DEAN OF STUDENTS RESIGNS

BY NEERAJ VOHRA

Dr. Henry Wilson, Jr., dean of students since August 1980, resigned from his office at the May 20th faculty meeting. His resignation was effective as of June 30th.

Dr. Robert Georgia, assistant to the dean last year, was appointed acting dean effective July 1st, by Joel Segall, president of Baruch College.

Georgia's appointment is to last until a new dean of students is selected through a search committee that is about to be formed, said Paul LeClerc, the provost.

"I will be the acting dean of students for up to a year until the search committee chooses a replacement," said Georgia.

"Being the dean of students is a challenge and an interesting position," states Georgia. "I really love working with students. At the same time, I do feel bad about Wilson leaving. I feel that personally and I learned a lot from him."

Wilson could not be reached for comment. According to Georgia, Wilson will be "spending the fall semester on a special assignment which involves some kind of research, and in the spring will return to teaching."

Georgia declined to comment on Wilson's reasons for resignation.

"I could speculate just as anyone else can, but it would be unfair," said Georgia.

"In a position like dean of students there's a certain lifecycle-people tend to remain in a position like that for 3 or 6 years and then move on," he added.

Georgia says that he will most probably apply for the permanent position of dean of students, but that he is required to put forth a formal application to the search committee as does every other candidate.

Segall, whose office would have accepted the resignation, was on vacation and not available for comment.

According to Llanes, the assailant was "an unidentified black male in his 30's."

The victim was "not hurt in any other way-she didn't require hospitalization," said Stephen Wertheimer, Baruch College vice president for development.

"Investigations, to the best of my knowledge, are still under way, but there have been no arrests or suspects, and personally, I don't think that they are going to arrest anybody," he added.

According to Wertheimer, the assailant left very few clues. Both Wertheimer and Paul LeClerc, the provost, said that this is the first reported case of sexual assault that has taken place on campus.

LeClerc added that the assailant was not a Baruch student or staff member. According to Joe Vicenti, the assistant director of security at Baruch College, the investigation is being handled by the sex crimes division of the NYPD. The sex crimes division would not say whether they had any suspects in the case.

The police do have a sketch of the assailant that they are utilizing in their investigation. According to Vicenti, the victims at Baruch also have the sketch.

The incident has started a flurry of activity at Baruch. Joel Segall, president of Baruch College, has ordered that anybody wishing entrance to any Baruch building have an ID visible at all times. According to Vicenti, ten new guards have been hired to patrol the campus.

In addition, Segall has called for a meeting of student leaders for the second week of classes to discuss ways of improving security on campus.

Georgia On Our Minds

As reported in this issue of The Ticker, there's a new sheriff in town. More precisely, Dr. Robert Wilson, Georgia's new acting dean of students replacing Dr. Henry Wilson Jr., who resigned as of June 30. This move can only be seen as a positive one for Baruch students. In viewing the two men and how they treat and relate to students, it is obvious that there is a stark contrast. During his reign as dean of students, Wilson often seemed as if he were their enemy. Instead of being an advocate for students, he more often than not seemed to thwart their initiatives. The Ticker knows this from first-hand experience, as Wilson very rarely returned our calls. Obviously, Wilson owed some allegiance to the administration considering they had ultimate power over him, but unfortunately he took it to the extreme.

Georgia, however, is a different breed. In our dealings with him, Georgia seems to actually like talking to students and makes them feel welcome and comfortable. It appears that students will have more of an advocate than they did with Wilson. Students will find that calling or visiting Georgia is not that difficult, while doing the same with Wilson was like pulling teeth.

It is obviously too early to predict how Georgia will fare this year, but we are hoping for the best and expect nothing less. Georgia's appointment is only for one year, until a permanent dean of students is found. Georgia has indicated that he will throw his hat in the ring for that search. For now, however, let's all be happy that Georgia's the man with the badge.

How Swede It Isn’t

To The Editor:

As an open publication at Baruch College, the E.S.A. newsletter, and 92.3 WBAU both the students during the fighting semester, and not our own, the people who are the source of the problem is not up to us to solve. As far as I am concerned, a lot of students who feel that a response would come from us

Much of what was said about my speech before the Student Senate was not true. It is possible for a person to be a student and have a job at the same time...I have not as my rep. Need to have a better understanding of the occurrence of the phenomenon referred to, that is, how to prevent it. I can’t say that I have a good answer on that one. So far as I have been able to tell, the situation may best be described as "helpless."

Letter From The President

The following letter was written by President Joel Segal and distributed to the Baruch community.

To Our Students:

There was another assault in the same area in our 28th St. dormitory on Monday, August 4, at 3:00 AM. The victim was a 19 year-old student with whom you might be acquainted. The victim was not a student...We are taking the following steps to prevent this kind of incident from happening again.

