CUNY FACES $60 MILLION BUDGET CRISIS

By BARBARA MEISSNER

The City University of New York faces an about $60 million budget crisis, which will affect Baruch very seriously, according to Joel Segall, president of Baruch College. "I think it will affect the college very seriously indeed, unless the legislature softens the governor's budget," said Segall.

Baruch must contend with a portion of this deficit, according to Segall. "If the budget goes through as the governor has proposed we could be in trouble to the extent of somewhere around $6 million."

The burden of the budget crisis will be most reflected in the number of faculty and staff at each of the city universities, "if the cut is as deep as the governor proposes we will have to non-re-appoint some people," stated Segall.

The 1988-90 State Executive Budget will "require layoffs of 885 full-time and 500 part-time faculty and staff," according to a statement by Joseph S. Murphy, chancellor of CUNY.

According to Murphy's statement, however, "substantial layoffs of faculty and staff will have disastrous consequences on the education of our students and on the city and state that depend heavily on an educated citizenry."

REGISTRAR ENFORCES TUITION PAYMENT DEADLINE

By HOLLY HITTMAN

The office of the Registrar and the office of the Bursar have joined together in an effort to minimize the problem of students who register for courses and then do not pay their tuition by the agreed date, thus closing out courses for those students who are willing to pay, according to Senior Registrar, Thomas P. McCarthy.

McCarty commented, "Any one who comes into registration and takes a seat in a course and then walks away and never pays for it, is actually stealing that seat away from other students. I can't tell you how many students I had that said that there are no Acc 1101's, there are no Acc 1202's, there are no Law 1101's and so forth, because every section was full, but if students came in, registered for one of those courses, and ends up never paying for it, they're taking that seat away from a student who really wanted that course and was willing to pay for it."

Students could have paid their tuition at the time they registered, but may have the option to forgo payment until January 12. Those who register in person are expected to take care of their charges at the time they register, one who cannot pay the tuition, can go to the Bursar and make arrangements to pay part of the tuition and be given an extension, according to McCarthy.

McCarthy assures that they, the office of the Registrar and the office of the Bursar, have tried to give every student opportunity to pay their tuition. Anyone who has still not done so by February 10 will be dropped from their courses. "What we're trying to do is to discourage students from not making the financial commitment that they had," said McCarthy.

Lallgie Resigns As Treasurer

DSSG APPOINTS BIGGER ACTING TREASURER

By E.J. MILLS

The changing of the guard took place in the Day Session Student Government when Helen Lallgie stepped down as the DSSG Treasurer in February. Lallgie will continue to tutor and remain a full-time student. This semester, however, she will work at Citibank and leave the daily grind of room 409 in the Student Center to Michael Bigger, who says, "will do a good job."

Lallgie will also continue to tutor for a permanent candidate was complete.

At the Council table, no one asked why and Boisson did not try to explain the reason for Lallgie's action. An air of understanding seemed to blanket the issue at the meeting.

DSSG President Ainsley Boisson announced to the Council at their February 2 meeting that Helen Lallgie had resigned her office as DSSG Treasurer. In a business-as-usual setting, Boisson asked the Council to approve the appointment of Michael Bigger, a junior finance major, as Acting DSSG Treasurer until the election process for a permanent candidate was complete.
MORE PARTICIPATION = MORE SERVICES

In a new spurt of energy, the Evening Session Student Assembly has formed a task force to look into the deplorable lack of services that evening students receive at Baruch. Yet there is a consensus in both the administration and the evening student leadership that the lack of interest and organization on part of the evening student population is the reason why this problem has not been taken care of.

It is understood that evening students who work all day and attend school at night are overburdened already and do not have a lot of time to spend lobbying for change. But it is surprising and unacceptable that only five percent of the evening student population participated in their last student election. This leaves the ESSA in a virtually powerless position now that it is trying to push the administration into guaranteeing evening students access to college offices through a more flexible schedule.

