International Students Raise Complaints

By CAITLIN MOLLISON

Complaints against the services of the Foreign Students' Office have been launched by various students who claim that the office employs only one person who is responsible for all 1,800 international students.

According to Dean Levy, a foreign student and an upper session, Steven Goldberg is the individual responsible for running the entire office. Besides the help he receives from two student aides, for about 20 hours per week, he is on his own. Said Levy, "He's doing it by himself, with no help."

Falling Bottle Injures Student

By LINDA ZUECH

An unidentified Baruch student standing in front of 17 Lex. Ave. was struck in the head when several bottles were thrown from a window above him at 2:39 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 24, according to Mr. Vincent Iannaco, assistant director of security.

"We have people saying three or four bottles were thrown from the top of one of the windows," said Iannaco. He went on to say, "We had witness that said it came from our building. The witness contacted said it came from approximately the seventh floor. He wasn't sure."

According to Iannaco, "The student was hit in his head and he was brought to the nurses office by one of the guards."

Iannaco said, "The nurse's office initiated the first aid. I believe he refused to go to the hospital."

Dr. Ronald M. Aaron, the associate dean of students, said, "Based on what on of the students who was present said, it appears to have been thrown from a Baruch window on the Lexington Avenue side."

"It did not come from one cafeteria. It must have come from a classroom whose windows faced the Lexington Avenue side. However, this is one student assessment," said Aaron.

According to Aaron, Dr. Helen Harrow-Andonides did the stitching of the wound. The doctor said the wound was an inch to two inches long. The student was later picked up by his mother and (Continued on Page A12 Col. 4)

COMPUTER REGISTRATION SYSTEM ARRIVES
On-Line Registration for Spring

By SUSAN ROBERTS

A new computer system which has been in developmental stages for about four and a half to five years and which has been promised to Baruch students since the Summer '87 semester will finally be in use, according to Thomas McCarthy, the registrar.

McCarthy said, in person registration can take anywhere from a period of half an hour to three hours depending on each individual's luck. However, with the introduction of the Baruch On Line Student System, registration for the Spring 1988 semester will undergo a major change at Baruch. With this system, if everything goes smoothly, registration should not take more than ten minutes from the beginning to the end.

With the BOLSS some of the procedures of registration will remain the same. According to McCarthy, "There will still have to come to Room 114 from in person registration. They will have to sit down on a chair and give their registration cards to people (the runners) but they will give the registration cards to a member of staff who will check to see that all appropriate grades are attached. The staff then gives the cards to a terminal operator who will input the information into the terminal. McCarthy said, "The major change (with the new system) will be that all full-time students will not be required to pay first. All students will pay after registration has been completed." In the past, only part-time students were required to pay after their registration procedure was completed. When the process is completed, the student will be given a confirmation right on the spot which will include a bill and all the financial aid that the student is entitled to.

Commenting about the On-the-Spot Confirmation, McCarthy said, "In the past, being able to tell a student that a particular course was closed or that there was a problem with a student's registration took an inordinate amount of time. Under the new system, the student should be able to be notified of any problems that had been encountered with the registration in five minutes if not less than that."

Early registration (which will be December 7-10 for the Spring semester) will also be affected by the new system. Students will be dropping off just the registration card instead of including the pink master card and the payment invoice. The students who receive a complete schedule will be mailed a confirmation and a bill. A deadline by which to make the return of the bill will also be included. Commenting on the present system, McCarthy said, "The students had to make a commitment with no guarantees that his or her classes would be accepted. The students who did not get a complete schedule would have actually paid for a complete schedule." Students entitled to ear (Continued on Page A10, Col. 3)

Fee Increase Passes Board of Trustees

By LINDA ZUECH

The proposed student fee increase was passed by the City University of New York's Board of Trustees at their November 23 meeting. The increase will go into effect for the spring '88 semester.

The increase will raise the Day Session Student fee from $36.35 to $50. The increase was voted on in a student election which took place on Oct. 13-15. The measure passed 664 in favor, 634 against.

John Richards, president of the Day Session Student Government said, "I just want to say thanks to the 1308 students who came out to exercise their right to vote. It was a deciding statement to the fact that apathy is not alive as people seem to think.

He went on to say, "The 664 that brought it up, we say thank you doubly, and to the others, as time goes by and they see the increase in activities and services they will begin to feel comfortable with the increase."

Steven Goldberg is the incoming president of the Baruch On Line Student System, registration for the Spring semester will undergo a major change at Baruch. With this system, if everything goes smoothly, registration should not take more than ten minutes from the beginning to the end.

As the registrar, McCarthy said, "The major change (with the new system) will be that all full-time students will not be required to pay first. RESIGNS ESSA

By KENNETH BROWN

The President of the Evening Session Student Assembly, James Ackerman, resigned his post on November 19, 1987 for "personal reasons."

