Council Asks for Lower Transcript Fee, Liberal Arts Curriculum by September

At last weeks Student Council meeting transcript fees and curriculum were the main topics of discussion. In a motion proposed by Danny Boehr, Rep. '70, the Student Council urged the Registrar to reduce the rate now charged for their furnishing unofficial copies of student transcripts. The current rate is set at $2.50. The student representative body voted to lower the rate to $2.00. It is now up to the Registrar to act upon the proposal. This action does not affect the rate for the official transcripts needed for the school record and application of other schools and prospective employers that students may enter.

In other action, after heated debate the Council, by a 2 to 1 margin, urged the adoption of the new Liberal Arts Catalogue for the fall semester, on September 19. Robert Berman, Vice President of Curricular Affairs sponsored the motion. Principal speakers opposing the resolution were Danny Boehr, Rep. '70, and Richard Faber, vice President of Educational Affairs.

Councilman Capstein, Vice President of Curricular Affairs, noted that the tuition of the College had been raised in response to the proposals presented by the students. He added that the students were acting in a non-operative manner, and that the Council should refrain from such action until the end of the semester.

The resolution was defeated by one vote.

Mardi Gras Coming To Highlight Year

Mardi Gras '69 arrives at the Baruch College on Saturday, during the week of the Mardi Gras. The banquet will be held in conjunction with other events, including the Mardi Gras Queen, a special student-faculty committee. Twelve applications from Renaissance students for the position of Vice President of Educational Affairs are vying for the job. Despite the high standard of donors criteria and the careful selection of donors, only normal, healthy people are allowed to give blood. In this group, there are no harmful effects from donating a pint of blood.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at Baruch on April 30. Donations of blood will be accepted in the Oak Lounge from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The process of donating blood is a relatively easy and painless procedure. The discussion will take place at 12 this Thursday in the Oak Lounge.

John J. Capstein, Executive Director of the Mardel Foundation, will be the Mardi Gras Queen. He has previously served as V.P. of the College, and this year, he will be the director of the College's Student Council. His name is well known among Baruchians.

The highlights of the evening will be the selection of the first Baruch College Mardi Gras Queen, by a special student-faculty committee. Twelve applications from Renaissance students for the position of Vice President of Educational Affairs are vying for the job. Despite the high standard of donors criteria and the careful selection of donors, only normal, healthy people are allowed to give blood. In this group, there are no harmful effects from donating a pint of blood.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at Baruch on April 30. Donations of blood will be accepted in the Oak Lounge from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The process of donating blood is a relatively easy and painless procedure. The discussion will take place at 12 this Thursday in the Oak Lounge.

John J. Capstein, Executive Director of the Mardel Foundation, will be the Mardi Gras Queen. He has previously served as V.P. of the College, and this year, he will be the director of the College's Student Council. His name is well known among Baruchians.

The highlights of the evening will be the selection of the first Baruch College Mardi Gras Queen, by a special student-faculty committee. Twelve applications from Renaissance students for the position of Vice President of Educational Affairs are vying for the job. Despite the high standard of donors criteria and the careful selection of donors, only normal, healthy people are allowed to give blood. In this group, there are no harmful effects from donating a pint of blood.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at Baruch on April 30. Donations of blood will be accepted in the Oak Lounge from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The process of donating blood is a relatively easy and painless procedure. The discussion will take place at 12 this Thursday in the Oak Lounge.

John J. Capstein, Executive Director of the Mardel Foundation, will be the Mardi Gras Queen. He has previously served as V.P. of the College, and this year, he will be the director of the College's Student Council. His name is well known among Baruchians.

The highlights of the evening will be the selection of the first Baruch College Mardi Gras Queen, by a special student-faculty committee. Twelve applications from Renaissance students for the position of Vice President of Educational Affairs are vying for the job. Despite the high standard of donors criteria and the careful selection of donors, only normal, healthy people are allowed to give blood. In this group, there are no harmful effects from donating a pint of blood.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at Baruch on April 30. Donations of blood will be accepted in the Oak Lounge from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The process of donating blood is a relatively easy and painless procedure. The discussion will take place at 12 this Thursday in the Oak Lounge.

John J. Capstein, Executive Director of the Mardel Foundation, will be the Mardi Gras Queen. He has previously served as V.P. of the College, and this year, he will be the director of the College's Student Council. His name is well known among Baruchians.
Hillel is Turned on by Reconstructionist Rabbi

Prom Tickets Now on Sale
Plans and Site Finalized

Promotion is in a stage of epiphany because of the strength of the strength of the movement. "Under this concept, it tries to place modern Jews in a world of continual fantasy."

Orthodox least of the way than in Spring Valley. It's all secular. It's all ethical. But Orthodox people and you want to be in a world where you can't sling mud quite easily. Orthodox reliance on the Torah to convert the Jewish people is minimal. It's middle-of-the-road position.

Judaism to survive meaningfully? "This is basically ambivalent; too much quoting of weird Bible verses."

"Do you want to belong to the movement as one question: movement as one question?"

