Black Heritage And Culture Exposition Due Next Week

The Afro-American Society of the Baruch College will present a five-day exposition of Black heritage and culture during Black Week, October 21-25. Art exhibits, poetry readings, dramatic performances and films will be featured.

Monday's and Wednesday's programs will feature a series of films. Outstanding among these is Heritage of the Negro, a thirty-minute production narrated by Osie Davis. The civilization and achievements of ancient Africa and their significance for the Negro today are explained. The film discusses art and sculpture of ancient Sub-Saharan Africa and shows some present-day ritual and pagentry which reflects the old customs.

Eve of the Beholder illustrates the old maxim that no two people see the same thing in the same way. Individual conditioning influences the eye of the beholder.

Harvest of Shama will also be shown Thursday. This is the last film in Murrow's shocking on-the-scene documentary series. This film reveals the exploitation of migratory farm workers in the United States.

Other films to be shown include Mabel and Free at Last. All movies are scheduled for room 4 South.

Cerebral Palsy Buys R.C.A. C.U.N.Y. Plans Condemnation

The RCA Building was sold to the Cerebral Palsy Foundation of New York City on September 17, for undisclosed amount.

The Foundation said it was the first step in a program of acquiring the property condemned under the right of eminent domain for use by Baruch College. Baruch had planned to turn the first two floors into classrooms; three floors were to be offices, and one, a Community Center, and one, for storage space. The college had expected to occupy the building early in the winter of '70.

The City University has been in the process of finding the property condemned under the right of eminent domain for use by Baruch College. Baruch had planned to turn the first two floors into classrooms; three floors were to be offices, and one, a Community Center, and one, for storage space. The college expected to occupy the building early in the winter of '70.

The City University indicated that at the time of the condemnation proceedings, however, Leo Hausman, president of the Cerebral Palsy Foundation of New York City, pointed out that the actual purchase price of the building was $1 million.

Other members of the Committee are Professors Seina, Berrol, History, Abraham, J. Briloff, Accounting; Edwin Hill, Mathematics; Aaron Levenstein, Management; Austin J. O'Leary, Physics.
Head Of Students For Humphrey From N.S.A.

O'Toole, immediate past vice president of the United States National Student Association, was selected to serve as national chairman of the Humphrey-Muskie campaign. He replaced Senator George McGovern, who recently resigned to devote full time to the campaign.

One of the first acts of the new national chairman was to set up a National College Committee to be headed by Richard Selzer, director of the National Student Association and executive director of the Students for Harriman-Muskie Committee. The committee will serve as a conduit to Humphrey and the campaign headquarters in New York City.

The Middle East From The Arab View

At Baruch discussions on the situation in the Near East are increasing. It is an attempt to provide a more balanced picture of the Arab world. The Middle East is now seen as a "troubleshooter" — finding out who is responsible for the many problems that exist. It is hoped that this will lead to a better understanding of the region.

A Liberal Arts Proposal

The problems of establishing a Liberal Arts Curriculum for the Baruch College are many. Among them is the question of the degree that should be given the first graduating class.

To deal with these problems Professors Thomas has appointed a subcommittee—consisting of those who want to transfer to Baruch College from the old City College, and those who want to stay at the old City College. The subcommittee, in its final report, has recommended the following plan:

1. The first graduating class may receive the BA degree, and the second class may receive the BS degree.

2. The decision to transfer to Baruch College is up to the student, and he may make up the necessary requirements to transfer to Baruch College.

3. The decision to transfer to Baruch College is up to the student, and he may make up the necessary requirements to transfer to Baruch College.

5. The decision to transfer to Baruch College is up to the student, and he may make up the necessary requirements to transfer to Baruch College.

6. The decision to transfer to Baruch College is up to the student, and he may make up the necessary requirements to transfer to Baruch College.

Under the new plan departments are broken down into three divisions:

1. Economics, Political Science, Psychology, and Sociology.

2. Law.

The formation of the Afro-American Society at Baruch College is a very important event in the history of the school. It is not a group of students who are interested in politics, but a group of students who are interested in the study of black history, and the advancement of black people.

The society is not a club, but it is a movement. It is a group of black students who are interested in the study of black history, and the advancement of black people. It is not a club, but it is a movement. It is a group of black students who are interested in the study of black history, and the advancement of black people.

We have also considered the question of integration. After a good deal of soul searching, we realize that the integration of the two groups would not be easy. There would be many difficulties, and we cannot promise that they would be overcome. But we do promise that we will do our best to make the integration a success.

We hope that our readers will agree with us in this matter, and that they will support the society in its efforts to integrate.

A Free Press

Academic institutions exist primarily to provide a means of education. They are the schools of thought, the centers of knowledge, the repositories of truth. They are the places where the young are trained in the ways of the world. They are the nurseries of democracy. They are the crucibles of the community.

But if academic institutions are to fulfill these functions, they must be free. They must be free to express their ideas, to debate their opinions, to question their authority. They must be free to publish their findings, to distribute their ideas, to disseminate their knowledge.

The free press is the cornerstone of a free society. It is the means by which the public is informed, the means by which the public is entertained, the means by which the public is educated. It is the means by which the public is able to make informed decisions, to participate in the political process, to hold the government accountable.

The press is under attack. The government is压制 it, the corporations are controlling it, the advertisers are influencing it, the public is losing its trust in it. But the press must remain free, for it is the only hope for a free society.

Thank You

One of the most difficult tasks facing academic councils and SCAC each term has been finding a fair method to distribute the arts to the club program. This term's method has been left to the discretion of the various clubs.

