Student Center Budget Cut

By CHRISTOPHER A. WARD

The Student Center Board has approved a budget which will cut over $21,000 from programming and services directly, affecting several student programs, among them, HelpLine, the Club Fair, and the Street Fair. This decrease is necessary," explained Ronald Aaron, associate dean of students, "because we were simply spending more money than we were taking in.

The Center relies almost entirely on income from student fees, which have not been raised in three years. Inflation and rising salaries have played a major role in increasing the operating costs of the Center. Without an increase in the student fees or use of some alternative to provide sufficient income, cuts to programs will be inevitable. Debra Bick, associate director of Student Activity, said, "recently, we have been depending more and more on monies that are carried over from one budget to the next. That is our cash-on-hand. Because of inflation, this amount has been dwindling. At this point, we are in real trouble because we just don't have that reserve to fall back on anymore."

According to the 86/87 fiscal year budget, the cash-on-hand was $68,000. The estimated cash-on-hand for the new 87/88 budget is $15,000.

The overall decrease in the new budget from last year is $49,999. From that, $21,085 comes directly from Programming and Services. The remainder of the cut is from Miscellaneous Expenses, Contractual Services, and Supplies and Repairs.

There were no pay cuts or reduction of employees. "We couldn't reduce the personnel budget," said Bick, "because of union considerations. The employees deserve and need raises, and a 5 percent salary increase is reflected in the budget."

She stressed, however, "Apart from the union problems it would create, there is no present need to start laying off employees. There is plenty of work to do around here."

A referendum to increase student fees was defeated during the last fiscal year by the students. Consequently, without an increase in fees (Continued on Page 4, Col. 4)

ASSOCIATE DEAN OF LIBERAL ARTS APPOINTED

By LINDA ZUECH

Dr. Carl E. Rollyson, Jr. was appointed Associate Dean of the School of Liberal Arts and Sciences according to a memorandum from President Joel Segall to the Baruch community.

Rollyson was one of the candidates for the Dean of Students position last March. The memorandum stated, "He impressed all who met him with the quality and breadth of his scholarship, his understanding of the Baruch mission, and his commitment to meeting the needs of an urban student population."

After Sam Johnson was chosen as Dean of Students, we were eager to find some other way in which to utilize Carl Rollyson's talents. With Dean Norman Faust in our corner, he was able to work on program development and administration on his own, without the pressure of the full-time job. Rollyson was then appointed Associate Dean of Students.

"He is a terrifically energetic and personable man," Faust said. "He's also an excellent scholar, and among other things he is an expert on the films of Marilyn Monroe."

Segall's memorandum described Rollyson's position saying "he will work in tandem with Associate Dean Joan Japha and will focus on new initiatives within the School of Liberal Arts and Sciences."

Faust said, "I expect that he and Dean Japha will work closely together and the three of us will try to provide the type of administrative leadership that will enhance life at Baruch."

According to LeClerc, "Everyone who met him thought highly of him and was extremely impressed by him."

LeClerc said that because of his qualifications the President was anxious to bring him to Baruch. According to Faust, "He had a lot of practical experience at an urban commuter school that is much like Baruch, Wayne State University in Detroit."

Faust said, "Dr. Rollyson is going to give us the opportunity to work on program development to get beyond the day to day operations of the school with new kinds of courses and research."

IMPROVE CONDITIONS

To The Editor:

I have been a student at Baruch for about two years now, and I must say that the campus atmosphere is always around the conditions that exist at Baruch College, particularly the garbage and the cleaning problem. The campus is always crowded, and not just during lunchtime. The classrooms are always dirty, and the hallways are always occupied by students. The library is always crowded, and the food is always expensive. I must say that I am fed up with the conditions that exist at Baruch College, and I believe that something should be done about it.

Sincerely,

Michael

T: You mentioned earlier your plan to bring more speakers to the club. The club is good at working for a cause, but we need to have more speakers.

R: Of course we need to do all the planning early on to make sure we're ready to go. We're also trying to bring more speakers to the club. The club is good at working for a cause, but we need to have more speakers.

T: Could you describe some of the speakers that you've had in the past?

R: We've had speakers from the Free Press, the New York Times, and the New York World. We've also had speakers from other local organizations.

T: What do you think is the most important issue facing the club today?

R: The most important issue facing the club today is the need to bring more speakers to the club. The club is good at working for a cause, but we need to have more speakers.

T: Any final thought?

R: Just that we're looking forward to a very productive year.

FORMER HILLSLE PRESIDENT KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

On June 2, a Baruch student died in an automobile accident with a car that swerved off the road in the town of Sparkill near the campus of SUNY at Orange County.

The body of 20-year-old Baruch student Donald M. Nami, who was on the campus for the summer, was found by the New York State Police in a car that had left the roadway near the campus.

Nami, who was a philosophy major, was reported missing by his family on July 1, 1986. At the time of his disappearance, Nami was working as a waiter at a restaurant in the area.

Nami's family said that he had been involved in a car accident earlier in the year.

His body was found on July 3, 1986, by the police who were searching for him.

DEAN'S REPORT

Baruch College's dean of students, Dr. Donald Bergquist, has announced the establishment of a "Information and Counseling Center" in the basement of 65 Park Ave.

Bergquist said that the center will provide a central location for students to receive information on a variety of topics, including academic and personal issues.

The center will be open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and will be staffed by trained counselors.

Bergquist said that the center will also serve as a meeting place for student organizations and clubs.

Breaking news:

Students at Baruch College have voted to make the school's newspaper, "The Ticker," a paid publication. The vote was 26-0, with no abstentions.

The newspaper, which is produced by the Baruch College Union, has been free to students since its inception.