The Rabbi Miller and his colleagues are trying to make the existing: Orthodox, Conservative, Reform to the strengths and weaknesses of the Reconstructionist movement. The Rabbi Miller and his colleagues are trying to make the existing: Orthodox, Conservative, Reform to the strengths and weaknesses of the Reconstructionist movement. This is part of the concept of the movement. There are two standards, just as there are two standards of the movement. Marvin Garvey is a member of the movement. Marvin Garvey is a member of the movement. Port of Antwerp is to be able to sail. To sail. To sail.

Reconstructionism does not want to be in a world where you can't sling mud quite easily. Orthodox reliance on the Torah to convert the Jewish people is minimal. It's middle-of-the-road position.

"Do you want to belong to the movement as one question: movement as one question?"

The Rabbi Miller and his colleagues are trying to make the existing: Orthodox, Conservative, Reform to the strengths and weaknesses of the Reconstructionist movement. This is part of the concept of the movement. There are two standards, just as there are two standards of the movement. Marvin Garvey is a member of the movement. Marvin Garvey is a member of the movement. Port of Antwerp is to be able to sail. To sail. To sail.

Reconstructionism does not want to be in a world where you can't sling mud quite easily.
The Workshop

By Maryjul Siders

When I entered the bus Friday morning, I was very much inside of me and very much to speak to anyone. Some people were talking, but I heard nothing, not even wondering what was going to happen next. I was working on the bus, thinking of the things that were on my mind, and then of the things that were not.

Finally we reached an impasse and we were frustrated. That was it. We were in a group of ten relative strangers. The man who spoke was in a group of ten relative strangers. Eric was in a group of ten relative strangers. Eric was in a group of ten relative strangers. Eric was in a group of ten relative strangers. Eric was in a group of ten relative strangers. Eric was in a group of ten relative strangers.

When I entered the bus Friday morning I was very much inside of me and very much to speak to anyone. Some people were talking, but I heard nothing, not even wondering what was going to happen next. I was working on the bus, thinking of the things that were on my mind, and then of the things that were not.
The Council Elections

Letters To The Editor

An Act in Haste

Meet the President

DRAFT REFORM: More Commitments Received Every Day

N.S.A. Sues -- Calls Laws Unconstitutional Demands Right to Protest Without Fear

The following news pieces have been written by students for The Ticker. They express the views of the student body and are not necessarily反映 the views of the editors. Faculty members are encouraged to submit news pieces as well.

The Ticker is the student newspaper of the University of California, Berkeley. It is published weekly during the academic year and biweekly during the summer months. The Ticker is owned by the University of California, Berkeley, and is managed by the student body.

The Ticker is a private, non-profit organization. It is supported by advertising revenue, subscriptions, and donations from individuals and organizations.

The Ticker is not affiliated with any political party or organization. It is committed to providing a platform for the free exchange of ideas and to upholding the principles of journalism.

The Ticker is published by the University of California, Berkeley, and is managed by the student body.

The Ticker is a private, non-profit organization. It is supported by advertising revenue, subscriptions, and donations from individuals and organizations.

The Ticker is not affiliated with any political party or organization. It is committed to providing a platform for the free exchange of ideas and to upholding the principles of journalism.

The Ticker is published by the University of California, Berkeley, and is managed by the student body.

The Ticker is a private, non-profit organization. It is supported by advertising revenue, subscriptions, and donations from individuals and organizations.

The Ticker is not affiliated with any political party or organization. It is committed to providing a platform for the free exchange of ideas and to upholding the principles of journalism.

The Ticker is published by the University of California, Berkeley, and is managed by the student body.

The Ticker is a private, non-profit organization. It is supported by advertising revenue, subscriptions, and donations from individuals and organizations.

The Ticker is not affiliated with any political party or organization. It is committed to providing a platform for the free exchange of ideas and to upholding the principles of journalism.

The Ticker is published by the University of California, Berkeley, and is managed by the student body.

The Ticker is a private, non-profit organization. It is supported by advertising revenue, subscriptions, and donations from individuals and organizations.

The Ticker is not affiliated with any political party or organization. It is committed to providing a platform for the free exchange of ideas and to upholding the principles of journalism.

The Ticker is published by the University of California, Berkeley, and is managed by the student body.

The Ticker is a private, non-profit organization. It is supported by advertising revenue, subscriptions, and donations from individuals and organizations.

The Ticker is not affiliated with any political party or organization. It is committed to providing a platform for the free exchange of ideas and to upholding the principles of journalism.

The Ticker is published by the University of California, Berkeley, and is managed by the student body.

The Ticker is a private, non-profit organization. It is supported by advertising revenue, subscriptions, and donations from individuals and organizations.

The Ticker is not affiliated with any political party or organization. It is committed to providing a platform for the free exchange of ideas and to upholding the principles of journalism.

The Ticker is published by the University of California, Berkeley, and is managed by the student body.

The Ticker is a private, non-profit organization. It is supported by advertising revenue, subscriptions, and donations from individuals and organizations.

The Ticker is not affiliated with any political party or organization. It is committed to providing a platform for the free exchange of ideas and to upholding the principles of journalism.

The Ticker is published by the University of California, Berkeley, and is managed by the student body.

