Ron Bruse to Speak on "The Only Subject is Self"

by Robert Barrett

Mr. Ron Bruse "thought the subject matter was critical," that it was the only thing for me to do. I had to act, to speak, to contribute to the issue. The topic I chose was "The Only Subject is Self," has received such acclaim that Mr. Bruse will speak on the subject next Tuesday, March 28, between 12 noon, and 1 o'clock in room 312 of the Student Center. This essay is printed in this same issue of TICKER.

Bruse hopes that people will react to his words as they apply to the individual. He was writing to anyone concerned with the

by Alan Shark

At its March 5, 1972 meeting, the University Student Senate elected Mr. Alan Shark as its Chairman. Mr. Shark is a student here at Baruch College with a major in both public and business administration. He is a Vietnam veteran, and has served as the student body president of Staten Island Community College.

During the past year, Mr. Shark has served as the Acting Executive Vice-Chairman of the Senate. While serving in these capacities, Mr. Shark has had a chance to observe many of the problems involved in the administration of a student government. He has also had the opportunity to work closely with faculty members of the University, and is currently working on the formulation of a budget crisis.

First years were a surprise to students. They followed that one with Sarcasms, Opus 17 by Debussy and one by Frederic Chopin. He knocked all the pieces with an ability that actually stemmed from a strong devotion and love for his craft.

The New Irish Awareness
By Charles Recknagel

Last Thursday more than forty students attended a symposium sponsored by the History Society and the Newman Club, including the Northern Irish Army Officers' Association. The program consisted of a panel discussion on the subject of Northern Ireland. Mr. William Murray, speaker for the Northern Irish Army Officers' Association, gave the opening address and the question period was handled by the President of St. John's University, Dr. Ernest J. Maloney.

At the end of the discussion, Dr. Maloney proposed a resolution stating that the Irish Republican Army, the Nationalist Party of the Republic of Ireland, and the Ulster Unionist Party, should all be regarded as political organizations and not as armed forces. The resolution was passed and the meeting adjourned.

The Psychology of Jung Will Be Examined
by Warren Webber

Dr. Arluck received training in the C.G. Jungian theory of personality and its application to the modern world. He has written extensively on the subject and has contributed many articles to professional journals. His book, "The Psychology of Jung," is a comprehensive study of the subject and will be available in the fall of this year.

Psychological significance is not the only aspect of the book. Dr. Arluck also discusses the relationship between personality and society, and the role of the individual in modern society.

I had mixed emotions the last time I sang. I'll be the first to admit it. I don't know the reason for my being there in the first place. I think I just wanted to give it a whirl. As the song went on, the image of my mother flashed in my mind. I had to stop. I felt sick. I had to leave.

The song was "An Audition." It was the last song on the program. I had sung it twice before. The first time was in front of the judge. The second time was in front of my mother.

I was not sure if I had a chance. I was not sure if I could do it. I was not sure if I wanted to do it. But I did. I sang. I finished. And I won. I won the contest. I won the prize. I won the respect of my mother.

I am not sure if I will sing again. I am not sure if I will perform again. I am not sure if I will compete again. But I will. I will continue. I will perform. I will compete. I will sing.

The system's growth is not due to a lack of opportunity or a lack of desire, but rather to the failure of the system to provide the necessary resources to support full participation in the social-participation roles. The result is a situation in which the college and university graduate is forced to take on the role of a student, a worker, and a citizen, all at once. This is not an easy task, and the system is often unable to provide the necessary support for this complex role-playing.

Social responsibility is crucial for the college and university graduate. First, as Bruton and May indicate (EDUCATION FOR SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY), "the work of the college and university graduate is to become a citizen who is able to make informed decisions about the world in which he lives." This requires a deep understanding of the self and of society, as well as an awareness of the interconnections between them. It is not enough to simply be "knowledgeable" or "well-informed," for this would lack the critical aspect of understanding how knowledge and information are used.

Further, there can be little doubt that when one becomes a student-employee, the personal world of the student begins to change. The student-body becomes more and more the backdrop of the college and university community, and the personal world of the student begins to take on a more formalized and professional character. This can lead to a sense of dislocation and alienation, as the personal world of the student begins to be separated from the professional world of the college and university community. This can lead to a sense of dislocation and alienation, as the personal world of the student begins to be separated from the professional world of the college and university community.

Therefore, it is crucial for the college and university graduate to develop a deep understanding of the self and of society, as well as an awareness of the interconnections between them. This requires a critical perspective, as well as the ability to think independently and creatively. It is not enough to simply be "knowledgeable" or "well-informed," for this would lack the critical aspect of understanding how knowledge and information are used.

GEORGE CARLIN TALKS ABOUT HIMSELF AND HIS NEW ALBUM, "FM & AM"

About a week or so ago, I discovered I was no longer in my self. The main reason I had become a comedian was missing, with no real reason why. I was no longer in my self, and I began to lose interest in my career.

Nathan Glazer, for the second of the two new books "FM & AM" (Futurology's "Beachhead") carlin himself, is the most outspoken of the group. He's probably the closest to the group as a whole, and the most likely to see the value in the music. It might be because it has an intellectual component and serious concern with self-exploration and self-renewal. But, because Amerson is indeed the self of "the self," the college and university graduate is no longer in his self.

This album is important to me because it tells a lot about me...

Mr. Subotzky and Mr. Roseman have given us a number of horror films over the years. Their last, one of the best, was "The Last Picture Show." The film was a box office hit, and it is likely to be a winner in the upcoming CAVEY (Columbia Academy of Video Excellence) Awards.

Mr. O'Neal has recently been a hardworking man. He has been working on a new film, "The Last Picture Show," which is scheduled to be released next month.

Dean Roy Senour apparently has the best of the disappearing act, that is, if you ask your neighbor. Senour has been seen in the halls, in the library, and even in the cafeteria. No one seems to know exactly where he is.

Senour is known for his love of books and his quiet manner. He has a reputation for being a good listener and a good conversationalist. He is also known for his love of music and is often seen with his guitar in hand.

Senour's disappearance has been the talk of the campus. Many students have expressed concern for his well-being, and some have even offered to help search for him. However, no one has been able to find him.
