Entering Freshmen Denied SC Seats

Your Student Council, in record time last Thursday, defeated two motions, recommended the establishment of a Bernard Baruch Faculty Student Committee on Intercollegiate and Intramural Athletics, and approved the Charity Drives Committee report. The twelve members of the Student Council voted unanimously for these resolutions.

Rings are on Sale Now Discount in Affect

Members of the classes of 1969 and 1970 will be able to order their senior rings on Tuesday, March 12 and Thursday 13 from ten o'clock to two o'clock in the lobby of the Student Center.

For those students who fail to order their rings by the above date, they may place an order at the College Bookstore, but the cost of rings will be increased by three dollars.

These rings are made of 10 karat white gold and feature the traditional Baruch crest and the names of the wearer engraved on the band.

The Student Council also voted to deny the senior class seats on the Student Council (SC), which are currently held by the junior class.

The majority of the students present at the meeting were in favor of this decision, citing the need for representation of the junior class.

The meeting was held in the auditorium of the Student Center, with a large audience in attendance.

To the Reader:

Mr. Lipman's legislation regarding the ring order, though well-intentioned, is a very dangerous suggestion. It may be possible to change the ring order if the school administration so desires. However, to force students to order rings in the spring is ridiculous. For example, if a student decided not to order a ring, he would be forced to wear the interim ring. Yet when the contract was shown to him, he would be forced to order the ring. These are the reasons why I urge all members of the class who were thinking of ordering the interim ring, not to do so.

Mr. Lipman (Pres. class of '70) was put in this last Ticker by STARS. The only way to get rid of these people is to remove them from school. It is the only way to show these people that we are not subject to the demands of these hoodwinkers.

Without this clause it would be impossible to get a majority of the students to order the rings. It seems regressive.

Therefore I urge all members of this class to order the rings and that there is no need to put it in the ad, but that it be changed for the permanent one.

Edward S. Lipman

Let us have the power to vote in the things of the school, and the right to make our choice of rings, and in the end our will be done subject to the approval of the administration.

Baruch Day Beats Eve. Cagers
Led by former Evening Session player Larry Anderson, the Baruch Day Session team defeated the Evening Session 89-59, in Hansen Hall, Friday night. It was the first time in four years that the Day five had beaten the Evening team.

The Day five is 11-4 with one game left. While the loss dropped the Evening team's record to 4-4. The Day team beat the night squad in two categories in which the Evening team used to prevail. The winners hit consistently from outside while the Evening team couldn't hit from anywhere. Only Carl Banziger's long-range bomb kept the Evening five in the game. The rest of the team hit only 22% percent of its shots.

The Day team also won the battle of the backboards, having a 66-33 edge. Mark Stein had 13 rebounds, Anderson 12, and Kevin Flanagan 11. The best for the Night team was Mike Deviantian's nine.

Electric Ear...
you would, particularly if you really are part of the "now" generation. "Your Own Thing" has tried to capitalize on the current fad in the greasepaint scene; present the seemingly freaked out younger generation as we really are, or what they think we are, moralistic, yet not so moralistic, full of values, yet having none, people dedicated to their ideologies, yet given half a chance and they too will sell out. Those are the plots involved, and if you are over thirty, its believable, cause that's what you'd like to believe. But if you're living your lifestyle this way, if you are a "now" person, if you are open towards everything, well then, this play fails miserably, because it doesn't say what you feel, it will only bring you down.

O.K., there is no real pertinent message to "Your Own Thing," but its enjoyable. There are times when its downright hysterical. When Orson, the manager of a rock group called The Four Apocalypse, falls in love with one of its members (thinking him to be a boy when he is really a girl) he questions the morality of such a relationship. His conclusion solution is, "Thank God mom's dead." Funny, true, but it only makes the audience realize that much more strongly, that this show is written about something that they know little about; they are on the outside looking in. Jokes like that, along with the rock music, which is so bad that it destroys the lyrics of most of the songs, drag the show down. But the mixed media concept is put to brilliant use, and for that only the show rises above the ordinary. At any given moment Shakespeare -- Sopack or other innocent people from the past come back to haunt us with messages from their time. All of which goes to prove that we are right and they are wrong, and they are even more wrong if they try to join us.

The cast lost its ups and downs. Everyone was around enough to satisfy anyone's need for action, but especially exciting are the choirs. They looked so familiar to me, yet the only thing I could picture her as as a mouseketeer, so when you know she used to be a - mouseketeer. Now, do you know who has a mouseketeer in it? Dinah Christie is outstanding as Oliva, just sexy enough, yet mature enough, to bring her role to life. She is most acceptable as the pseudo-over the hill, actress of younger years. Dinah played by Tom Sigent, is beautiful as the bewildered, bisexual.

Perhaps the highlight of the show is after-the curtain call, when thru the use of the mixed media, Jesus is seen, or told, "why don't you get a haircut boy." It's little things like that which make the play interesting, but the very same things are the ones that make you realize that young is young, and old is old, and the twain shall never meet.
