the hierarchy should not be taken for granted, but it is a system that must be challenged and redefined.

The purpose of this article is to explore the hierarchy and its role in society. We must understand the limitations and constraints imposed by this system. The goal is to challenge the status quo and create a more equitable and just society.

The hierarchy is a complex and multifaceted system. It is often based on factors such as wealth, race, gender, and religion. The hierarchy has been criticized for perpetuating inequality and discrimination. It is important to recognize that the hierarchy is not fixed and that it can be challenged.

There have been various attempts to challenge the hierarchy, such as the Civil Rights Movement and the Women's Liberation Movement. These movements have raised awareness about the limitations of the hierarchy and have led to significant changes.

In conclusion, the hierarchy is a system that must be challenged and redefined. It is important to recognize the limitations and constraints imposed by this system. The goal is to create a more equitable and just society.

Mardi Gras

This year's Mardi Gras, to be held on Saturday, February 16, promises to be the largest and most exciting yet. The theme of the event is "Carnival of the Rats," and it will feature a parade, live music, and a variety of carnival games.

The parade will begin at 3 p.m. and will proceed down Broadway, stopping at various locations along the way. Live music will be provided by a variety of bands, including the Mardi Gras Band and the Carnival Band.

The event is open to all, and there is no admission charge. The proceeds from the event will be used to support the local community center.

Defending Student Rights

There appears to be a significant disconnect between the administration and the students at the University of California. The recent controversy surrounding Professor Al is a case in point. The administration was not prepared to respond to the student demands, and the outcome was not what the students had anticipated.

In my opinion, the administration should have been more prepared to respond to the student demands. The administration should have been more transparent and open about its decision-making process. The outcome was not what the students had anticipated, and the administration should have been more prepared to respond.

In conclusion, the administration should have been more prepared to respond to the student demands. The administration should have been more transparent and open about its decision-making process. The outcome was not what the students had anticipated, and the administration should have been more prepared to respond.
Challenging the Hierarchy

The Ticker Staff (Continued from Page 1)

be derived from a partial analysis of the data. However, it is possible to make some generalizations about the organization of new student societies. In general, students who have been involved in previous student societies, have a better understanding of the problems that they are trying to solve. They are also more likely to have the necessary leadership skills to organize a new society. In addition, they are more likely to have the necessary resources, such as funds and facilities, to support the new society. Therefore, it is possible to predict that new student societies are more likely to be successful if they are organized by students who have been involved in previous student societies. However, it is also possible that new student societies can be successful if they are organized by students who have not been involved in previous student societies. In this case, the new student society may have to work harder to attract members and to raise funds and facilities. However, if the new student society is able to do this, it is possible that it can be successful.
The Beaver "nine" bowed to a determined Hofstra squad in the first round of the playoffs, losing 7-5, and now is 2-2.

City streaked to a 2-2 lead, but lost its edge in the final inning, requiring the game to go into extra innings. One extra stanza was all the Flying Dutchmen needed to secure their victory.

The Lavender's offensive attack once again proved stronger than that of the opposition, as they out-hit the Dutchmen 8-6. Overshadowing this display of power was a marked propensity towards standing men on base, and a poor showing by the relief staff.

Barry Leifer started the game for City, and once again he was impressive. Leifer entered the game with a 2.9-0 record, and pitched six innings of two run ball. Ron Rizzi, the club's number two starter, took over in the seventh, and was manhandled during his three- inning stint. He allowed the three runs.

Bob Engels relieved Rizzi in the ninth, and was promptly tagged with the loss. Engels has made three appearances this season, and has been battered each time. Tom Zaffuto, reliever for the tenth, replaced Engels. Bob Trimmer, a Hofstra reliever who entered the game in the ninth, was the winning pitcher.

The City relief staff has sent more runners home than the nine men in the order during all three of the five games played. Unhappily, the runners have not put out a catch, let alone a fire, thus far.

Seven home runs were hit in the game, with two of them coming off the bat of Rizzi. Of the other five, one was by third baseman Dave Minkoff, who last year finished the season with a .188 batting average. Frank Petrella, Hofstra's catcher, also connected twice, the last one accounting for the winning pair of runs.

City College dropped below the .500 mark for the third time in the early going. The baseballers own a 2-3-0 record, with both victories belonging to Leifer. The sophomore inherited the number one starting position as a result of two strong performances against Hunter and Brooklyn Colleges.

Mishkin maintained it with his fine effort in the Bushwicks battle. Rizzi had been number one, but has been shaky, and holds an 0-2 record.

It was a close game, and the Beavers against Iona College this afternoon at Macombs Dam Park. Last season the Lavender emerged victorious in a closely fought 2-1 battle. The visitor's last appearance was on Saturday, when they lost 5-0 to Manhattan College 6-5.

