Mass Student-Faculty Strike Is Slated To Protest 'Perils' of Vietnam War

Plans are now being announced for a demonstration by Long Island University students and faculty Monday — deemed "Save L.I.U. Day" — as part of "plans for a mass protest at several sites including Board of Higher Education Headquarters.

The purpose of the demonstration is to pressure members of the B.E.H. to put on their agenda at as soon as possible" the proposed sale of L.I.U.'s Brooklyn Center to the City University.

A delegation of five faculty members and seven students presented a letter urging the C.U. to build additional facilities rather than purchase the Brooklyn Center.

Mr. Bowker told members of the delegation that negotiations of the sale have not yet begun, and that it would take at least six months to iron out all of the difficulties.

Treasurer Notes Irresponsibility

Student Council, in a closed 11-to-9 vote, Thursday rejected Paul Rogoff's resignation as its treasurer.

Despite the Council's actions, Mr. Rogoff has maintained his resignation as its treasurer.

With By Special to the Ticker, the Council has set up procedures for the Spanish Inquisition in the guise of fact-finding when three members of the Finance Committee Appeal Board (Mr. Berger, Mr. Schechter and Mr. Faber) decided to individually interrogate members of the Ticker Association and Professor Wino.

The Apathetic Baruch Student

Sagarin and Bauer

Lead Seminar

Apparently, there is one group of students at Baruch College who are not interested in the usual activities such as parties and social events. These students are the的对象 of a new group called the "Apathetic Baruch Student." This group is led by Professors Sagarin and Bauer and is designed to provide an alternative social outlet for these students.

The group is focused on promoting a sense of community and support among the students, and on providing a space for them to engage in meaningful activities. The group organizes events and activities that are designed to be more intellectually stimulating and less focused on traditional social events.

Meetings are held regularly, and the group is open to all students who are interested in participating. The group is also open to new members who wish to join and be a part of the community.

Growth of The Basement

The Basement, run by the Baruch Christian Association, is a non-profit meeting place. It is usually held in the basement of John F. Kennedy Hall by groups such as the Students for Democratic Society, the Student and Alumni Association, and the Student Health and Welfare Committee. The basement is open every Tuesday and Thursday during regular business hours, and it is open every Sunday from 3-6 P.M. The basement is free and open to all who wish to attend. The Christian Association is working on a way to make The Basement a vital part of the school. One of the main goals of the Christian Association is to continue providing a forum for activities with other religious organizations in order to give students a chance to explore their faith. The Basement is open every Tuesday from 3-6 P.M. and Thursday from 6-9 P.M.

Resigned to Change

The resignation this week of the student council president at Baruch College, Student Council treasurer, comes as no surprise to the students. The vote by the Student Council not to reelect Miss Bernice Berger as president was not unexpected. It is the second time in three years that Miss Berger has been denied the office of Student Council president.

While Miss Berger has probably acted in good faith in the case of the Volunteers for Peace and the anti-war activities of the Student Council, some students feel that her activities have brought her into conflict with the administration of the college. Some students feel that the administration is too lenient in its handling of the Volunteers for Peace and that it should do more to prevent the spread of this type of organization.

The administration, on the other hand, feels that the Volunteers for Peace are not a threat to the college and that the administration is doing all it can to prevent the spread of this type of organization. They feel that the administration is doing all it can to prevent the spread of this type of organization.

Strictly for Fun

A well-made comedy, that's what "Broadway" is all about. In the double-bill, "He's All That," with Kenneth Mars, and "The Searchers," with John Wayne, "Broadway" seems to be a real winner.

"He's All That" is a film about a man who is a "try-hard" at work, but a "laid-back" at home. He's really a "try-hard" at home, but a "laid-back" at work. His wife, played by Eva Marie Saint, is really a "laid-back" at home, but a "try-hard" at work. The film is a fast-paced, well-made comedy, that is entertaining, than it is to conclude: the worst director and actors bring a new focus of comedy.

CUNY ANNOUNCES ACTIONS TO COMBAT USE OF DRUGS

By MAURICE ROBIN

Dean Alton W. Brooks, chancellor of The City University, has announced the formation of a "Special Council on the Use of Drugs," to begin its work on March 19-20.

The council's membership will be announced shortly. It will be composed of students, faculty, and staff members, and will be appointed by Dean Brooks.