1. The dormitory doors will be locked at all times during the night. Security guards will keep everyone out who does not have proper ID. If you have lost or a visitor in the dormitory, you must have proper ID.

2. Additional security force will be on duty in our dormitories. This action will be taken in coordination with the police department.

In addition, we suggest that all students monitor their surroundings and report any suspicious activity to the police. We encourage you to take care of yourselves.

One of Baruch's major efforts is a housing program, which is designed to provide students with safe and comfortable accommodations. Students should feel free to contact the police department at any time, as a precautionary measure. These efforts should prevent any future incidents.

The students had attended to Baruch students during registration, and the Ticker wishes to extend our congratulations to the Baruch community.

Helplines Are Here To Help Baruch Students

By Barbara Busch

As an open publication at Baruch College, this article in the New York Times is a delight to read. The article discusses the importance of providing help and support to students, especially during times of stress and difficulty. The article explains how the Ticker is working to provide assistance to students in various ways, including through the establishment of helplines. The article also highlights the importance of creating a supportive and inclusive environment on campus. The Ticker is proud to be part of this effort to support students and help them succeed.

OP-ED

Guess Who's Not Coming To Dinner

There are many fine people and institutions in the world who wish to see Baruch College succeed, but there are also many who have different ideas. Some people believe that Baruch is a good thing, while others believe that it is a bad thing. We believe that Baruch is a good thing and that it is important for Baruch College to succeed.

The people at the Long Island Avenue Baruch College in New York City have been blogging with us. They say that this is the best way to keep Baruch College from falling apart. They say that this is the best way to keep Baruch College from falling apart. They say that this is the best way to keep Baruch College from falling apart.

The Ticker has published articles on Baruch College in the past, and we have always been supportive of Baruch College. We believe that Baruch College is an important institution and that it is important for Baruch College to succeed.

There's A New Sheriff In Town

By John Greco

On June 30th, 1986, Dean Henry Wilson was named as Dean of Students. Taking the reigns as Acting Dean of Students, Wilson was ready for the challenge. He has been involved in the education community for most of his life. He graduated from the University of Michigan with his B.A. in Personnel and Guidance.

Dr. Georgia has plans for future services at Baruch. He began working at Baruch in 1974 as the coordinator of Veterans Affairs with such duties as administering the GI Bill for veterans and dependents, and counseling veterans at the college. He became the coordinator of Veterans Affairs and Graduate Students Services in 1982.

Dr. Georgia is 41 years old, lives on the west side of Manhattan and was born in Jersey City. He is married with no children. He received his B.A. from Rutgers and went on to get his masters in Sociology from the New York School of Social Research. He received his Ph.D. in political education from NYU.

Dr. Georgia has plans for future services at Baruch. A peer support program is services to the students. Other programs would include workshops for children and transfer students.

"It is a broadening experience... (You) learn to understand yourself and your own culture a lot better."

This new position, as well as others, is in combination with other college efforts such as cooperation with more than 900 other colleges, the college and guidance.

Another service which builds a particular interest in Dr. Georgia because of its cross cultural involvement is the visiting professor program.

"When you come to a different place, you are forced to learn more and be more open to the people and cultures other than our own," he said, "It is a broadening experience... (you) learn more about yourself and understand other cultures a lot better."

He has many plans and hopes for services to students. He believes in "higher education is more attuned to providing students in college would give their response," in enhance communication between students and staff.

A major change is the transformation of the student activity program. Until now, it has been separate between day and evening. It will be the future to be enhanced (and) to give students more opportunities to express their feelings.

In general plans to "coordinate programs of student personal and create more of an integrated and planned program.

The program for programs that are personal are moved from the school of liberal arts to the school of education. The reason for this change is because the school of education is more attuned to providing educational services. By combining it, we're taking a new identity for Baruch.

"We are forging a new identity for the school of education." Georgia.

Welcome to Baruch!

The transition from high school to college can sometimes be difficult. Baruch has a large student body that could seem overwhelming to an entering freshman. Making friends, knowing what classes to take, and adjusting to the general way of college life might be frustrating to some. But don't fret. Baruch offers many various programs. Some programs are a peer counseling service, medical office, physical fitness and recreation programs, counseling and testing programs, veterans affairs office, and many, many student clubs and organizations. A list of student clubs can be obtained at the Student Center, 137 E. 22nd St.

The Department of Physical Fitness and Recreation Programs has various physical fitness and health education programs. There are intramural programs as well. Says lecturer of physical fitness Howard Engel, "We offer the students a varied program. There are intramural programs that supplement the classwork." Engel adds, "It's always amazing to me...so many students don't know the pool or weight room or tennis court." These recreation programs are open to all students.

