THE MOON VS. POVERTY

by Bob McNutt

In some respects, poverty and the moon are similar. Both are full of mysteries and unexplored territory. However, in other respects, they are very different. Poverty can be alleviated, while the moon is forever changing.

2 Students Find Work
Two Baruch College journalism students, Ralph E. Saladyga, of West Orange, N.J., and Joseph Harns, of New York, have been hired by The New York Times to work in the sportswriting area. The students were recommended to the New York Times by Lillian Lawton, a graduate of Baruch College in 1936, who is managing editor of The Times. Ms. Lawton in turn received the students' names from Jack Marks, the head of their placement bureau, who in turn received the names from a job agency.

The students were recommended to Ms. Lawton on the basis of their journalistic work. Ms. Lawton had been impressed with the students' writing ability and their potential for future work in journalism. The New York Times, which is one of the largest and most respected newspapers in the world, is known for its high standards and rigorous selection process. The students are to work on the sportswriting area, which is a challenging and rewarding field.

The fact that two Baruch College students have been hired by The New York Times is a testament to the quality of education provided at Baruch College and the success of its placement bureau.
COMMENTS:

In the previous term, "Ticker" will not be making any endorsements for the candidates in this election. This decision was reached not to avoid any added work, but rather because recent events have shown us that this is not the best course of action. The students and the student body at large need to be able to read Ticker's endorsements and automatically trust our choices. We believe that the candidates in this election have brought their own opinions based on their qualifications and that we have all sorts of opinions on our own. Therefore, the best course of action is to provide information and form our own opinions based on what they have said.

No decision was made as a whole. Each candidate was assessed individually and only those candidates who received the endorsement were endorsed. We feel that the best course of action is to provide information and form our own opinions based on what they have said.

It is important to show that candidates are doing their best to improve the constitution and that candidates are doing their best to improve the constitution. The elected officers of the Baruch College Student Senate will work to pass this constitution. We urge you to accept this document.

In the present term, the Constitution of the Baruch College Student Senate will be passed by the end of the spring term. COMMENTS:

 TICKER does not endorse any candidates for the election of the Baruch Student Senate. This decision was reached not to avoid any political work, but rather because recent events have shown that this is not the best interest of those running, as well. As the student body at large, this is an important election. Students should research candidates and then make up their minds. Since we are not making endorsements, we urge you to accept this document.

Last term the constitution that was put up for approval at that time was defeated, stating the question of whether or not the amendment was in order. (This question was brought up again at the next meeting of the Student Senate, but the amendment was defeated.) Students should be aware of this, and have read the proposed constitution, you have found that there is no endorsement. Since we are not making endorsements, we urge you to accept this document.

I am a member of the Baruch Coalition for Peace, and I am active in student affairs in high school. My goal is to promote a creative environment in which students can develop as citizens and leaders.

My participation in the Baruch Junior Executive Program has made me aware of the need for change within the college. My interest in student government is changing Baruch's image from one of stale, underactive student body as a whole.

I am making a commitment to the students that if I am elected, I will work hard to improve the position of the students at Baruch, and to that end, I will take the following positions:

4. Provide B-School students with opportunities for constructive participation in the governance of the Baruch community.

As a member of the Baruch community, I am committed to promoting the values of the Baruch community.

WRITING A T.V. SERIES

by Marty Kielman

The only way to have a really success-\ nal adventure series is to have the first adventure. The first one is the only one that doesn't count. There are no people until the second adventure. That's because of the nature of the game. Last week I had to become focused on the first adventure. This week I will give my attention to doing what my new system requires. It's a tough love to a TV show. It's a tough love to a T.V. show. I was afraid of it. I was afraid of it. I was afraid of it.

DRAFT REFORM NEEDS YOU

The concept of the T.V. grade will have to be developed over time. It should be given to students who do drop courses, regardless of the reason. Congress must consider the many reasons that should carry the same weight. One reason should be the following: that during the first year of a T.V. grade, a student is dropped without penalty grade.

The End of 2S?

First of all, there is a chance it can happen. While the 18 year old vote has only recently been used in the 1964 draft, the 2S deferment has been in force for many years. The draft of the 18 year olds in the last few years has been quite high, and many states, including New York, have been facing a severe shortage of college students. The 2S deferment rule has been used to offset this shortage, and it is possible that the draft could be used in the future to offset the shortage of college students.

The 2S deferment is a rule that allows college students to avoid the draft by attending college. The rule was first enacted in 1951, and it has been used for many years. The 2S deferment rule is not perfect, and there are many who believe that it should be abolished. However, the 2S deferment rule has been a valuable tool in the past, and it is possible that it will be used in the future.
