Lindsay Suggests Baruch Site; Strongly Opposes Sale of LIU

Atlantic Terminal

It now appears that a new site — the Atlantic Terminal Urban Renewal Area — will be given serious consideration by the Board of Higher Education for the future location of the new Baruch College.

Mayor Lindsay, in announcing Wednesday his opposition to the proposed sale of Long Island University's Brooklyn Center to the City University, suggested that the proposed site in Crown Heights was available as a possibility. The location, Mr. Lindsay indicated, would be within a triangular-shaped area bounded by Atlantic, Vanderbilt and Flatbush Avenues.

Dr. Albert Bowker, chancellor of the C.U., said that after consideration of the recommendations of the C.U.'s Advisory Committee on the New Baruch College, the Board of Trustees would decide on the site.

With the mayor's announcement, the turmoil that has engulfed L.I.U.'s Brooklyn Center reached greater proportions as proponents and critics of the sale continue to wage a bitter struggle.

Mayor John Lindsay Proposes New Site

The conflict erupted last fall when L.I.U. proposed the sale. After the sale was approved by the L.I.U. Board of Trustees, protests were made by students, faculty, and the Brooklyn community. The protests were renewed in December when Mayor Lindsay called for a moratorium on the sale, expressing a desire to sit down with the Mayor. "I'd like to see what avenues of hope he might offer to L.I.U.," said Dr. Hoxie, who maintained that his "mind is still open."

Mayor Will Meet With Trustees

Long Island University's Board of Trustees are expected to meet with Mayor Lindsay to discuss the proposed sale of its Brooklyn campus to the City University.

In the aftermath of the Mayor's announced opposition to the sale, a $32 million price tag, the Board has felt a need "to harmonize our views."

John McGrath, chairman of the Board, said Wednesday that Mr. Lindsay "may have been influenced by mis-information." He added that the "same" educational objectives were being served by an additional $5 million in the Johnson and the Board, and that the sale of the center was the only way to achieve these objectives.

Students Ready For Friday's Strike; Support Pledged by Many in Faculty

At least several hundred on-campus faculty and students have announced their intention to participate in the strike.

Two months of intensive on-campus activities of the strike, come to head at the end of the week. Spokesmen for the committee are optimistic.

"We expect a tremendous turnout," said one committee member. Another said that "all those who want peace should and will support the strike."

In a recent development in the plans for Friday's activities, the committee learned that it will not be permitted to use a public address system. The police department informed the committee that the device was a necessary part of the school's fire regulations which state that such a system cannot be set up within five-hundred feet of a public building.

However, persons are expected to speak (or shout, as one committeeman put it) during the rally outside the School at about 11 A.M. Paul O'Dwyer, who is opposing Jack Hajeski for City States Senator, will be among the speakers, who will represent the students and the faculty.

Boycott Classes - But Strike

Students from the Business School, just as the science groups throughout the campus, have decided that the boycott of the strike on this campus requires our support. The large number of students involved in classes will be considerably less.

Student-run Bookstore

If the current indications are accurate, the bookstore probably will be opened next semester. Of all the proposed changes, the bookstore is most important for the student. The student-run store will be a response to the lack of personal attention by the bookstore staff. The students' total control over the bookstore will be reflected in the quality of the store, the services it offers, and the customer service.

Books are needed for the bookstore. The students have donated a small collection of books, but they need more books to start the store. The students are asking the students to supply them with books.

Blood is Needed

The Inter-Fraternity Council and the American Red Cross will again hold their blood drives this spring. The students are asked to participate in these drives, as the continuing need for blood is essential.

Dr. King's Cause

After seven long years, every book, article and film about Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has been published. One question remains: Is there an understanding of his cause?

Lavender Baseballers Gain Five Straight Wins

By PHIL WAXBERG

After suffering crushing defeats at the hands of N.Y.U. and Columbia in their first two games, the City College baseball team was roaring back to win five straight games in eight days over the Easter vacation. The Beavers are now 5-2 overall, and 3-0 in Metropolitan Collegiate Conference play.

Starting pitchers Andy Sebor and Ron Rizzi and relievers Danny Collins and Bob Director combined to hold Lavender opposition to 13 runs while fasing Poris, Bernie Martin and Steve Mazza capped out timely hits to win close games.

The streak began on Saturday, April 13 when Rizzi looked up with Fairleigh Dickinson's Ken Calabrese in a rematch of last fall's pitching duel in Teaneck. The Beavers scored first blood when Bernie Martin honored over the left-field fence in the bottom of the second.

Sebor moved ahead in the fourth inning when, with men on second and third, catcher Charlie Kolonik's pickoff attempt went off the wall, and Kolenik's pickoff attempt went off the wall. Ruth Field on Tuesday intent on giving the Beavers a 6-4 win and their fourth straight victory. Coadh Sol Mishkin and his men to drive in Richter and later scored on a two out single by Poris to return to their home at Babe Ruth Field.

In the ninth inning in Boston, third baseman Mike Spence was ruled out on a hardDataStream to the left side of the infield. With the score still locked in the ninth, Martin took the mound for the third time this season but left the game after six innings with a 3-0 lead. Once again the Beavers waited until the final innings to pull the game out of the fire. Bob Names led off the eighth and reached on an error. Rizzi singled sending him to third and Names scored on an error by the pitcher to tie the game. The Lavender won the game in the ninth when Mazza singled, stole second, went to third on a ground ball to the right side and scored on another out single by Poris.

When asked how far he thought this team could go, Coach Mishkin was non-commital saying, "You can't tell until all the games have been played." Richter and Rizzi were more confident. "As long as our pitchers keep us close we'll win," said Richter. "We've got good pitching and the best 3-4-5 hitters (Names, Poris and Rizzi) in the league." Richter's comment, "There's no reason for us not to win the conference."

City Stops Hartwick After Pioneer Defeat

Rebounding from a pre-vacation defeat, the City College lacrosse team rallied for four final quarter tallies to defeat Hartwick, 14-9, Saturday.

The Lewisohn Stadium-galvaned victory lifted the stickmen's card to 3-1. Their only defeat came at C.W. University, Thursday, and Long Island University campus to play their third game in as many days.

The Lavender's second solo homer of the day, this one by Poris in the sixth, tied the game, but Bernie Martin opened the inning with a homer to start the second and third, catcher Charlie Kolonik's pickoff attempt went off the wall. Ruth Field on Tuesday intent on giving the Beavers a 6-4 win and their fourth straight victory.

The Lavender was quite so fortunate against C.W. Post, however. The Beavers did give the heralded Pioneers trouble and left them to luck when the first collected 18 hits and 12 runs to back up the six hit pitching of Rizzi. With the score still locked in the ninth, Martin took the mound for the third time this season but left the game after six innings with a 3-0 lead. Once again the Beavers waited until the final innings to pull the game out of the fire. Bob Names led off the eighth and reached on an error. Rizzi singled sending him to third and Names scored on an error by the pitcher to tie the game. The Lavender won the game in the ninth when Mazza singled, stole second, went to third on a ground ball to the right side and scored on another out single by Poris.
