Dean Rosner Dies

Bernard M. Baruch College

Dean Rosner was a faculty member at Baruch College, and he died at the age of 55 on November 30, 1970. He was a former President of the College and a well-respected figure in the New York City Department of Health.

Interview with John Bal

John Bal is perhaps better known as the cop who is being thrown off the force because of the length of his hair. He is currently a Business Major at Baruch College, having attended Queens Vocational High School, and Queensborough Community College. In 1966 he received an Honorable Discharge from the Navy, and was appointed as a Patrolman in the New York City Police Dept. on Oct. 25, 1969. Since then he has received a Medal for Meritorious Duty and two Medals for Exemplary Police Duty. He went on trial on Oct. 8, 1970, and as of yet, no results of that trial have been made public.

George: You have mentioned that you have been told to leave. Is that correct?

John: Yes. The Police Department has ordered me not to return to duty until my case is decided.

George: How has your recent public controversy affected you?

John: As a cop, initially there was a lot of hostility toward me personally and my superiors. Recently I have experienced some humor and encouragement, even from the hardhat variety. I feel proud when I am working and someone recognizes me and says "Right On." I also feel that I am getting on the right track, that people are recognizing me and saying "Right On." So far, I have encountered about five people who recognized me and said "Right On." I have been in this situation for approximately one year.

George: You have been identified mainly with young people in terms of support. Do you feel this image hurts you?

John: No! Youth holds the hopes of every one for the future. I identify with young people—not cops. I do see a desire for a new type of policeman. The present image of a cop is the typically white face, the stocky figure, the blue uniformed face, the handcuffs, the baton, the nightstick. These symbols are very important in society, but I think that we need to change them. We need to provide a more human face to the police department.

George: What led you to join the force?

John: I saw it as a challenge. Did you ever think of all the information that passes through the police department? I was a student of American Public Administration, and I wanted to be involved in public service.

Under the strain of numerous rumors concerning the liberal arts program and the College itself, the General Faculty has formed a committee to investigate the future of the College. With so much information dealing directly and indirectly with the College, the Committee felt that something must be done to clear up the confusion.

Dean Lavender said that if no unwriting of the Liberal Arts School were to be had, the School could not meet its function as stated in the Keegan-Breitman Report. The BHE reports lay the framework for the development of the Baruch College.

Do you feel this image hurts you?

John: I think it is important for young people to be aware of what is happening at Baruch. The Education Society has been a great help in getting the different departments of the Baruch College to work together. This workshop will be unique in that there will be a two-fold purpose to be focused on during this workshop. We want to help the students to understand the importance of the Baruch College. We also want to help the students to understand the importance of the Baruch College to the community at large. We have enjoyed the past ten years and would like to continue to serve the students of the Baruch College.

George: Do you feel this image hurts you?

John: No! Youth holds the hopes of every one for the future. I identify with young people—not cops. I do see a desire for a new type of policeman. The present image of a cop is the typically white face, the stocky figure, the blue uniformed face, the handcuffs, the baton, the nightstick. These symbols are very important in society, but I think that we need to change them. We need to provide a more human face to the police department.

George: What led you to join the force?

John: I saw it as a challenge. Did you ever think of all the information that passes through the police department? I was a student of American Public Administration, and I wanted to be involved in public service.

Interview with John Bal

Chapter of the American Society for Public Administration and a member of the New York Metropolitan Public Administration Association. New York Country Lawyers Association. American Public Health Association. He served on a number of professional association committees, and published more than a score of articles, reports, and papers mostly in the field of public health administration.

George: You have been identified mainly with young people in terms of support. Do you feel this image hurts you?

John: No! Youth holds the hopes of everyone for the future. I identify with young people—not cops. I do see a desire for a new type of policeman. The present image of a cop is the typically white face, the stocky figure, the blue uniformed face, the handcuffs, the baton, the nightstick. These symbols are very important in society, but I think that we need to change them. We need to provide a more human face to the police department.

George: What led you to join the force?

John: I saw it as a challenge. Did you ever think of all the information that passes through the police department? I was a student of American Public Administration, and I wanted to be involved in public service.

Interview with John Bal

Chapter of the American Society for Public Administration and a member of the New York Metropolitan Public Administration Association. New York Country Lawyers Association. American Public Health Association. He served on a number of professional association committees, and published more than a score of articles, reports, and papers mostly in the field of public health administration.

George: You have been identified mainly with young people in terms of support. Do you feel this image hurts you?

John: No! Youth holds the hopes of everyone for the future. I identify with young people—not cops. I do see a desire for a new type of policeman. The present image of a cop is the typically white face, the stocky figure, the blue uniformed face, the handcuffs, the baton, the nightstick. These symbols are very important in society, but I think that we need to change them. We need to provide a more human face to the police department.

George: What led you to join the force?

John: I saw it as a challenge. Did you ever think of all the information that passes through the police department? I was a student of American Public Administration, and I wanted to be involved in public service.

Interview with John Bal

Chapter of the American Society for Public Administration and a member of the New York Metropolitan Public Administration Association. New York Country Lawyers Association. American Public Health Association. He served on a number of professional association committees, and published more than a score of articles, reports, and papers mostly in the field of public health administration.

George: You have been identified mainly with young people in terms of support. Do you feel this image hurts you?