Some evening students are demanding that they be given preference over day students when registering for evening classes. This is a completely reasonable request and will never be acted on if the evening students do not get together and make some noise. A fifty percent turn-out for the next election would be loud enough to spin a few heads and give the ESSA some massaging room. It does not take longer than five minutes to vote in a student election.

The administration argues that evening students would not make use of later office hours if they were instituted and that there is no difference between the treatment of day and evening students at Baruch. It is up to the evening students now to prove the truth of this statement by further inaction or to do something to change the situations that they have been sitting back and mourning about for so long.

THE TIP OF THE ICEBERG

In an effort to alleviate the closed-course syndrome at Baruch, the Registrar’s and Bar­­u­ch Office have joined in together in what can only be described as a commendable effort to try to allow more students to register for classes. The two offices have enforced a tuition payment deadline which should open up a number of seats in classes that can be filled by students serious about a particular course. What occurred in the past was that students were signing up for classes and then never paying for them, effectively stopping them from taking full advantage of the opportunity to attend classes and, ultimately, making a decision on their behalf to close classes that were filled by students serious about a particular course. What occurred in the past was that students were signing up for classes and then never paying for them, effectively stopping them from taking full advantage of the opportunity to attend classes and, ultimately, making a decision on their behalf to close classes that were filled by students serious about a particular course.

Unfortunately, this trend continues, with students now continuing to register for courses that are too close to being closed and, effectively, not allowing other students to attend classes. What occurred in the past was that students were signing up for classes and then never paying for them, effectively stopping them from taking full advantage of the opportunity to attend classes and, ultimately, making a decision on their behalf to close classes that were filled by students serious about a particular course.

In a recent letter to our President, Ms. Hui, a student, questioned the college policy of allowing failing grades on students’ records. She pointed out that students who must struggle to get good grades in their courses may be discouraged from continuing their studies, and added that allowing failing grades even after a course has been satisfactorily made up.

The registrar’s response is a summary of the academic history of a student at the College. It is the policy of the College that any failing grade received during a full course load, or any incomplete grade received during an incomplete course load, must be attended to by the student. The student must have been notified of the existence of the failing grade

This, she said, was especially true in the case of the Registrar’s Office. Grades matter, in many ways, as are accepted at their face value. "They wanted to call attention to the problem of graffiti and its effects on the campus." Yang added that, "As far as I know, no one has come forward to say they are responsible for the graffiti."

Yang also stated that he and other members of the college community are working to identify the person who wrote the graffiti. "We are using a spot remover to get the paint off the walls," said Yang. "We are also working with the police to try to determine who is responsible for the graffiti." Yang added that he is concerned about the impact of graffiti on the college community. "It is a problem that needs to be addressed," he said. "We need to find out who is responsible for the graffiti and take action to prevent it from happening again."

A CONTEST TO COMMEMORATE 1789
Sponsored by the School of Liberal Arts and Sciences

Nineteen eighty-nine is the bicentennial of the founding of the United States Constitutional government and of the French Revolution. Two centuries ago in North America, a republic was established that would evolve into a powerful, democratic state whose examples and actions would shape the world of today. In France, efforts to reform the monarchy were quickly transformed into a popular revolution that would chart the course of Europe and the character of its governments. Together, these events unleashed forces for reform and revolution that affect everyone in the world today.

The School of Liberal Arts and Sciences at Baruch College is commemorating the bicentennial of 1789 through a wide range of activities, including lectures, dance, films, art exhibits, classrooms, projects, and a student contest.

PRIZES: 1st Place $500
2nd Place $300
3rd Place $200

CONTEST RULES

1. ENTRIES: Essays, research papers, works of fiction, poems, review articles, or artistic productions in any medium completed during the 1988-89 academic year. Work may be assigned in class or created independently.