A fellow that I am well acquainted with terminated a five year romance last October. He was rather shaken up, but being an intelligent person, he set down, what he thought was the proper course of action. He wasn't going to do anything rash, he was going to wait and see what would happen in the next couple of months. He was going to get an insurance policy and try to cover any potential financial losses. He was going to spend the next couple of months trying to figure out what he wanted to do and what he thought was the best course of action. He was going to try to stay positive and not let the breakup affect him too much.

Excuses and Alibis

By LARRY BROOKS

With no intent to demean the Tigers’ startling World Series triumph, there are some excuses and alibis that the dethroned Cardinals could fall back on. There are the pebble, The Pitch, and Willie. But the Commissioner, Mr. William J. Eckert, was left to explain these unfortunate events and so this writer. The Tigers deserved to win the Series. Whether they are the best team in baseball is subject to challenge, but the play of the Tigers would be an affront to no baseball fan to address the Tigers as “Champion.”

There is one person, however, who has no excuses, no alibis. His name is General William D. Wilson. Mr. Commissioner, who is General Wilson? He is Commissioner of Baseball. His worth to the game: nil.

A Commissioner, other than awarding the winning team his congratulations, normally has little to do with a World Series, baseball’s showcase (and the showcase of sports as well, Super Bowl or no). This year the Commissioner had a decision to make, a vital one, concerning the Series and let’s face it, he choked.

Behaving in a very un-General-like manner, he has choked before in times of crises. His lack of leadership following the assassinations of both Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and Senator Robert F. Kennedy is widely known. His complete lack of leadership and use of judgement in baseball’s expansion program is ridiculous.

Mr. Commissioner, why are both American League expansion teams in the Western Division? The Western Division of the American League may sink to the level of the American Football League’s Eastern Division. One critic suggested that it may equal the Lakes Division of the National American Soccer League. Mr. Commissioner, as it stands now, the division champion will rate vastly inferior to the Eastern Division’s third, fourth, fifth place team. (The Western Division will consist of Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland, Boston, New York and Washington; the East is comprised of Chicago, Oakland, Minnesota, California, Kansas City and Seattle.) Mr. Commissioner, how do you expect the established Western Division teams to draw at the gate?

The Series decision: It was raining hard in Detroit the day of the fourth game. It was Gibson vs. McLain, round two. It was, at the time, a crucial game for the Tigers. It was raining, pouring throughout the morning. It drew a capacity crowd. Rain was predicted throughout the afternoon. Rain was at the time a reasonable way of thinking, the game should have been postponed.

Why? Because of Gibson, McLain, the Cardinals, the Tigers, the fans at Tiger Stadium, in a game under ideal conditions. No harm could have possibly resulted in a day’s postponement. Harm could have resulted however, if the game had been played without it becoming a factor in the outcome of the game. Gibson would have had the better of the two, which in all likelihood would have resulted in less than a seven game Series, and perhaps more importantly, less than a true test of talents. As it turned out, it was a two game downpour in the third inning with the Cards leading 6-0. Fortunately for Gibson, St. Louis and the Commissioner, the rain was able to be completed—rain, on a sloppy field, after an hour and a quarter delay.

The game, or fiasco, continued with both the Tigers and Cardinals—understandably so—resorting to less-than-honorable tricks.

The fiasco could easily have been avoided, had General Eckert shown some guts. Life would have gone on had Game 4 already been played on Monday.

Why, then, wasn’t it postponed? Television. Yep, the National Broadcasting Company had projected that Hoot-Denny II would draw the biggest sports television audience of all time. "What a coup for baseball," the Commissioner must have told television’s bigwigs. So with pressure applied, the Commissioner disregarded the players and the fans at the ballpark. The game turned out to be a fiasco and the venture to say that a great deal of that record television audience (which saw less than they had been promised) applied, the Commissioner disregarded the players and the fans in the ballpark. It was like the Commissioner disregarded the television audience.

Intramural Program Is In Full Swing; Bowling, Archery, Chess, Basketball

Starting November 1, the Intramural Board is offering an almost full subsidy on bowling for the first time in its history. The tournament will be held Fridays from approximately two through five o'clock at the alleys at Eighth Ave. and 23rd St. For the four weeks it will run, participants will play three games a week and receive the use of bowling shoes for a total of only $2.50 per week. Those who do not wish to wear bowling shoes will be provided with bowling shoes. It will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. on an equal basis. There will be prizes for the best team and individual efforts. Since the program will be able to accommodate only sixty students, those interested should register as soon as possible. Registration will begin on Wednesday, Oct. 9, at 11 o'clock in the Intramural Office on the staircase between the sixth and seventh floors.

The Archery tournament will be held on October 24 on the sixth floor. Even if you have never fired an arrow you may still win a medal, and with the company you'll find, what better way to learn bowmanship? All players must wear gym suits and sneakers for the matches starting at 12 o'clock.

There seems to be a lack of interest in the touch football tournament this year. If you and 8 other friends or fraternity brothers are interested, pick up a roster sheet in locker room E on the 7th floor. We pay your transportation to the park.

Club basketball started on October 16th. However, there may still be some room for you.

Spectators are welcome at all events.

The chess tournament begins this Thursday in the Student Center. It will run over several weeks to allow the participants to play when they like. There will be a beginners and advanced division. To accommodate players of varying skills.

Basketball Team Holds Scrimmage

The Baruch basketball team, or rather the remnants of last years Junior Varsity scrimmaged the Evening Session contingent last Friday Night. Score was not kept, but the outcome was a lopsided victory for the day session performers, led by last year's Most Valuable Player, Gil Fishman. Hoopers tallying in double figures included Fred Shreck, Steve Sobel, Kevin Flanagan and David Unger.

A practice will be held today at 4:45 and those wishing to try out are invited to come to the gym and speak to Coach George Wolfe.
