Students and faculty members discussed the future of the Baruch College in a talk-out held last Thursday in the Auditorium. Although few students attended, Professor Briloff said those who did found the issue of segregation most disturbing.

New Admissions Policy For Top Ghetto Students

The Board of Higher Education has voted to guarantee senior college admission to the top 100 students in each of the city's public academic high schools, regardless of the diploma earned or their high school grades.

Although most of the 6,000 students who would be eligible for this new admissions standard would have to attend a feasible or a private school, a few ghetto students would come from schools that have predominantly minority enrollments.

The request was an attempt to remove the formal, time-consuming procedures due to the immediate nature of the cause. Council, however, favored the constitution, a vote necessary to consider the request. As a point of information, all charity drives must be cleared through the Charity Drive Committee. The Committee may select up to seven bids. Bids for the term charity drives will be accepted through this afternoon. The Committee is in the area of 5:10, and will be delayed, if it was to be approved.

TO THE EDITOR,

We want to appeal to all students to be present for our rally at 3:00 on THURSDAY, OCT. 10 in the Baruch College's MAIN LOBBY, the basement. The purpose of this rally is to support the students of Yeshiva University in their effort to have a full-time and part-time jobs for all students who want them. We believe that full-time and part-time jobs should be available to all students who want them, and we are appealing to the students of Baruch College to support this effort.

Yours truly,

The Two Percent Who Care

Last Thursday the students of the Baruch College were given a chance to help shape the future of the institution. There were no more than a few students there at the time, and the floor was completely open to student voices. The discussion was good in that it showed the students were interested in the debate, but it was too bad that there were so few there at the time. It was too bad that there were so few students who participated in the debate and that the discussion was not better attended.

Speaking of events last Thursday and reasons for not attending the Talk-Osc — it is hard to imagine students being interested in the debate if they are not there to hear it. And it is also hard to imagine the debate being well attended if there are so few students there. So it is hard to imagine the debate being well attended if there are so few students there.

The action of our Student Council this week is most instrumental in bringing about the change that is needed in the Baruch College. It was good in that it marked the beginning of a dialogue that can help us help ourselves to understand the problems that will arise in the next few years. But the action of our Student Council this week is most instrumental in bringing about the change that is needed in the Baruch College.

Eight Vie For Class Representative

KINDA COHEN

Baruch College is a new school, with new faculty, new old students, new buildings and a new way for the Class to elect its students. It's the first year ever that we have a student government. No other class in the school that I have attended in the past has had any form of student government. I believe that this school spirit and improving our own distinct college fits which will make our four years of college much farther and achieve greater things. When we, as freshmen, join the Class of 1972 can dedicate itself to the goal and I urge everyone to vote for me to be up to you.

IKE KAYEST

I am running for freshman representative so that the freshman's class. He is important, its growth. Give me the opinions of the student and I urge everyone to vote for me to be up to you.

NADIA LUCK

I would like to thank all Baruch students who provided a feeling of unity among the freshmen in the first year. The freshmen are not all available to a student. The freshmen are the core of the college. This idea must be fully understood before the freshmen.

WILLIAM ZACHARY

Baruch College is an interesting, a definite lack of student participation. There has been a lot of this in the freshmen. I believe that all freshmen are interested in the freshmen. There are things I favor, but all those things and more have been accomplished by the student council. I will fight for more. I will fight for more. I will fight for more.

PARKER CUMMINGS

I believe that the Class of 1972 can dedicate itself to the goal and I urge everyone to vote for me to be up to you.

BRUCE ROSEN

I believe that the Class of 1972 can dedicate itself to the goal and I urge everyone to vote for me to be up to you.

ROSLYN FLEISCHMAN

I believe that the Class of 1972 can dedicate itself to the goal and I urge everyone to vote for me to be up to you.

LEWIS BERNSTEIN

I believe that the Class of 1972 can dedicate itself to the goal and I urge everyone to vote for me to be up to you.

MIKE FUHR

I believe that the Class of 1972 can dedicate itself to the goal and I urge everyone to vote for me to be up to you.

BARRY TABACHNICK

I believe that the Class of 1972 can dedicate itself to the goal and I urge everyone to vote for me to be up to you.

MAKE IT HAPPEN!

Baruch's TUTORIAL PROGRAM is on the launching pad again this year. You can make it happen by doing your share to help those who need your efforts.

The program focuses on providing schools and organizations in the local community with volunteers to help those children who require just a bit more time and attention in order to master their learning problems.

Can you lend a hand to help them? You'll find your world grows a little larger when you take an interest.

Please detach and complete the form below. Bring it to the Student Council office in the Long Library

I am interested in joining the Tutorial Program as an instructor.

PEACE IN THE MIDDLE EAST — IS IT POSSIBLE?

A LECTURE BY DR. NASROU.AH

True, his body is still here. And he converses with others. And he makes small talks about politics and such. And he speaks to us, occasionally, of his God and love. But he is so remote now. And he has turned his back on the rest of us. And we haven't heard from him in so long... And we haven't heard from him in so long... And we haven't heard from him in so long...

The American League's Most Valuable Player in 1960 and '61: He knocked in 112 runs in 1960 and 142 in 1961. He won the baseball world. But why? There is a great need for new leadership in this country.

Boy: Why? Ed: Because the people or person who can baseball in 1961 said that Maris would have to 61 home runs to break the record.

Boy: But isn’t a season a season? Ed: Of course it is. You have to realize that the people who write baseball are tradition-minded; so are many of the respectable writers. When this newcomer Maris threatened to break baseball’s most sacred record, held by its most sacred performer, the Commissioner made his ludicrous asterisk notation that only once during the '62 season, the writers badgered him constantly.

Boy: What did the Yankees have to do with this? Ed: We had to give him a “Day”.

Boy: Did the Yankees ever give him a “Day”? Ed: The Yankees gave him next to nothing. He gave more to the Yankees and baseball than the Yankees and baseball gave to him. I wonder if it’s just a coincidence that he has played in more World Series than anyone else since 1960. He’s a winner.

Boy: He was retiring? Ed: He’s had enough. He has done nearly everything that can be done in baseball. He did something in 1961 that no man could ever duplicate again. Few people in any walk of life can even think that much—much less do it. He is getting out while he is on top and happy. I will miss him.

Boy: But isn’t a season a season? Ed: You see when Ruth hit sixty homers he played in a 154 game schedule. In 1961 the teams played 162 games each.

Boy: Where did he go? Ed: He’s had enough. He has done nearly everything that can be done in baseball. He did something in 1961 that no man could ever duplicate again. Few people in any walk of life can even think that much—much less do it. He is getting out while he is on top and happy. I will miss him.