The council will be charged with the responsibility to make recommendations to the chancellor regarding the use of drugs on campus.

Dean Brooks has stated that the council will be a "listening" body, and that its recommendations will be "advisory" in nature.

The council will be expected to meet at least once a month, and to report its findings to the chancellor on a regular basis.

Dean Brooks has also stated that the council will be expected to "study the problem from all sides," and to come to a "balanced" solution.

The council's work will be confidential, and its recommendations will not be binding on the chancellor.

Dean Brooks has also stated that the council will be "independent," and that it will not be "controlled" by any other agency.

The council will be expected to make recommendations to the chancellor, and to the board of trustees, regarding the use of drugs on campus.

Dean Brooks has stated that the council will be "a means to an end," and that its ultimate goal will be to "prevent the use of drugs on campus."
"I wanted to work for a small company. It may sound crazy, but that's why I went with IBM."

"When I was in school, I dreaded the thought of being a manager. As a systems engineer, it's important to do a job that you like. Jim, who has a B.S. in Electrical Engineering, is in placement at IBM. For instance, in science and engineering, they use the small company concept. It means, no matter how large the project is, you work individually or as part of a small team—about four people. It's up to you to find the solution to a customer's problem, no matter how large the project. No, I didn't consider it sound crazy, but that's why I went with IBM."

The City College tracksters, minus a key operator and plus an injury coming, were fit to tie in Saturday's Collegiate Track Conference Championships at Fitzgerald Gym at Queens College—tied for first, that is.

The Beavers gained thirty-one points, the most with host Queens and Kings Point for victory honors. St. Peter's came home just two points behind the leading trio.

The key operative missing was Skip Johnson. Skip, a fine performer in the 60-yard dash and a top relay runner, has taken a leave of absence from the College. His presence could have easily meant victory for City.

The angry coach was, of course, Francisco Castro. Castro felt that a Kings Point runner should have received 880-yard relay for running out of his area. Had Castro's protest been upheld (it was not) the seamen would have had to forfeit their second place finish in that event. Had that occurred, City would have moved up from third and, thus, won the meet.

The Lavender gained two individual victories, both coming in the field events.

BEAVER POLE VAULTER Navin win in Collegiate Track Conference

Karl Birmaj, who has won almost everything he entered this year, took the 31-pound, weight throw with a toss of 49 feet 6 inches. Birmaj thus repeated his triumph of one year ago in the same event. Navin Gordon was the other Beaver victor. The sophomore cleared 11 feet 6 inches to win the pole vault.

The 'Beavers led C.W. Post, 13-11, after the field events. The Pioneers, however, faltered during the track portion of the program.

Don Davis turned in his second consecutive fine effort in the 600-yard run with a time of 1:16.7, which placed him third.

Gordon Scales 11 feet 6 inches in Championship, City tied for first.

Andy Ferrara placed third in the mile with a time of 4:40.5. Peter Schnurr came home fourth in the 800-yard run.

Virtually all of theBeaver winners were in the individual events. Gordon, who won the pole vault, the 800-yard run, and the mile, narrowly lost in the 3200-yard run to the host school's Brian Birns thus repeated his triumph of one year ago in the same event.

Women Hoosters End Year At 11-1

The Philadelphia 76ers of City College—the women's basketball team—won its final two games of the campaign to close the season with an 11-1 mark, the best in City College history. The Beaverettes' lone defeat came at the hands of Hunter on opening day.

The hoopsters extended their winning streak to eleven with a 44-40 triumph over Molloy on March 7 and a 42-37 victory over Adelphi, March 14. The season finale was played Uptown at Park Gym.

Jean Ebert paced the eager women's basketball team which Coach Roberta Costin called: "the best we've played all season."

The hoopsters trailed at the end of three quarters, 28-27, before rallying. An Ann Jacobs layup gave the hosts the lead but Adelphi came back to even the score at 31-all. It was the last time that Adelphi would come back.

Miss Ebert, C. Montanez and V. Linder each won a match, carrying the Beaverettes to their well-earned and richly-deserved victory.

Miss Ebert scored 19 points while Miss Linder had 9 for the game early and were never really pressed until a late fourth quarter rally by the hosts. The 76ers, six points behind in the final four point margin of victory, which the visitors enjoyed.