"I'll just say I'm leaving for personal reasons," said Ackerman. "If I am not coming back to Baruch next semester."

H. Kwasi Donkor was elected to replace Ackerman as president at the same November 19 meeting. According to the ESSA meeting minutes, "the usual practice of separating nominations and elections by at least one meeting" was suspended in order "ensure the continuity of the presidency."

We felt we didn't want a lame duck president," said Donkor.

According to the current ESSA Constitution, in the event of a vacancy in an executive office, "a replacement shall be elected from within the Student Assembly at the next scheduled meeting."

Besides Donkor, Julian Arowowitz was nominated for the ESSA presidency. According to the meeting minutes, Donkor won in a closed vote counted by Mark Spigel, assistant director of Evening/Graduate Student Services. Previously at the ESSA's September 8 meeting, Aronowitz had been defeated in his bid to become president by Ackerman.

Happy Holiday

Twas the night before Christmas
Jingle Bells and Rudolph
Masters of the universe
Pee Wee Herman Dolls

Overkill Still
The city under a spell
Twas the night before Christmas
Frosty Breath
on the window
Crisp Steam

In a witness dream
The Santa's on the street
Ringing Bells for money for
The bums who lay at their feet
And the children laughed and smiled
as the store clerks ran Amuck
Wrapping presents, filling shelves
the escalator is stuck
The Christmas tree in Bondage lean upon an old Dodge van implored a passerby
Namied Stan
To bring them home.
It's Christmas time
"Kashmear scarves..." "Here"
laid out on cardboard box
The entire world looks on the entire world has one on its Christmas and we donate to the nice man from another country
Selling Godzilla's on a Blanket

It's Christmas time
Three kids wear red plaid
They are brothers
with their mother
One steps in the Gutter
Breaks the ice into puddle
All too subtle
mom pulls him back and smiles

It's Christmas time
While the crowd stands
to listen
To a violin and flute play their very own rendition of that chipmunk song about the Hula Hoop
It's Christmas time
and we're not weary still like a shopping to do
For all those relatives
We thought were just a few
All bundled up
Gloves pulled tight
fuzzy noses
Chestnuts smell funny
The pretzels are better
Subway steam
Industrial Heat
Like the icy buildings all around us
In a little park though one squirrel left
He has no presents to buy
He searches for food to survive
A little old woman
tattered coat
Shuffles over, reaching out
One squirrel left
She gives him some peanuts
It's Christmas time

Florida State University has taken the initiative in identifying intramural sports programs that are not being used. They have set up an intramural sports program, which is being advertised. The program is open to all students and will provide an opportunity for students to get involved in sports that they might not have been able to participate in otherwise.

WOMEN TAKE THE INITIATIVE

Penn State's SGA offers $200 for an essay on the importance of women in intramural sports. The essay should be written by a female student and should address the issues of gender equality in sports. The deadline for submissions is October 31, 2007. The essay will be judged by a committee of faculty and staff from the Department of Physical Education and Sport Sciences.

JEANS IN CREAM

You're an honor student, right? You can afford to wear designer jeans, right? Well, you can't afford to wear cream-colored jeans. They're not appropriate for a student who wants to be taken seriously. It's better to wear jeans that are dark blue or black. It's a better choice for the school environment.

LACK OF FUNDING & DEMAND CLOSES VETERAN’S OFFICE

By John W. Clark

Baruch College has closed the Veteran’s Office, due to a decrease in demand for the services provided by the office which had been located on the 7th floor of 360 Park Ave. S. According to Former Bowen Johnson, Dean of Student Services, support had come from an original $12,000 to $18,000. The amount had been determined using a formula based on how many vets were on campus.

Mr. Johnson added, “As campus support decreased, the office had been reduced to one staff member during the day and part-time student support.”

According to Associate Dean of Students, Dr. Ronald M. McCarty, the award that the federal government was willing to grant Baruch for the Veteran’s Office is “That is a small part of the reason why the Veterans Office was closed.”

Johnson stated, “We need to locate some of the members of the Alumni Association to make sure that the money.”

The association was not the only reason why the Veteran’s Office was closed. Baruch also had to decrease the amount of the grant in order to keep the office in place.

Computer Registration

Registration (those having at least a credit in the course) and later a confirmation on the spot before, Mr. McCarthy said, “The concern was that if the students do not come in a timely manner, and drop them. They don’t have the opportunity to show up and go in at the office. They can drop off the materials later and return to them.

When asked about the reason for the delay of the introduction of the new system, Mr. McCarthy said, “The new system is being developed by Baruch College and it is needed to modernize in order to make workable at Baruch. It is (the system) also going to reduce the number of program fees. The program is expected to be functional in the next year.”