The students voted to change the newspaper to a paid publication by a vote of 26-0, with no abstentions.

The newspaper will begin charging students a fee of $5 per year starting in the fall semester.

Task Force Educates Baruch

Dr. Tony Arpino and Ed Martinez

Students registering in-person, starting on August 15, have received a pamphlet and answers about AIDS, a New York State publication detailing what information exists now about the virus. The pamphlet was distributed by Baruch College's AIDS Education Task Force.

The AIDS Education Task Force met for the first time on May 11, 1987. As it name indicates, the purpose of the task force is to educate the Baruch community about the AIDS epidemic and make the most current information available. Members of the task force represent different segments of the college's population.

The task force's informational efforts will be divided into three areas: speaker presentations, faculty/staff training and print literature on AIDS. The members formed a subcommittee for each area.

According to recommendations proposed by the faculty/staff training subcommittee, workshops will emphasize the needs and concerns of the Baruch population over the current fall semester. The first group will be the task force itself, which will then concentrate upon those in student support services (Admissions, the Medical Office staff and the college's various executive and academic). Finally, the task force will concentrate upon educating the faculty, general staff and students.

Specific student gatherings, such as freshmen orientation meetings and student leadership training conferences, may be considered for training seminars and workshops.

The 100 Questions and Answers About AIDS publication was obtained from the New York State Department of Health in time for in-person registration, a priority for the entire task force. The document is the state's primary all-encompassing pamphlet on AIDS. The publications subcommittee has already booked the New York State AIDS Coalition Leadership Training Program for the spring semester. The presentation is a full-day workshop which is designed to educate leaders in the various levels of society; the AIDS Education Task Force met in May for training and is scheduled to meet again in November. Specific topics, such as the Baruch College AIDS Education Task Force may contact the Office of the Dean of Students, room 1702, 26th St. building, for assistance in scheduling. (212) 725-4177.

The subcommittee on speaker presentations has recommended a three-part series of presentations for the fall semester. These proposals include: 1. a panel discussion featuring representatives from organizations involved in AIDS education, e.g. the Gay Men's Health Crisis and the New York City Board of Health; 2. a four-person forum with a moderator, on the proposed topic: "AIDS at Baruch: Need we be concerned?"; and 3. a creative video-tape program for the spring semester that depicts an AIDS victim discussing the effects of the disease upon his life. The AIDS Education Task Force may contact the Office of the Dean of Students, room 1702, 26th St. building.

The subcommittee on speaker presentations will also consider its major topic: "AIDS at Baruch: Need we be concerned?" A major role in the subcommittee plans to invite representatives from organizations involved in AIDS education, e.g. the Gay Men's Health Crisis and the New York City Board of Health; 2. a four-person forum with a moderator, on the proposed topic: "AIDS at Baruch: Need we be concerned?"; and 3. a creative video-tape program for the spring semester that depicts an AIDS victim discussing the effects of the disease upon his life. Seminars can bring order to chaotic first days

By NANETTE F. GORDON

What courses are you taking this term, and how do you expect them to be? Are you a Financial Aid Office recipient? Do you have a preference for credit hours over academic load? How do you perceive your first year at Baruch?

The College Preparation Program aims to alleviate these concerns through its Freshman Orientation Seminars. These seminars are designed to help students navigate the challenges of their first year at Baruch. The seminars are facilitated by experienced counselors and cover a range of topics, including academic planning, financial aid, and campus resources.

All first-year students are encouraged to attend these seminars, which are held in the Recreational Center. The seminars are divided into three sessions, each of approximately one hour. Students are invited to attend one or all of the seminars.

Access to these seminars is limited to current Baruch students. We look forward to seeing you there.

French Perfume and Maine’s Misery

Perfume

By Patrice Suskind

310 pp. Hard Cover, $18.95

Perfume, by Patrice Suskind, is a novel that focuses on the life of a man named Grenouille, who is obsessed with the scent of other people. The story begins with the birth of Grenouille, who is born with an unusual ability to smell the scent of others. As he grows older, he becomes obsessed with becoming the most perfumed man in Paris. In order to achieve this goal, he experiments with various perfumes and learns to create his own unique scent. The novel is a web of aromas, from the scent of the newborn to the scent of the elderly, and provides a fascinating look at the world of perfumes and scents.

From Agoraphobia to Claustrophobia

By John GRECO

In a newly noticed Los Angeles, in a bar around the Golden Horn, a class of people live for the one person of consuming alcohol. Among them partially current people is Henry Hovani (played by Mickey Rourke), a sharply young man. The reason Henry chooses to stop drinking is that he gets paid for drinking. This is a big advantage, because the relationship between the two is as close as when Henry gets paid for drinking.

Henry is an essential purchase. When he gets back he discovers the last day be played on the radio.

But for attempting to make it work, but movie the viewer simply squirms and shifts to the inside of a house or some such type of environment. We know that aversion to the outdoors that the audience is perfectly happy listening to Mozart and the channels of his television set to programs such as a wildlife show in which a predator is devouring its prey, a commercial for cigarettes, and the story leaves no clues as to why the situation came about in the first place. All the details of the opposition to Henry's is a young man who makes his way, ain't no bitch gonna play with grease or get depressed by the end of the film as she tells Loudon as he looks at his mirror in the end. It is not until the chords when his friend (Howard Morris) questions him about the situation that the audience is directly left off in the big way. And even so, it is this type of screenwriter's concentration on the form of broadcasting makes a strong argument about the perpetuation of the human race through the process of broadcasting.

There are many small roles in the film. One that has been developed much as such as they should be. Henry's business is cut out completely by the viewer (Sheri Shider) which ultimately proves to be his downfall. The reason Henry chooses to stop drinking is that he gets paid for drinking.
