Baruch's arrows are pointing in the direction of downtown Brooklyn, with indications that between five and ten years from now Baruch's campus will be spread out on a new campus.

Through recent interviews with Baruch's Vice-President for Academic affairs William Monat and the Director of Campus Planning Constantin Fakas, this information about Baruch's moving plans has been made available to TICKER. Monat explained that the site design for this campus was made on an approximately fifteen acre tract of land near the Long Island Railroad Atlantic Terminal. This area is part of an urban renewal project in a neighborhood of low and middle income housing, on the edge of a business district. Fort Greene is in the vicinity. The land is not yet cleared of existing structures and ownership of the site has not yet been transferred to the City University from the city. Money to finance the campus construction and designs will be provided by the State Dormitory Authority, if and when the governor authorizes the SDA to increase its funding commitments to the City University by a speculated $100-110 million. (The SDA is a bondng and building agent which sells bonds on the market and uses its funds to finance construction in the city and state university system.) Once this happens, architects will have to hire, plans drawn, bids received, contracts let, construction commenced—this can be a long process or an expedient one, according to Monat.

An optimistic approach was taken by Campus Planning Director Fakas when he revealed that the process of preliminary planning, which usually takes from two-three years, was accomplished in less than six months with the cooperation of everyone involved. Fakas stated that the plan is expected to be submitted for approval by the Board of Higher Education at a meeting which will take place by the end of October. If the plan is approved, a book compiling all the information will be made public. Proposals included in the plan are related to the shape and system of allocation of the limited space within which the campus will be built. Architects have studied the effects the campus will have on community relations. In their designs for the campus, the architects and consultants have considered the needs of the college and the effects noise and air pollution may have on students and faculty. An attempt was made to give a feeling of openness. Circular articles into the campus will be easy due to the wide

Chairperson

For the Office of the Chairpersonship of the Day Session Student Government we urge the election of Mr. Allan Fisher. We have carefully surveyed each one of the six candidates for this office. Our consideration has been a searching, thoughtful and time-consuming effort. And we have scrutinized each candidate on the criteria of substantive contributions to the Baruch College community; positions attained; personal integrity; expertise, experience and apolitical virtue. This is particularly true as we labor under one of the most ambiguous and cumbersome Constitutional processes of financial regulation and disbursement in the City University of New York.

In our view, Mr. Jutkowitz possesses each of these qualities in large measure. Mr. Jutkowitz has served as editor of Lexicon '74, which was the first Baruch College yearbook to operate at a satisfactory profit. Mr. Jutkowitz is co-author of a far-reaching and innovative plan to revamp existing fees disbursement procedures. He has long labored to familiarize himself with the operations of the office he seeks through the elective process. And through all of this Mr. Jutkowitz presently serves as acting chairperson of the student government (in his capacity as chairperson) on the graduation of the former chairperson, Mr. William Fox. In short, Mr. Jutkowitz fills the bill...eminent.

We earnestly wish both Mr. Allan Fisher and Mr. Jake Jutkowitz their deserved victories in the elections tomorrow. And, finally...

Treasurer

For the Office of the Treasurer of Day Session Student Government we urge the election of Mr. Jake Jutkowitz. This office requires of its occupant the highest sense of personal integrity, expertise, experience and apolitical virtue. This is particularly true as we labor under one of the most ambiguous and cumbersome Constitutional processes of financial regulation and disbursement in the City University of New York.

Tomorrow

Tommorow, Wednesday, October 16th, volunteers will canvass classes to ensure that the number of Day Session students voting rises above 30 percent. President Wingfield has promised that he will not validate the election of plurality winners should we fail to poll that infamous figure.

That would be disastrous. Need we say more?

Candidates Debate

by NANCY BOWERS and MICHAEL FISHER

To take their respective campaigns to the people, the candidates for the Senatorial election at Baruch College held a debate scheduled for 8:00 p.m. at the Student Union Center. The debate was held on October 15, 1974.

The meeting of the three candidates, Allen Fishman, Paul Joseph and Michael Fishman, was conducted by Michael Fishman. The debate was a formal setting, with a scheduled time for each candidate.

The meeting was well attended, with a rough estimate of 200 people in attendance. Many students were able to attend the debate, which was a success for the Student Union Center.

Mr. Tucker immediately challenged his opponents to agree to one more debate in the near future.

Mr. Fishman declared that his position on the important issues facing the student body is clear and that his record of accomplishment speaks for itself.
