Jewish Ex-Soviet Prisoner Speaks At Baruch

By Richard Warren

On Thursday, November 6, at 12:00 noon, Shimon Grilius, a Russian Jew who spent five years in Soviet prisons, spoke about the mistreatment of Jews in the Soviet Union. The meeting was cosponsored by the Lahav (Hebrew Society) with the Yiddish and Russian Clubs, and was held in Room 1004 of the 17th floor of the Building.

Grilius, who spoke his native tongue (Russian) and some Hebrew, described his experience in prison. He was put in the same prison with thousands of Moscow Jews. Thousands of Jews were transferred to a prison that housed Nazis. These Nazis beat and harassed the Jews, and, in addition, held important positions in the prison, such as foremen or dispensers of food. Grilius and others were not only beaten but were also humiliated. Their beards were shaved off with electric razors as they were tied to chairs and the Russian and Soviet officials, these Jews refused to give up their identity. In his speech, Mr. Grilius made it quite clear that inhuman treatment was still evident in the Soviet Union. Last Rosh Hashanah, thousands of Moscow Jews gathered outside the Moscow synagogue to observe this holy holiday. The Soviet police tried to prevent this by using their power and authority. Several brave Jews threw themselves in front of the traffic and as a result were beaten and arrested by Soviet police. During the last celebration of this festival, Mr. Grilius said, he managed to observe Passover. On the first day of Passover, there was a power failure, so he went to work. For the Seder, Beast Bull Yarn was used as a substitute for meat, the Hebrew word for egg on a piece of paper and a substitute for the bitter herbs. They also pretended they were crossing the Red Sea into Israel. Despite all the efforts of the Nazi guards and the Russian officials, these Jewish people refused to give up their identity.

Grilius' weight, an important factor in his survival, was one of the few pleasant experiences in his five years in prison. The generous weekly quotas of the prison allowed him to maintain a healthy weight. This was so he did not have to work on the Sabbath (the Jewish equivalent of going to church on Sunday, except the Sabbath is from Friday evening to Saturday evening). He naturally lost a lot of weight but he was not as bad off as some of his fellow prisoners. One prisoner lost half his weight, and those who were very religious, became a religious and observes sabbath. Grilius was put in a prison with a Russian equivalent of a rabbi (nobody is allowed to be a rabbi in Russia) taught Mr. Grilius a great deal of Jewish religion and culture.

He even managed to observe Passover. On the first day of Passover there was a power failure so he went to work. For the Seder, Beast Bull Yarn was used as a substitute for meat, the Hebrew word for egg on a piece of paper and a substitute for the bitter herbs. They also pretended they were crossing the Red Sea into Israel. Despite all the efforts of the Nazi guards and the Russian officials, these Jewish people refused to give up their identity.

In his speech Mr. Grilius made it quite clear that inhuman treatment was still evident in the Soviet Union. Last Rosh Hashanah, thousands of Moscow Jews gathered outside the Moscow synagogue to observe this holy holiday. The Soviet police tried to prevent this by using their power and authority. Several brave Jews threw themselves in front of the traffic and as a result were beaten and arrested by Soviet police. During the last celebration of this festival Mr. Grilius said he managed to observe Passover. On the first day of Passover there was a power failure so he went to work. For the Seder, Beast Bull Yarn was used as a substitute for meat, the Hebrew word for egg on a piece of paper and a substitute for the bitter herbs. They also pretended they were crossing the Red Sea into Israel. Despite all the efforts of the Nazi guards and the Russian officials, these Jewish people refused to give up their identity.

In his speech Mr. Grilius made it quite clear that inhuman treatment was still evident in the Soviet Union. Last Rosh Hashanah, thousands of Moscow Jews gathered outside the Moscow synagogue to observe this holy holiday. The Soviet police tried to prevent this by using their power and authority. Several brave Jews threw themselves in front of the traffic and as a result were beaten and arrested by Soviet police. During the last celebration of this festival Mr. Grilius said he managed to observe Passover. On the first day of Passover there was a power failure so he went to work. For the Seder, Beast Bull Yarn was used as a substitute for meat, the Hebrew word for egg on a piece of paper and a substitute for the bitter herbs. They also pretended they were crossing the Red Sea into Israel. Despite all the efforts of the Nazi guards and the Russian officials, these Jewish people refused to give up their identity.

