Temares Appointed Acting Associate Registrar

Lewis Temares, Assistant Dean of Administration, has been appointed Acting Associate Registrar with full responsibility for internal operation of the Registrar's office including the registration process. The President has placed him in complete charge of all internal operations and all personal assigned to the office are responsible to Temares. For operating purposes, he will have the authority of the Registrar. Temares is assigned to the Registrar's office through June 30, 1972 for the purpose of reorganizing and directing all internal operations of the office.

Mr. Donald Ferguson, Registrar, will continue to be responsible for external coordination. Mr. Temares said he would "make anything drastic" immediately, but will initiate a gradual change as the office is reorganized to have a solid foundation and from there build a centralized, syndicated operation. Temares will depend heavily upon the Associate Registrars, Gerry Banks and Assistant Registrar, Audrey Collins.

President Wingfield said, "This is a difficult task, and one vitally important to Baruch College."

Senate Allocates Activities Fees

The Activities Fees Allocation Meeting of the Student Senate took place last Thursday, November 18, 1971, in the Oak Lounge at 5:30. By one o'clock that night all clubs and organizations who had submitted a budget to the Fees Committee had received their allocations for the Fall '71 Term.

The Fees Committee, which consisted of Barry Goldstein, Treasurer, Barry Hoffman, Frank Brennan, Larry Gray, and Larry Nisser, had met for several days prior to the Senate meeting and reviewed the budgets for all clubs and organizations. They examined the validity of the sums asked, and made their recommendations for each budget to the Senate. Each budget, which must, under the SBE bylaws, approve the budgets, was read to the Senate individually, and each budget was voted upon separately. If a position was raised, one of the Senate members would vote on each budget. The Senate then voted on page 2.

Sunday at 4 I was sitting next to an old friend and we were both enjoying a cup of coffee. The conversation turned to the recent events in our lives. She mentioned her family had moved to the suburbs and how she was having a hard time adjusting to the new surroundings.

I thought about how different my life had become since leaving college. I was now working in a busy office environment, and I often found myself feeling disconnected from the people around me.

We talked about our experiences and how much we had changed since our college days. She mentioned how much she missed the freedom of college life, and how much she wished she could go back. I told her how much I missed the creative atmosphere of the art classes I had taken during college. We both agreed that college was a time of discovery and growth, and that we had learned so much about ourselves during those years.

I think about how much we've both grown and changed since those days. But I also think about how much we've lost. We've both settled into our own lives, each pursuing our own goals and ambitions. It's a bittersweet realization, but we both know that life is full of ups and downs, and that we'll always have our memories of college to look back on with fondness.

In the end, I think we both feel grateful for the experiences we've had, and the people we've met along the way. It's a time that will always be special to us, and one that we'll never forget.

Ted Baker underclassman, who normally hits a mere .200, batted out six straight hits in a game against N.Y. Tech. He ripped two doubles—good for five R.B.I.'s. Unaided at Babe Ruth Field, he threw out a runner at distant centerfield. They didn't challenge a college star he seems set on making All-American. These men as Coach Rizzi put it "are really doing it."

Young centerfielder Hector Baker smiles a lot. Men who hit .350 usually do. He is a born hitter. He was "in and out" for two years. His potential isvirtually unlimited." Coach Rizzi referred to Hector in the terms of Frank and the Jets linebacker Ralph. Rizzi is happy with his young centerfielder. "Hector is an excellent-young centerfielder. "Hector makes a great catch on a fly, and he has a strong and accurate arm, gets a good jump on all balls in the air, and has the ability to hit anything that's thrown to him."