The new on-line system is basically the same as the system in use at Baruch College, except that Baruch no longer has to deal with registration at the present time. Baruch’s online system was designed to make registration easier. The possibility of a breakdown of the system is very low. The system will be backed up every day on the computer. The only problem that can arise is at the end of each day when the data is sent to the office. The new system is flexible so that even as early as six courses can be added. When there are a few courses for which there is a normal time to finish the course, there will be a way to do a manual check.

Mr. McCarthy said he wanted to make sure that the new system is adapted by Baruch. Baruch’s OLECS is not an adaptation of the registration software. It is an actual student information system that allows students to participate in the institution and give them access to the same database. Financial aid transactions and a few other procedures require a student to be involved in the process, it is better to do an automated version. The new system is flexible so that even as early as six courses can be added. When there are a few courses for which there is a normal time to finish the course, there will be a way to do a manual check.

Mr. McCarthy further added that even though they had been involved in the development of the new system, it is a good idea for students to become familiar with the system. Baruch is looking to the future for stakeholders to become familiar with the system. The new system will be introduced in the fall of 1990 and in a few years it will be operational in the fall of 1990. Opera Heightens Emotions and Challenges Our Minds.

Short and abrupt trills capture Violeta's short and frantic phrases as a decision has to be made.

At the opening of the final act, a high-echelon is achieved with Violeta's passion. She will sacrifice all for the sake of beauty and love. Violeta's sacrifice is a symbol of the ultimate love and devotion. It is the portrait of a single human.

As Violeta's short and frantic phrases are highlighted, the music department at Baruch realizes that this is a key moment in the opera. The music sets the tone for the final act. The music sets the scene for the story.

This is a document that discusses the exhibition of Moroccan textiles at the Baruch College Gallery. The curator, Richard Bird, talks about the history and significance of Moroccan textiles, which are primarily made by women. He mentions the variety of techniques used, such as symmetry in vertical and horizontal arrangements, and the importance of these textiles in daily life and cultural practices. The exhibition includes rugs, articles of clothing, and decorative items, and it is part of the Moroccan Art Show that commemorates 200 years of friendship between the United States and Morocco. The curator aims to fill a void in the United States, where Moroccan textiles are not well represented, and he hopes that the exhibit will dispel some common myths about Moroccan culture and open doors to a better understanding of its richness and diversity. The exhibit opened in November and was considered a success by the curator and attendees.
DISCUSSIONS OF OLD ORDER

music is taking a new direction and is facing some very serious problems. Music today is often defined as something that is different, something that doesn’t fit in with the mainstream culture. It is often considered to be ‘alternative’ or ‘underground’ music, which means that it is not popular with the general public. However, there is a growing trend towards mainstream music, which is being influenced by various factors. One of these factors is the influence of technology on the music industry. Technology has revolutionized the way music is produced, distributed, and consumed. The rise of digital music platforms, such as Spotify and Apple Music, has made it easier for musicians to get their music heard by a wider audience. At the same time, it has also made it easier for music to be pirated and shared online. This has had a significant impact on the music industry, as it has led to a decline in the sales of physical albums and a rise in the sales of digital downloads. It is important to note that technology is not the only factor that is influencing the music industry. Other factors, such as the rise of independent labels and the increase in the popularity of DIY (Do It Yourself) music, are also playing a role. It is clear that music is a constantly evolving art form, and it is important for musicians to be aware of the changes that are happening in the industry. It is also important for them to be creative and to find new ways to connect with their audiences. In conclusion, music is facing serious problems, but it is also experiencing a period of significant change. It is up to musicians to adapt to these changes and to find new ways to connect with their audiences.

Few keywords are as interchangeable as the word "music." The dictionary defines music as "the art of producing and combining sounds, usually with the purpose of expressing some idea or emotion." However, music can also be defined as "the art of creating and performing sounds with an aim to melodic beauty and emotional effect." Music can also be described as "the art of organizing sound in such a way as to create a pleasing and satisfying experience." Music can also be defined as "the art of arranging and organizing sounds in a way that produces a pleasing and satisfying experience." When Fugnus' death and life are over, his songs that seem to make quite different images in your head and the songs don't often resemble these ones. Van Morrison needs a little more flexibility and take it back into the mainstream because he is far from the mainstream. They carry a solid sound and which resonates with the event, the From two to the performance. For example, why not use those two to the song for the U.S. to start back up the song? Don'ts, the first song because the British music group is yet to make a solid impact on the W. O. A.

Finally an album that everyone can relate to in one man band led by extreme. Carol Fries is super, his songs don't tell a story of their own and thus a song of their own. They are complex and very personal and they are complex and very personal. His songs and voice are so beautiful that it is hard to not think about his performance. Carol is so much better than is in a song of their own. His music is very complex and very personal. His music is very complex and very personal. His music is very complex and very personal.