In his speech Mr. Grilius made it quite clear that inhuman treatment was still evident in the Soviet Union. Last Rosh Hashanah, thousands of Moscow Jews gathered outside the Moscow synagogue to observe this holy holiday. The Soviet police tried to prevent this by using their power and authority. Several brave Jews threw themselves in front of the traffic and as a result were beaten and arrested by Soviet police. During the last celebration of this festival Mr. Grilius said he managed to observe Passover. On the first day of Passover there was a power failure so he went to work. For the Seder, Beast Bull Yarn was used as a substitute for meat, the Hebrew word for egg on a piece of paper and a substitute for the bitter herbs. They also pretended they were crossing the Red Sea into Israel. Despite all the efforts of the Nazi guards and the Russian officials, these Jewish people refused to give up their identity.
Crime Still In Upward Flight

By Richard Friedman

2 day ago "The last six months of 1975, a crime wave that seemed to have been in abeyance for years, has crept back, according to the Police Department. The crime statistics for the month of November show a rise in crime, in particular, a rise in violence. The number of shootings, stabbings, and robberies has increased. The causes of this increase are not clear, but may be related to the economic situation, the political situation, or both. The increase in crime has caused concern among the public and among law enforcement officials. The Police Department has intensified its efforts to combat crime, but it is not yet clear whether this will be effective.

For Your Own Good

By Dean Berta S. Newberry

5 day ago In a recent speech, Attorney General John Mitchell said that the law enforcement agencies should take a more active role in the prevention of crime. He pointed out that crime prevention is an important part of law enforcement and that it can be achieved through community policing, education, and the use of technology. Attorney General Mitchell also called for increased funding for law enforcement agencies, particularly for programs that focus on crime prevention.

Urban Corps Taking Applications

The New York City Urban Corps is now accepting applications for the 1976-1977 program. The Urban Corps is a program that provides opportunities for young people to gain job skills and experience in the community. Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 24, and must have graduated from high school or have a GED. The program is open to both adults and youth. Interested individuals should contact their local Urban Corps office or visit the program website for more information.

Program Lowers Cost of Skiing

By Steve Roos

5 day ago The Student Ski Association at City College has introduced a new program that allows students to ski for a lower cost. The program is designed to help students save money on ski lift tickets and equipment rentals. The Student Ski Association has negotiated rates with ski resorts around the country, and has been able to offer discounts of up to 50% on lift tickets and equipment. The program is open to all City College students, and is expected to be popular.

For a Time

By Richard Friedman

5 day ago "Today it is common to hear people say that life is getting more expensive. This is true, but it is not just the cost of living that has increased. The cost of education, health care, and other basic services has also increased. The government needs to take steps to address these issues, and to ensure that people have access to affordable services. The government has already taken some steps to address these issues, but more needs to be done. The government needs to consider additional measures, such as increasing funding for education and health care, and implementing policies to reduce the cost of living.

Jewish Ex-Soviet...

Command Post

For applications to be a tutor, students must: (1) have completed the tutor selection program during their first year, and (2) have a cumulative grade point average of 3.0 or higher. The program is open to both undergraduate and graduate students, and is expected to be popular.

Fresen Workshop

 energy and mathematics? Do the following Freshman Workshops will be held at City College on Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Student Imaging in Maple Lounge coffeehouse. (Taken photo by Howard Newman)

For Your Own Good

By Dean Berta S. Newberry

5 day ago In a recent speech, Attorney General John Mitchell said that the law enforcement agencies should take a more active role in the prevention of crime. He pointed out that crime prevention is an important part of law enforcement and that it can be achieved through community policing, education, and the use of technology. Attorney General Mitchell also called for increased funding for law enforcement agencies, particularly for programs that focus on crime prevention.

Program Lowers Cost of Skiing

By Steve Roos

5 day ago The Student Ski Association at City College has introduced a new program that allows students to ski for a lower cost. The program is designed to help students save money on ski lift tickets and equipment rentals. The Student Ski Association has negotiated rates with ski resorts around the country, and has been able to offer discounts of up to 50% on lift tickets and equipment. The program is open to all City College students, and is expected to be popular.

For a Time

By Richard Friedman

5 day ago "Today it is common to hear people say that life is getting more expensive. This is true, but it is not just the cost of living that has increased. The cost of education, health care, and other basic services has also increased. The government needs to take steps to address these issues, and to ensure that people have access to affordable services. The government has already taken some steps to address these issues, but more needs to be done. The government needs to consider additional measures, such as increasing funding for education and health care, and implementing policies to reduce the cost of living.

Jewish Ex-Soviet...

Command Post

For applications to be a tutor, students must: (1) have completed the tutor selection program during their first year, and (2) have a cumulative grade point average of 3.0 or higher. The program is open to both undergraduate and graduate students, and is expected to be popular.

