BARUCH HAS A PRE-MED PROGRAM.

By Ken Subotcheste

Baruch is a business school, right? Of course, wrong. For those who haven't yet noticed, we now have a biology major. In this age of computers, science major, but can every other student in the school? We have proved that the school can have more than one or, and all of them are positive.

The idea for the pre-medical program originated about three and a half years ago in the Biology Department. The plan was to develop an academic program that would attract science-oriented students and give them the opportunity to pursue a medical career. The program was designed to provide students with a solid foundation in the biological sciences, as well as an understanding of the ethical and moral principles that govern the medical profession.

The design of the pre-medical program and its courses is based on the input of all the faculty members. The program is designed to be flexible, allowing students to tailor their course of study to their individual needs and interests. The courses include subjects such as anatomy, physiology, microbiology, biochemistry, and genetics. Students also have the opportunity to participate in research projects, both on and off-campus, which provides them with valuable hands-on experience.

The program is a direct result of the school's commitment to providing a high-quality education for all of its students. It is our belief that every student, regardless of their major, should have the opportunity to explore their interests and passions, and the pre-medical program is just one of the ways that we can help them achieve their goals.

SPS - 16

The Student Publications Society is dedicated to providing students with a voice and a platform to express their ideas and opinions. We believe that the freedom of expression is a fundamental right, and we strive to promote an environment where students can engage in meaningful conversations and debates.

The Student Publications Society is a part of the Student Government and is responsible for the operation of The Baruchian, the school newspaper, and Baruchian Online, the school's website. Our members are actively involved in the decision-making process, and we continuously seek feedback from students to improve our publications.

The Student Publications Society is open to all Baruch students, regardless of their major or background. We encourage students to join our society and to participate in our activities, as we believe that everyone has something valuable to contribute to the discussion and that every voice matters.

THE OMBUDSDMAN

The office of the Ombudsman was created in the late 1970s to address concerns and issues faced by students. The Ombudsman is a neutral, independent, and confidential resource for students who need assistance with navigating the university's policies and procedures. The Ombudsman can serve as a mediator in disputes, offer guidance and advice, and provide support to students.

The Ombudsman is not a lawyer or a counselor, but rather a facilitator who helps students explore options and reach a resolution that is fair and reasonable. The Ombudsman's role is to promote a culture of respect, openness, and collaboration, and to ensure that students' voices are heard.

The Ombudsman is available to students who are facing challenges and who need assistance in understanding or resolving complex issues. Students can contact the Ombudsman by phone, email, or in person to schedule an appointment or to inquire about their rights and options. The Ombudsman's office is located in the Student Center, Room 102, and is open Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Ombudsman's role is to provide a neutral and confidential forum for students to discuss their concerns and to receive support and guidance in navigating the university's policies and procedures. The Ombudsman's goal is to help students find resolution and to promote a positive and supportive learning environment.

In conclusion, the Student Publications Society and the Ombudsman are two important initiatives at Baruch College that aim to provide students with a voice and support. These programs reflect the school's commitment to creating an inclusive and supportive learning environment that values every student and recognizes their unique needs and perspectives.
Improving your sex life

Does sexual activity have to be dull and repetitive? Do you and your partner feel like you're just going through the motions? Perhaps you've heard that there are ways to make sex more enjoyable and fulfilling, but you're not sure where to start. Perhaps you've tried new things, but they haven't worked out as well as you had hoped.

The good news is that there are plenty of resources available to help you improve your sex life. You might consider seeking out a sex therapist or counselor, who can help you work through any issues you might be experiencing and develop new techniques to enhance your sexual experience.

In addition to professional help, there are many books and articles available that can offer guidance and advice on improving your sex life. You might try reading about different sexual orientations or exploring the benefits of alternative sexual practices. You might also consider joining a support group for people who are looking to improve their sexual lives.

Ultimately, the key to improving your sex life is to be open to new experiences and willing to try new things. Remember that there is no one 'right' way to have sex, and what works for one person might not work for another. The most important thing is to be in tune with your own needs and desires and to communicate effectively with your partner.

So whether you're looking to spice up your sex life or just want to learn more about this complex and fascinating aspect of human experience, there are plenty of resources available to help you get started.

SEEK is Being Destroyed!

By the Baruchian Student Review

Last week we read on the front page of the Baruchian Student Review an article about the "oppressed" students of Baruch College, who feel that their personal freedom is being threatened by the administration. The article quotes several students who express concern about the proposed changes, which they feel will limit their ability to express themselves freely. However, we believe that the administration has a right to make changes in order to improve the educational experience for all students.

Finals

This is a wonderful time of the year for your favorite Reader. Yes, we know that the weather is cold, but it is a nice break from the hustle and bustle of the school year. We also know that many people are beginning to think about the future, and what they want to do after graduation. And we hope that this issue will help you with your plans.

The tests are over, and we can all breathe a sigh of relief. We can now focus on enjoying the rest of the year and having fun. We hope you all have a great time and that you continue to do well in your studies.

This is the end of the week, and we hope you all have a great weekend. Have fun and stay safe.

This issue is brought to you by the Staff of the Ticker. We hope you enjoy it, and we look forward to seeing you next week.

Editorials:

In recent years, TICKER has been the voice of the people on campus, reflecting the concerns and issues that matter to us. We have always believed that everyone has a right to be heard, and we will continue to use our platform to express our opinions and ideas.

It is important that we all work together to make our community a better place. We need to support each other, listen to each other, and be open to different perspectives. We need to stand up for what we believe in, and we need to be willing to compromise when necessary.

We hope that you will continue to read the Ticker and that you will be a part of our community. We are here to serve you, and we hope that you will continue to support us.

The Ticker is published by the Student Council of the University of Michigan and is independent of the University administration. We welcome any feedback or suggestions you may have. Please feel free to contact us at the address below.

The Ticker is a student-run newspaper, and it is funded by the Student Council. We hope you will continue to support us and that you will continue to be a part of our community.

Thank you for reading the Ticker, and we hope you have a great weekend.

What's New

By Evelyn tasty

There was a recent announcement that the president of the University of Puerto Rico, a short distance away, is planning to establish a Caribbean Regional Library. This library would serve as a resource center for the study of the Caribbean, with a particular focus on collections held at the University of Puerto Rico and other institutions in the region. The library would be a valuable addition to the resources available to students and researchers interested in the Caribbean region. The announcement about the Caribbean Regional Library comes on the heels of another announcement about the establishment of a Superior Caribbean Collections. This new addition to the College of Liberal Arts represents a commitment to expanding the scope of the University's academic programs and resources. The library and collections will provide new opportunities for students and faculty to engage with the rich cultural and historical heritage of the Caribbean region. The new library and collections are expected to be a significant resource for both local and international scholars and students. The University is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive academic environment, and the establishment of these new resources is a reflection of its commitment to excellence in education and research. The University of Puerto Rico is known for its strong academic programs and its dedication to serving the needs of its students and the community. The new library and collections will further enhance the University's reputation as a leading institution in the Caribbean region. The University is proud to be part of a growing network of academic institutions committed to the promotion of knowledge and understanding of the Caribbean region.