Welcome to Baruch!

The Ticker asks: What is the best advice for entering freshmen?

Barbara Lombo--Director of curricular guidance for the school of business. Develop good study habits. Take math and English. Read the catalogue. If there is any question, ask.

Wendy Heyman--Director of curricular guidance for the school of liberal arts and sciences. To know that you have a right to ask questions. To persevere and not give up.

Linda Quinet--Advisor, school of liberal arts and science. Read the handbook.

Debra Dick--Assistant director of student activities. Your education at Baruch is what you make of it. Look around, choose wisely, and be active. We're here to help you.

Carl Aylman--Director of student activities. Baruch offers everybody a great educational opportunity. Use every experience open in and out of the classroom. Don't be afraid to ask questions.

If you have any questions concerning which classes to take, go speak to an advisor in your appropriate school of curricular guidance.

Associated with arranging concerts a little extra money is not all that could be expected of a company like Baruch State Oil Refining Company which has been involved in the music business for 20 years. "We are always looking for new opportunities to reach out to people with our message of marketing for Quaker State. With our unique approach, we are able to reach a larger audience than through traditional methods such as radio or television advertising. The use of concerts and events is an effective way to connect with our target market of young adults. By partnering with well-known bands such as The Weeknd and Foo Fighters, we can leverage their popularity to increase the visibility of our lubricant products. The combination of great music and engaging promotions allows us to create a memorable experience for attendees. The success of these events continues to strengthen our brand presence and reinforce the Quaker State message."

ART NEWS
A Guide to Art in New York City

by Deborah L. Bobb

We have in our weekly reading of the New York Times and the New York Post, and our daily scanning of the headlines and the latest news, we arrive at the conclusion that the city of New York is a place where art is alive and well. For example, the recent opening of the new Museum of Modern Art in the Flatiron District has brought much excitement to the city. The museum has been undergoing extensive renovations and has been closed for several years. It is now open to the public and features a wide range of modern and contemporary art, including works by such prominent artists as Andy Warhol, Damien Hirst, and Jeff Koons.

The museum is open daily from 10am to 5pm, except on Mondays, when it is closed. Admission is $25 for adults, $15 for students and seniors, and free for children under 12. There are also special exhibition fees, which vary depending on the show.

The museum is located at 11 West 53rd Street, between 6th and 7th Avenues, in Midtown Manhattan. It is easily accessible by subway, with the nearest station being the 53rd Street/6th Avenue station on the 6 train.

The Museum's collection includes more than 13,000 works of art from around the world, spanning over 800 years of art history. The collection includes works by such artists as Pablo Picasso, Leonardo da Vinci, Vincent van Gogh, and Jackson Pollock.

The museum's permanent collection includes works by such artists as Pablo Picasso, Leonardo da Vinci, Vincent van Gogh, and Jackson Pollock. The permanent collection is divided into several galleries, each with a distinct focus. For example, one gallery is dedicated to American art, while another is focused on European art.

The museum also hosts a number of temporary exhibitions each year, featuring works from local and international artists. These exhibitions are free of charge and offer a chance to see works that are not part of the permanent collection.

The museum offers a variety of educational programs for all ages, including guided tours, workshops, and lectures. These programs are designed to engage visitors with the museum's collection and its history.

The museum's cafe, The Cafe at the Museum, offers a variety of food and beverage options, including salads, sandwiches, and pastries. The cafe is open daily from 10am to 5pm, except on Mondays, when it is closed.

Summer Flicks of 1986

By Michael Locksley

The dog days of summer lend themselves to one particular activity: going to the movies. Despite the latter activity's appeal, I found that it wasn't necessary to be forced into it. After all, the big screen of the theater, while definitely fun, can be quite expensive.

Recently, there has been a wide range of new movies released through the summer. They range from action films to comedy films. This became evident when I caught the word 'movie' in a conversation with my friend. He said, "I'm going to see a movie tonight. It's a comedy film."

The film in question was "Weekend Robber," a comedy film that has enjoyed wide popularity. The film follows the adventures of a group of bank robbers as they attempt to evade capture by the police. The film is full of laughs and has received excellent reviews from critics and audiences alike.

However, not all films are as successful as "Weekend Robber." Some films, like "Aliens," have been panned by critics and audiences alike. "Aliens" is a science fiction film that follows the story of a team of soldiers who are sent to investigate a planet that is home to extraterrestrial life. The film has received mixed reviews, with some critics praising the film's special effects and others criticizing the film's plot.

Overall, the summer movie scene has been quite varied. While some films have been successful, others have not. Nevertheless, there is no denying the fact that summer movies provide a great opportunity to enjoy some fun and laughter.