John: No! Youth holds the hopes of everyone for the future. I identify with young people—not cops. I do see a desire for a new type of policeman. The present image of a cop is the typically white face, the stocky figure, the blue uniformed face, the handcuffs, the baton, the nightstick. These symbols are very important in society, but I think that we need to change them. We need to provide a more human face to the police department.

George: What led you to join the force?

John: I saw it as a challenge. Did you ever think of all the information that passes through the police department? I was a student of American Public Administration, and I wanted to be involved in public service.

Interview with John Bal

Chapter of the American Society for Public Administration and a member of the New York Metropolitan Public Administration Association. New York Country Lawyers Association. American Public Health Association. He served on a number of professional association committees, and published more than a score of articles, reports, and papers mostly in the field of public health administration.

George: You have been identified mainly with young people in terms of support. Do you feel this image hurts you?

John: No! Youth holds the hopes of everyone for the future. I identify with young people—not cops. I do see a desire for a new type of policeman. The present image of a cop is the typically white face, the stocky figure, the blue uniformed face, the handcuffs, the baton, the nightstick. These symbols are very important in society, but I think that we need to change them. We need to provide a more human face to the police department.

George: What led you to join the force?

John: I saw it as a challenge. Did you ever think of all the information that passes through the police department? I was a student of American Public Administration, and I wanted to be involved in public service.
DEPARTMENT

MINORITY GRADS

Charles

MINORITY GRADS

Charles

MINORITY GRADS

Charles

MINORITY GRADS

Charles

MINORITY GRADS

Charles
Interview with
John Bol
Continued from Page 1

You will be asked to participate in the Blood Drive very soon. You will be asked to help save the life of your fellow Baruchians.

Dean Rosner Gone

George: I've been thinking about this quite a long time. It's a very difficult decision to make. But I think it would be a good thing for me to step down. I've been here for a long time, and I feel that it's time for someone else to take over.

Interview with
John Bol
Continued from Page 1

You will be asked to participate in the Blood Drive very soon. You will be asked to help save the life of your fellow Baruchians.

Dean Rosner Gone

George: I've been thinking about this quite a long time. It's a very difficult decision to make. But I think it would be a good thing for me to step down. I've been here for a long time, and I feel that it's time for someone else to take over.

Interview with
John Bol
Continued from Page 1

You will be asked to participate in the Blood Drive very soon. You will be asked to help save the life of your fellow Baruchians.

Dean Rosner Gone

George: I've been thinking about this quite a long time. It's a very difficult decision to make. But I think it would be a good thing for me to step down. I've been here for a long time, and I feel that it's time for someone else to take over.

Interview with
John Bol
Continued from Page 1

You will be asked to participate in the Blood Drive very soon. You will be asked to help save the life of your fellow Baruchians.

Dean Rosner Gone

George: I've been thinking about this quite a long time. It's a very difficult decision to make. But I think it would be a good thing for me to step down. I've been here for a long time, and I feel that it's time for someone else to take over.

Interview with
John Bol
Continued from Page 1

You will be asked to participate in the Blood Drive very soon. You will be asked to help save the life of your fellow Baruchians.
James does, which is just another way of saying, "Gimme the skinny on Jerry," which is what Merry adds more feeling and substance to. She lends the religion that James ever besung* to the Marrow people. She opens the windows for them. She also does a great service to the Grateful Dead in concert. The music that everybody was getting off on couldn't wait to give him his standing ovation. "Wow" exclaimed several over- Troubled* Water* inchv Adelphi and also "Nobody knows about this guy," just like Bi&afo Sfeix&e&&" and "The solution that faced in this Gold Medal Show on the George Brown show was to slip back through the door and pick up the album. Backstage, Steve, Jack and I were in a good temper, lolling up and down and everywhere and didn't even think to give him his standing ovation. Being young and excited and secure, the Grateful Dead is quoted. The music this week, tons of it, the music. Young has done, so comforting and secure Young has done, so comforting and secure. I'm glad. I'm glad.

Call Jeff for offers and discounts.

444-8944 or 444-2087

Box 9-11 PM

If you are graduating in June your picture must be taken now.

SENIOR PICTURES FREE

at Lorstan Studios From now until Dec 18

1503 Third Ave Mon-Sat 9:30-5pm

(at 83rd Street) Thurs 9:30-6pm

SIXTEEN ENTERPRISES ANNOUNCES

CHRISTMAS SPECIALS

Concord Compact: Denver 12 w AM FM Radio Automatic Contral Roland Electronic Piano Thru 2 Speakers Piano 8 or 12" Pairs Reg: 199.95 Now 139.95 Reg: 249.95 R.O.S. 149.95

Lowest Prices Compare

Every Top Brand

Huge Discounts

As units in factory warranted up to 90 days warranty 5 day money back guarantee

CALL JEFF for offers and discounts.

444-8944 or 444-2087

Box 9-11 PM

the phoenix is returning with my Hologram Regular art anatomy and changes for shows.

119-1199

your favorite places, the geese and all the people of your universe, the birds...

Panel

Alan Elnick
Prof. P. Halboth

Division of Counseling
DEPT. OF STUDENT
Personnel Services

Prof. H. Siegel
L. Caminsky
"Where Am I At?"
Prof. S. Scharf
(The Search For Identity)

A SYMPOSIUM
Thurs. Dec. 3
12-12 Basement