The End of the Storm

By GLUT J. SPANNER

From the New York Times, February 17, 1988

The End of the Storm: a film by Bernardo Bertolucci and produced by Bertolucci and Joan Chen. It was nominated for Best Foreign Language Film at the 61st Academy Awards.

The film is set in the Forbidden City of Beijing, China, during the time of the last emperor, Pu Yi. The story is told through a series of flashbacks covering his life from his early years as a child at the palace to his later years as a member of the Chinese Communist Party.

The film received critical acclaim for its cinematography, direction, and performances, particularly by its star, John Lone. It was praised for its evocative portrayal of the Chinese imperial court and its historical accuracy.

Human Carnage

While I am unsure of exactly what Koch hoped to accomplish, I do know what Cox hoped to do. He wanted instead for things he saw in New York to happen here in Los Angeles. And I think we all know what a hopeless dream that is. New York is the financial capital of the world. Los Angeles is the entertainment capital. We can’t even get a movie made here. And now, with the advent of television, the real hope for this city is in the hands of the desperate. I am not too sure why George Straight has so much to do with it, but just as I have heard so many times about the work of Sonic Youth and Pipa Gallo, Boston seguiria ha to do with 20 years from a pair of individualized outfits might enough in order. But what is it about that young couple that makes it so attractive? It is the way they get along with each other. It is the way they maintain their own individuality while still contributing to a whole. It is the way they handle the pressure of having to perform in front of others. It is the way they keep their sense of humor and privacy, while still being available for the public. It is the way they work together. It is the way they share their love for music. It is the way they keep their own identity, while still being part of a group. It is the way they learn from each other. It is the way they grow together.

Blogging into the Basketball Season

By MARK CALLAHAN

This year, the team has been very different. Instead of a new coach, the team has a new player. Theresa Harris is a point guard who has been with the team since last year. She is a team leader and has helped the team improve its defense. Theresa is also a great shooter and has scored many points for the team. She is a key player for the team and has been named the Most Valuable Player of the Year. "She is a great player," said coach Theresa. "She is always ready to help her team and is a great leader." Theresa is a great example for the other players on the team. She is always ready to help and is a great team player. The team has been working hard and is ready to win the championship.

SOUR SUPPORT

By MARK CALLAHAN

I was at the game last night and was amazed by the atmosphere. The crowd was packed and everyone was cheering for the team. The players were playing hard and were determined to win. The team has been practicing for weeks and it showed. They were playing with a lot of energy and were able to keep up with the other teams. The team won the game and the crowd was cheering them on the whole time. It was a great night for the team and for everyone who came to watch the game. I can't wait for the next game.

Rankis' Renegades

By MARK CALLAHAN

As the leaves blossom into various spectrums of color and fall off of the tree, it shows times are changing. Along with the times, so do sporting events change. The men's soccer and women's volleyball teams have wrapped up their seasons, and it is now time for basketball.

Coach Ray Rankis and the team are convinced about having a winning season this year. "We could go all the way," commented Elijah Middleton, an aggressive fieldgoaler who basically goes to the hoop. "We have three point scorers, good defense, and we can learn to work together more."

Rankis figured that in order for the team to do well this year, they must depend on some key points: 1) How the players mesh offensively as a unit. "They must try to suppress their egos," said Rankis. 2) How hard working defense has to be consistent. Gary Roberts and Sam Safa are the best men on defense. Rankis had this to say about the defense. "The defense is very unselfish about scoring and because of this, it allows the other players to flourish." 3) How they can handle adversity; all teams lose. 4) They must stay away from injuries. This doesn't seem possible so far this year, though. The season has barely got underway and already the team is plagued with injuries. The injury list is unending: Chris Cuevas had an infection in his leg but he is now in with the team working out and breaking into the games; Sam Safa, groin pull; John Sondy, broken hand from the Pratt game; Sandy Varellas, chipped ankle.

Basketball. They only practice five days a week and most schools practice six or seven. They must also keep up a C average just to stay on the team. The only time to study is the time other than school, practice and games which doesn't leave much time. One of the things that the team could use is fan support. The home games are played at Xavier on 16th Street between First and Sixth Avenues. A short walk through a marvelous city to see a great team. They really need our fan support so it would be nice if we all would attend and support our team.

Goal was to finish top third in CUNY Conference and finish the season 15-10 or better.

This year, Baruch will face some stiff competition like Lehman who are former champions, York and Staten Island who were 12-2 during the regular season, John Jay, CCNY and Hunter. The season will be a difficult one not only because of the difficult teams, but the pressure that the team endures. The practice for the team is 7 - 9 p.m. When many of Baruch's students are just getting up, these guys are playing basketball. They only practice five days a week and most schools practice six or seven. They must also keep up a C average just to stay on the team. The only time to study is the time other than school, practice and games which doesn't leave much time. One of the things that the team could use is fan support.