Fresen Workshop
John Todd's Merges Interests

By Howard Neuman

The editor of the Columbia Chronicle, the 12th floor of Baruch College, and the BAI, the student radio station, are just a few of Todd's interests. Todd is known for his enthusiasm, commitment, and passion for music. He is a familiar face in the campus community, enjoying a good laugh with friends or working on a project for the BAI. Todd's dedication to his craft is evident in his ability to balance his responsibilities and still find time to participate in various activities on campus.

The Columbia Chronicle is a student-run newspaper that covers campus news, events, and local news. Todd's role as editor involves overseeing the production of the newspaper, ensuring that it adheres to journalistic standards, and managing the editorial board. The Chronicle is a valuable resource for students seeking information about campus events and local news.

The BAI, or Baruch Association of International Relations, is a student-run radio station that broadcasts music and news to the campus community. Todd's role as an advisor involves guiding the station's staff, ensuring that it adheres to broadcasting standards, and managing the operations of the station. The BAI is a popular destination for students looking for a fun and engaging experience, and Todd is known for his involvement in supporting the station's activities.

Todd's involvement in student radio and journalism is not limited to his role at Baruch College. He is also involved in the New York City music scene, attending concerts and events, and supporting local musicians. His passion for music is evident in his ability to balance his responsibilities and still find time to enjoy a good laugh with friends or working on a project for the BAI. Todd's dedication to his craft is evident in his ability to balance his responsibilities and still find time to participate in various activities on campus.

---

The Other Side of the Mountain

By Larry Warshawski

One of the few remaining American climbers, climbing through the streets in New York City, became the center of attention when he appeared on the cover of the New York Times Magazine. Warshawski, a native of New York City, has been climbing for over 20 years and has established himself as one of the most respected climbers in the United States. He is known for his dedication to the sport, his technical skills, and his ability to push the boundaries of climbing.

The story of Warshawski's climb is a testament to the challenges and rewards of climbing. He faced treacherous conditions, including high winds and snow, and had to rely on his own strength and determination to reach the summit. His journey was not without its challenges, but he persevered and succeeded in reaching the top.

Warshawski's climb is a reminder of the importance of perseverance, hard work, and dedication. He exemplifies the spirit of American climbers who have pushed the boundaries of the sport and have contributed to its growth and development. His climb is a celebration of the beauty and power of the natural world and a testament to the human spirit.

---

The story of Warshawski's climb is a testament to the challenges and rewards of climbing. He faced treacherous conditions, including high winds and snow, and had to rely on his own strength and determination to reach the summit. His journey was not without its challenges, but he persevered and succeeded in reaching the top.

Warshawski's climb is a reminder of the importance of perseverance, hard work, and dedication. He exemplifies the spirit of American climbers who have pushed the boundaries of the sport and have contributed to its growth and development. His climb is a celebration of the beauty and power of the natural world and a testament to the human spirit.

---

The story of Warshawski's climb is a testament to the challenges and rewards of climbing. He faced treacherous conditions, including high winds and snow, and had to rely on his own strength and determination to reach the summit. His journey was not without its challenges, but he persevered and succeeded in reaching the top.

Warshawski's climb is a reminder of the importance of perseverance, hard work, and dedication. He exemplifies the spirit of American climbers who have pushed the boundaries of the sport and have contributed to its growth and development. His climb is a celebration of the beauty and power of the natural world and a testament to the human spirit.
Letters To The Editor

Defend Open Admissions

T. H. B. Rockwell

Regarding the daily papers in all its articles and commentaries, I know you have seen the headlines on the front page stating that all college and university departments have been cut back. I am sure that many of you have been concerned by the news. I have been concerned as well, but I believe that there is a way to stop this trend.

The problem is that the CUNY budget is in crisis. The administration has proposed to cut the budget by 10% in order to meet the financial challenges of the recent economic downturn. This is a tough situation, but it is not without precedent. In the past, CUNY has faced similar budget cuts, and it has been able to weather them.

The key is to find ways to cut costs without sacrificing the quality of education. One way to do this is to ensure that the courses that are most critical to students are maintained. For example, departmental courses that are required for a degree should not be cut.

Another way to save money is to reduce the number of teachers and staff. Many of these positions are not essential to the functioning of the university. By eliminating unnecessary positions, we can free up resources to support the courses that are most important to students.

The administration needs to be aware of these concerns. They have not been transparent about their proposals and have not consulted with the faculty and students. It is important that they hear our voices and understand the impact that these cuts will have.

I urge you to voice your concerns to the administration. Let them know that we value our education and that we will not accept cuts that compromise the quality of our education. Together, we can work to find solutions that protect our future.

