Deep Dark Registration Frustration
By Jan W. Yablow

Many students are still not aware that registration of Day Session students for the Spring, 1971 semester is now being held through December 18. It is taking place at the 24th Street (RCA) Building on the second floor. Angelo B. Proto, Acting Dean of Student Affairs, explained that the hours of date and time the students are to register will be mailed to all but 300 (those without addresses) of the 4000 students. For a reason which still cannot be understood, very few persons received such information. Anyone who has not received such a schedule should go to the Registrars Office, outside of room 312.

Unfortunately, the facilities at 24th Street are not sufficient in space to produce a smoothly flowing registration. Seating for students needing to re-make often confused programs will only seat about 20 persons, which is approximately one-half of last semester’s registration area. It is most likely that the days in which the lower freshmen will register will prove the need for larger facilities. Mr. Proto made it known that there should be enough time for lower freshmen to register. The registration may be extended for another one or two days.

There is also a wide range of misconception when the students who entered Baruch in September of this year should register. Many students who were freshmen at the college at this time just register only on December 17 and 18, and only as Lower Freshmen, no matter how many credits they carry this term.

Green registration booklets will not be given out by the Registrar until the student has paid his $50 fee. The reason for this fee is to prevent any student from buying a book for $50 and then selling it for $15. In the past the books have been a shortage of 3000 books and are still needed for the transfer and freshmen entering in February 1971. Of course, some students did manage to get this book without paying their fee. Mr. Proto has asked that those students who finish registering should kindly return their green book to the Registrar Office as a shortage may occur.

Those freshmen desiring individual help with their programs should speak with their Orientation Leader in class. Mr. Proto has also advised all lower freshmen to not begin to plan a permanent program until one or two days before they register. The reason for this is most courses will be closed out.

Students can pick up a list of courses that have been closed out already in the Ticker bins every other day through the registration period.

NOTE: THE REGISTRARS OFFICE HAS INFORMED TICKET THAT THERE WILL BE STRICT ENFORCEMENT OF REJECTION OF STUDENTS WHO DO NOT REGISTER AT THEIR SCHEDULED TIME AND DATE (in other words, no sneak-ups).

Baruch Bowls
by Alan Steinberg

Baruch beats Columbia 54-35 on November 23 in one of the most exciting matches of the year. Both teams went into the third game with the match tied 2-2. Going into the tenth frame, Baruch was trailing by seven pins. The game ended exactly that way except that the score was checked. Alfred Gross with a 573 series, Harvey Cohen spotted a ten pin error in the frame and Baruch was trailing by seven pins. Baruch was trailing by seven pins.

Last Sunday, the Baruchians were not so fortunate. They swept over Baruch 3-0 in an unrelenting bowling barrage. They averaged over 190 per man and easily won. The leading scores for Baruch were Mike X. Forgionsons 5-406 SC.

In a quickly called open meeting last week, Andrew Lavender, Acting Dean of the School of Liberal Arts and Sciences indicated that the Liberal Arts program at Baruch was not in any real danger of collapsing.

Dean Lavender said that the faculty meeting of November 24, 1970 began by stating the issue created by the shortage of funding for the College as a whole, and the shortage of space. At that meeting, Prof. Benowitz said that the Birbaum report (on the development of Baruch College) supported expansion of the Liberal Arts program. This report superseded the Keppel report of 1967. The Keppel report also favored expansion of the Liberal Arts program.

At the open meeting, Prof. Lavender said that the Liberal Arts program here was not being funded at a new school. This means that funding went for the expansion of existing programs with the need created by Open Admissions. Under new school fun-

Lavender Says

In making these remarks, the Dean said that students might want to take advantage of permits to allow them entrance into Liberal Arts courses at other Colleges of the University.

Dean Lavender mentioned that the expansion of the Liberal Arts program should be under the College's project. "It is inconceivable to have a four year senior college without a Liberal Arts program," he said, funding would have been available for the faculty and programs.

In the near future, Ticker will be printing photos for the yearbook taken before December 18 at Lorstan Studios 1503 Third Ave. during the day between 9:30 AM into 5:30 PM. The back issues of Ticker are in room 397. Each back issue is 25 cents. Be the first in your neighborhood to have a complete set.

WORKSHOP FOR HUMAN BEINGS

The Lampley Society is now planning its Winter Sensitivity Awarness and Human Relations Workshop. We plan to include a new dimension in this workshop in order to adapt to the changing needs of our students. In this regard, much of the focus will be directed towards self-identity.

To facilitate this most effectively, the groups will be divided as follows: Black, Mixed, Orienta, Puerto Rican and White. Participants will have the opportunity to select which group they prefer to be in.

Through the use of community sessions and D-groups in the conducive setting of uptown New York, we hope to achieve a working community of people that have gained greater identity awareness and respect for individuality.

The workshop will be held from January 2-2, January 25.

We are trying to contact all organizations on campus personally. In the meantime, all Baruchians are asked to please feel free to drop in at our office at any time for answers to any questions they may have. Room 314 S.C.

Dear Aunt Eva,

Here are a few thoughts of what happened to me after I arrived at your house to help with the winter season. I was greeted by your dog, Max, who was wagging his tail and welcoming me with open arms. Your sister, Alice, was also there, making coffee and cookies. I helped to prepare the Christmas tree and put up some decorations. It was a lovely day, with snow falling gently outside.

I will be staying here for the next few days to help with the holidays. I can't wait to see the rest of your family and enjoy some time at home with you all. I hope you're all well and staying warm in the cold weather.

Love,

Dear Aunt Eva,

On my way to your house, I thought about the snowy landscape that surrounded us. The trees were covered in snow, and the sky was filled with snowflakes. It reminded me of how peaceful it can be to be in nature, away from the hustle and bustle of city life.

I think it's important to take moments like this to appreciate the beauty of the world around us. Sometimes, we get so caught up in our daily routines that we forget to notice the simple things, like the snow falling or the birds singing. I hope you had a wonderful holiday season and that we can continue to find moments of peace and beauty in our lives.

Love,

An Eye For An Ear
By GARY FRANK

I've come to produce a quality review of Judy Collins' second album, which is on MGM, but you don't have to be a music critic to enjoy this album. Judy says that she's better than ever. And she is. But even better is that she's done it her way. Judy Collins. Judy says that she's done it. And she has. Judy Collins. Judy Collins. Judy Collins. Judy Collins.