The Ticker is a private, non-profit organization. It is supported by advertising revenue, subscriptions, and donations from individuals and organizations.
CUNY CRISIS
A WAY OUT

By JEFFREY STEINBERG

The City University is in a disquieting predicament. At the time of this writing, the plan is to cut new school enrollment in September from 70,000 to a negligible number. Its effect on the University's drive to higher education have been shut and locked. How do we reopen them?

I am afraid that loud protests against inequality and unfairness will not do the trick. Forces will need to open the door to some new explanation. What we need is some sort of financial surgery, that may help to reduce the fiscal gap that may keep the key that opens up the lock.

Meso-economic and micro-economic theory and practice prescribes what a government must do to try to stabilize the business cycle and what the individual firm can do when it is facing bankruptcy or insolvency. I wish I had an answer at the short run shut down point. Not all of the theoretical points of suggestions can be applied to the CUNY University's problem.

From the macroeconomic perspective a government has the discretionary power to deal with its economic policy, or a combination of both in order to combat an economic which is either overheating or slowing down. Whether the situation is positively, steeply slanted part of the business cycle curve, Fiscal policy allows the government to manipulate income, fiscal policy serves as a tax, government's tax structure on the one hand, despite an inflation that can be in new doing; it could even be more progressive if enough congressmen are willing to vote in the right direction, as to reduce the tax cuts and aid.
Council

(Continued from Page 3)

A new contract effective Septem-ber 1, 1969, was recently an-nounced by James L. Dixon, President of the Board of Education.

Under the new contract, the Su-perintendent's salary was in-creased to $18,000 a year. This is an increase of $3,000 over the present salary. The contract was ratified unani-mously by all members of the Board at a special meeting held Tuesday night.

Mr. Dixon said he was pleased with the results of negotiations which took place over a period of several weeks. He noted that the teachers had made con-siderable sacrifices in order to reach an agree-ment. The teachers have agreed to accept a salary increase of 16% over the past five years, while the city's budget for education has increased by 30% during the same period.

Mr. Dixon expressed his hope that the new contract will help to maintain the high level of education in the district.

Black Week

(Continued from Page 4)

The theme for Black Week is "The Power of the Name." Mr. Toure indicated that the name is the symbol of the individual.

A flag is the symbol of a nation, but a nation must eat and dress in con-nection with the community. A hospital pro-"" be eligible for our senior colleges. But we could not send out notices of admission to the community colleges until we are absolutely certain that no further positions available for college, because, under the admissions criteria, we might lose a valuable candidate. The Governor noted that under the admissions criteria, you would normally be admitted to senior colleges would have to have met a certain academic standard in order to be eligible.
Budget...

(Continued from Page 4)

In addition, the $17 million funding gap in the Mayor's budget will also need to be addressed. The Governor has proposed a $26 million increase in state aid for New York City's higher education, which would help to fund the $13 million restricted budget for CUNY salary increases. However, this proposal has yet to be funded.

The Governor has also proposed a $13 million restricted budget to support new programs. They have been a serious concern for the University, as budgets must be funded to operate. The Governor has also proposed an increase in state aid for New York City's higher education, which would help to fund the $13 million restricted budget for CUNY salary increases. However, this proposal has yet to be funded.

The Governor has also proposed a $13 million restricted budget to support new programs. They have been a serious concern for the University, as budgets must be funded to operate. The Governor has also proposed an increase in state aid for New York City's higher education, which would help to fund the $13 million restricted budget for CUNY salary increases. However, this proposal has yet to be funded.

Dr. Bowker said the University has a commitment to its students and will do its best to provide them with the necessary resources. He said, "The University is committed to providing the necessary resources to its students and will do its best to ensure that they have the opportunity to succeed."

Another View...

(Continued from Page 5)

the force we used made the energy released from an A bomb look puny.

We were now ready to begin our journey for the golden fleece. All of us were extremely anxious. We did not want to go. But we knew we had to. We were determined. We wanted to find a way to make the journey worthwhile. The University was to be our guide. We were determined to make the journey worthwhile.

Baruch Bowling Team Wins Top CUNY Honors

The Apollon Chapter of Sigma Epsilon Phi, Baruch's Greek-American society, easily defeated the other chapters within the City University for top honors in their annual bowling tournament. Sporting an all male team, the Apollonians rolled to a 200-pin advantage in

27 Students Join in IMB Bowling Tourney

This season's bowling tournament was well underway and the 50 cents per game subsidy from the IBM, reducing the students to $10 cents per game, broughtout 27 students, including 6 girls. The games are conducted every weekday afternoon at 2 p.m. on 25 St. and 8 Ave. The tournament's high game of 548 was bowled by Don Senkewicz, while the high series of 611 was bowled by Al Sensteinberg. Both the low game (73) and low series (776) were bowled by Bruce Mednick. After five weeks of hot and heavy competition, Frank DeFonsco is leading with 70.000 points, while Don Senkewicz is in the lead with 59.38, and George Sheerzer is in the lead with 56.78, 20. Vinnie Russo 54.78. 21. Bruce Mednick 60.28.