BUSINESS FACULTY KILLS SWIMMING REQUIREMENT

Sub-Committee Set Up To Streamline Fees Process

By Kevin Howard Dubrow

Day Session Student Government started the second meeting of this semester with 14 members present at 3:45 p.m. The legislative body delved into many issues with a new Vice Chairman for the Business, Jake Jutkowitz, and guidelines and members chosen for the special five man sub-committee who decided on budgets for clubs and organizations.

At the February 7th meeting, the following resolution was passed: "All appeals shall be heard by a special subcommittee as set up by the Student Senate. This subcommittee shall consist of 3 senators and their decisions shall be approved or rejected as a whole by the full Senate when presented to them. The subcommittee shall meet in open hearing. This shall eliminate the constant problem of the Student Senate doing nothing but budgeting. We should have a separate concern for these matters and hopefully get money into the organization's hands within the first two weeks of the semester." The Fees Committee shall present a report to Senate on non-appeal budgets. Fees Committee and subcommittees' reports will be presented simultaneously." The present meeting saw guidelines and members chosen for this subcommittee. The guidelines passed are as follows: 1. "All five members of the subcommittee must be members of the Senate. 2. The person coming in sixth in the voting shall be the alternate." 3. "The candidate getting the most votes shall be the chairman of the subcommittee." 4. One member of the Executive Board of the club shall appear in open hearing. 5. Senate shall be approved or rejected as a whole by the full Senate when presented to them." The subcommittee shall meet in open hearing. This shall eliminate the constant problem of the Student Senate doing nothing but budgeting. We should have a separate concern for these matters and hopefully get money into the organization's hands within the first two weeks of the semester.

Once more Geraldo Rivera has returned to Baruch. The ABC crusader for change spoke to several hundred Baruchans this past Thursday in room 114 in the 24th St. Building, as a guest of the Public Relations Society.

Geraldo began the meeting by asking how everyone was and then moved on to his current position with ABC. After graduating from Brooklyn Law School, Geraldo became a lawyer, and attempted to help poor families in trouble with the law. Because of his notoriety as an attorney, Gloria Rojas, then at CBS, suggested to him that he try his skills at journalism. At first Geraldo Rivera refused, but later realized that he would be able to accomplish much more in front of a mass audience rather than as a trial lawyer. However, Geraldo refused to conform to a set role, and since has become an important part of ABC-New York. This has certainly been evident.

Education Department Will Hold Workshops

The Department of Education will hold three workshops so that Education majors may plan their programs. Students are to obtain copies of these guidelines workshops from the department, fill them out, and then attend a workshop. There will be a total of three of these guidance workshops, listed below. Students are to attend one of them, according to their specialization. Evening students who cannot attend should call the department at 733-4450 for an evening appointment.

Interview With Dean Arthur Brown

By Frank Newhouse

The Ticker is pleased to present an interview of Dean Arthur Brown of the School of Business, Liberal Arts, and Sciences, at Baruch College. We are very fortunate to have the opportunity to speak with him about the role of the Dean in the academic community and the challenges he faces in his position.

Dean Brown is a respected figure in the academic world, having served in various leadership roles throughout his career. He is known for his dedication to student success and his commitment to fostering a supportive and inclusive learning environment.

In this interview, we discuss the Dean's role in the academic community, the importance of collaboration among faculty and administrators, and the impact of technology on education. We also explore the challenges faced by institutions of higher education and the strategies that are being implemented to address these issues.

We hope that this interview provides insight into the role of the Dean and the challenges faced by institutions of higher education today. We thank Dean Brown for taking the time to speak with us and for sharing his valuable perspectives on these important topics.

Swim Requirements Killed

Dean Bohlman reported that the committee that had previously studied the possibility of initiating a swimming program had been dissolved. Dean Bohlman explained that the committee's dissolution was due to the lack of interest in the program among students.

However, the swimming program was not without its challenges. Dean Bohlman noted that the cost of maintaining the pool and hiring instructors was prohibitive. Despite these challenges, Dean Bohlman expressed his support for the program and encouraged students to continue to express their interest in the program.

Jay And The Americans: This Magic Moment Comes To Baruch

By Kevin Howard Dubrow

This major moment, while your average thespian may feel a chill to see his footlights next week, students at Baruch College have been working on this moment for the past semester... Is there anyone who doesn't know about Jay and the Americans? This group, like Dwight Eisenhower, has a name that's synonymous with two things: success and Baruch College. I imagine that for most of you, Jay and the Americans are the group that came in during registration last fall with their theme of 'Jay and the Americans.' And for the rest of you, I refer to the hurricane of information that came into your offices and your mailboxes last Fall. What is it about Jay and the Americans that makes the students so interested? I doubt there is anyone who doesn't know about Jay and the Americans, but there are a few students who may not. So let's start off with a description of the group and its relation to the college.

Jay and the Americans are a group of Baruchians who decided to use their talents to entertain the other students at Baruch. They started out as a club in the fall semester of last year and have since grown into a full-fledged entertainment group. The group consists of students from a variety of backgrounds and majors, and they use a wide range of musical styles and performances to entertain the other students at Baruch. They have also used their talents to raise money for various charities and causes, and their performances have been well-received by the Baruch community.

As Jay and the Americans have grown, they have also begun to receive more attention from the media. They have appeared on local television shows and have been interviewed by reporters and columnists. The group has also received several awards for their performances, and they have been invited to perform at various events and venues.

Jay and the Americans have also been involved in a number of community service projects, and they have used their performances to raise money for various charities and causes. They have also worked with local schools and community organizations to provide entertainment and education for the younger generation.

In conclusion, Jay and the Americans are a group of Baruchians who have used their talents to entertain and inspire the Baruch community. They have risen to prominence in a relatively short period of time, and it will be interesting to see what the future holds for this talented group of students. I encourage all students to support Jay and the Americans and to attend their performances. Their work is a testament to the power of entertainment and the value of community service.