On Saturday the Beavers will play host to Seton Hall College. This weekend, they face N.Y.U. Monday, they will face N.Y.U. at home.

One thing that no one can ever say about Sol Mishkin, the Beaver baseball coach, is that he lacks experience. Being connected to City College Mishkin played professional and major league ball for many years.

After graduating Phi Beta Kappa from Occidental College in 1927, Mishkin signed to play professional ball with San Francisco. For the next seven years the baseball mentor also played for Jersey City and Montreal, as he worked towards his masters at Teachers College, Columbia University. Mishkin received his MA in 1932.

After Montreal Mishkin went to the Brooklyn Bushwicks, a semi-professional team. From 1934 to 1943 he starred for the Bushwicks, which played before crowds larger than those which witnessed the then Dodgers games. When Mishkin retired from his active participation in 1943, he found it too hard for himself to leave the game, so he signed to manage Wellsville in the PONY League, Erinn Wellsville the freshmen coach, moved to Canadian American League. In 1944, Mr. Mishkin became the baseball coach at City, and until 1954 he posted a 67-63-3 record, including a Metropolitan Conference Title in 1953. Mishkin did not coach the Beaver "nine" again until 1963, when he served as an interim coach for a few games. Overall Mishkin's record as a coach of the baseball team is a winning 87-85-2.

Last year the squad compiled a 4-6-0 record, as it finished 6-6 overall. There is much talk this year of City College basketball drawing from the Metropolitan Conference, due to the increasing strength of the other schools in the league, as many of them offer athletic scholarships, which City does not.

Concerning withdrawing from the league, Mishkin would first like to see the collegiate teams drop the amateur or semi-pro slant to the game, and then discuss the matter. Presently his team possesses a 2-2 record. No matter how you look at it, the professional player-turned-coach has a hard time ahead of him, especially when his team's pitching is poor, and the hitters are just not connecting. The most that the School can hope for is that Sol Mishkin continues his winning ways while remaining at City.

Mentor Has Professional Experience

Coast Sol Mishkin

Winning baseball mentor

In the Ponry League, Erinn Wellsville the freshmen coach, moved to Canadian American League. In 1944, Mr. Mishkin became the baseball coach at City, and until 1954 he posted a 67-63-3 record, including a Metropolitan Conference Title in 1953. Mishkin did not coach the Beaver "nine" again until 1963, when he served as an interim coach for a few games. Overall Mishkin's record as a coach of the baseball team is a winning 87-85-2.

Last year the squad compiled a 4-6-0 record, as it finished 6-6 overall. There is much talk this year of City College basketball drawing from the Metropolitan Conference, due to the increasing strength of the other schools in the league, as many of them offer athletic scholarships, which City does not.

Concerning withdrawing from the league, Mishkin would first like to see the collegiate teams drop the amateur or semi-pro slant to the game, and then discuss the matter. Presently his team possesses a 2-2 record. No matter how you look at it, the professional player-turned-coach has a hard time ahead of him, especially when his team's pitching is poor, and the hitters are just not connecting. The most that the School can hope for is that Sol Mishkin continues his winning ways while remaining at City.

The Beavers make up their lineup with a core of returning veterans who have proven themselves in the past. The 1-2-3 infield of Masters, Engels and Trimmer is as strong as ever, and the hitting attack is bolstered by the addition of Rizzi and Petrella. The pitching staff, led by Leifer, is solid, and the defense is consistently strong.

Netmen Continue Streak; Defeat LIU For Fifth Win

The Beavers beat Hofstra 7-6 in extra innings on Saturday afternoon in the final game of the season. The game was tied 3-3 after nine innings, and the teams went to extra innings, where the Beavers gained the upper hand with a decisive 4-0 win. This victory extended the team's winning streak to five games, matching their best for the season.

The game was a nail-biter, with both teams putting up a strong showing. Hofstra led 7-6 in the 12th inning, but the Beavers rallied to tie the game and force a continuation to the 14th inning. The decisive moment came when the Beavers scored four runs in the bottom of the 14th, securing the victory.

The winning pitcher was Leifer, who pitched an outstanding game, allowing only three earned runs in 10 innings. The relief work of Rizzi and Petrella was also crucial in holding Hofstra to just three runs in the game.

The victory was a significant milestone for the Beavers, who have now matched their best winning streak of the season. The team's focus will now shift towards the upcoming conference championships, where they hope to continue their momentum and secure a strong position in the standings.

The Beavers' next game will be on Monday, April 27, against a tough opponent. The team is looking to build on their recent success and maintain their winning ways as they aim for a strong performance in the conference finals.