 Yours sincerely,

Linda Pacheco
Editor-in-Chief

---

FUNDWAYS, LTD. 110 Willowbrook Road Staten Island, N.Y. 10314.
(212) 761-4343

Please send: Offer No. 1 □ Offer No. 2 □

Amount Enclosed __________________________

Name ___________________________________
Address ___________________________________
City __________________ State __ Zip ________

ATTENTION

Ticker staff requested to meet at Ticker office 8 A.M. Wednesday morning to leave for Washington. Bring refreshments.

---

We are closing out the first edition of "C.P.A. Examination Review Outlines and Study Guides." This 800-page book by Irvin L. Gleim, Ph.D., C.P.A., sold last year for $17.95. Limit 1 book per student. Only 50 copies available. The first 50 orders get the book. All other orders will be returned with the check voided.

This book encompasses a complete C.P.A. review program and covers the examination and such areas of study as auditing, business law, accounting practice and theory, AICPA pronouncements outline, financial and cost accounting review, quantity, methods, taxes and governmental accounting.

This book makes interesting reading and a worthwhile gift. Dr. Pollak even sends along a tiny but genuine natural diamond with every book as a gift. Only $8.50.

Don't send cash by mail. Only checks or money orders accepted. Be sure to add 8% New York State sales tax. We pay the postage.
Impulse of Life

By Ara Sadanian

The University of the Arts presents "Impulse of Life," a dance concert that will include works by various choreographers, with music by composers such as Beethoven, Chopin, and Mozart. The concert will feature a diverse range of dance styles, including modern, classical, and contemporary, with performances by both undergraduate and graduate students. The audience will be treated to a variety of movements and interpretations, reflecting the dynamic nature of dance as a form of expression and communication. This event is an opportunity for students and the public to explore the rich tapestry of dance culture and its enduring appeal. The concert will take place on Tuesday, November 18, at 7:30 pm in the University Auditorium. Tickets are available at the door or online at thearts.university.edu.
By Richard Warren

By Richard Warren

By Richard Warren

Brainchild and Star Theatrical...
Ed Giacomin and The Rangers

By Marty Berkowitz

At 25, he represented hope for hockey fans who had known nothing but misery for 20 years. He was a young goaltender without a mask and prose to wandering from his goal crease. With deep-set eyes and prematurely greying hair, Ed Giacomin was an up-and-coming personality for the New York Rangers. Now, 11 years later, it is all over. For the winter price of $50,000, Giacomin has been dealt to Detroit, and an era in New York hockey is suddenly ended, with nothing to show in the way of replacement.

The world of professional sports has a revolving-door nature, such that relatively few athletes last long enough in one city to become established as a local entity. Ed Giacomin happened to be one of those athletes. His easily recognizable features and exciting style made him a New York celebrity, much in the style of a Walt Frazier or Joe Namath. Although the Rangers have never won a Stanley Cup, comprise the first competition for the Rangers, a shakeup in personnel for defense, and Giacomin.

His return to New York was one of the most touching events in the history of Madison Square Garden. It was a thank you to Giacomin for 11 years of excitement, an apology for some of the fans who had maligned the goalie in the past for Ranger losses that could not possibly have been all his fault, and finally, a protest against Garden management which shook up the Rangers by trading off one of the most popular players.

Each chant of “Eddie 1B-E” was accompanied by fans who are visibly tired of what is going on in New York.

What lies ahead for the Rangers? After six horrible performances in their past seven games, the Rangers are headed for the West Coast, and games against Vancouver, Los Angeles and California. If there is little improvement on the road, coming home may not be something to look forward to for Ranger players. The public is not in a mood to support a losing franchise on Long Island.

The team is on the verge of losing credibility in the New York area, and with it there may be something to look forward to for Ranger players. The public is not in a mood to support a losing franchise. The team is on the verge of losing credibility in the New York area.

What lies ahead for the Rangers? After six horrible performances in their past seven games, the Rangers are headed for the West Coast, and games against Vancouver, Los Angeles and California. If there is little improvement on the road, coming home may not be something to look forward to for Ranger players. The public is not in a mood to support a losing franchise on Long Island.

The team is on the verge of losing credibility in the New York area, and with it there may be something to look forward to for Ranger players. The public is not in a mood to support a losing franchise on Long Island.

The team is on the verge of losing credibility in the New York area, and with it there may be something to look forward to for Ranger players. The public is not in a mood to support a losing franchise on Long Island.

The team is on the verge of losing credibility in the New York area, and with it there may be something to look forward to for Ranger players. The public is not in a mood to support a losing franchise on Long Island.

The team is on the verge of losing credibility in the New York area, and with it there may be something to look forward to for Ranger players. The public is not in a mood to support a losing franchise on Long Island.