2. THEMES: Include but are not limited to: (1) the actual events of the French Revolution or the early years of the U.S.A.; (2) the direct effect on other countries, on patterns of government, or on movements for liberation (for example, the independence movements in South America, Africa, and Asia, the termination of the slave trade); (3) ideas and issues generated by the events of 1789 (for example, the conflict between individual liberty and social responsibility, the tension between political equality and economic inequality); (4) themes of change and revolution that affect the world today; (5) the political, social, and economic conditions of the time; (6) economic inequality; (7) twentieth-century movements for human rights (for example, the struggle for civil rights in the United States, the movement for women's rights).

3. ELIGIBILITY: Undergraduate degree candidates enrolled in the College during the 1988-89 academic year. All entries must be postmarked by April 15, 1989.

4. HOW TO ENTER: Faculty members are encouraged to make assignments related to the commemoration of 1789. Instructors may submit outstanding student work OR students may submit their work directly. Entries should be submitted to Faculty Committee for the Commemoration of 1789 c/o Dean Norman Fainstein, School of Liberal Arts and Sciences, Box 302, 17 Lexington Avenue. Contestants' names should not appear on submissions. An index card listing the entrant's name, address, and phone number should accompany each entry.

5. DEADLINE: April 15, 1989. Awards will be presented at a luncheon on May 9, 1989. Entries will be returned to their authors/artists after the luncheon on May 9. Contestants may pick up their submissions in the Dean's Office, Room 1621, 17 Lexington Avenue. The College reserves the right to publish finalists' entries in a 1789 commemoration anthology.

Employee Benefits on the Rise...

By JOHN TSE

The needs of the employees continue to grow as society continues to grow. Effects of economic and social changes, and the need for more meaningful and meaningful lives have affected the employees' desires and expectations. Many employees are more interested in benefits that are meaningful to them, such as education, health care, and retirement planning. These changes affect the benefits provided by employers, which can be determined by the socioeconomic changes.

“Coverage under the benefit plans continues to grow.”

Industrial Companies’ Employee Benefits

- Basic group hospital, surgical and regular medical
- Group major general
- Group term life insurance
- Group term health insurance
- Group prescription drugs
- Short-term disability coverage
- Long-term disability coverage
- Group accident death and dismemberment
- Company stock purchase

The Fortune 1000 Industrial Corporations, which account for more than half of all employees in the United States, provide employee benefits. These benefits include health care, retirement planning, and paid time off. The Fortune 1000 includes companies such as General Motors, Ford, and IBM. These companies provide benefits to their employees to attract and retain talent. The benefits provided by these companies are significant in size and scope.

What’s Up Investors!

The Investment Club fund to be presented on Thursday, February 19, featured a discussion on selecting brokers for the money you use in your investments. The investment presented was guided by a lawyer named Mark Segall. The presentation was held in the auditorium and included a discussion on the stock market and the investment process. The event was organized by the SEC, which regulates the investment industry.

Employee Benefits: A Path to Employee Happiness

The Fortune 1000 list of companies includes all enterprises with more than 500 employees. The list is compiled by Fortune Magazine and includes companies such as Apple, Google, and Microsoft. The list is a measure of the economic impact of these companies and their impact on society.

CAREERS

What are some common goals for employees in the Fortune 1000 companies?

- To have a meaningful career
- To have a comfortable retirement
- To have a secure future
- To have a positive impact on society

The common goals for employees in Fortune 1000 companies are to have a meaningful career, to have a comfortable retirement, to have a secure future, and to have a positive impact on society. These goals are important for employees to be able to contribute to their companies and society. The companies listed on the Fortune 1000 list are significant in size and scope and provide benefits to their employees to attract and retain talent.

World War II and the Korean Conflict helped in the creation of Social Security, which is the foundation of private retirement planning. The changes in the economy and society over time have affected the employee benefits provided by employers. In the 1980s, the employee benefits trend was focused on the provision of benefits that were meaningful to employees, such as education, retirement planning, and paid time off. This trend continues today and is expected to continue in the future.

Employee Benefits are Growing...

The need for employee benefits continues to grow, and the benefits provided by employers continue to increase. Thomas Atkins: A Man Who Loves His Job

Twenty years ago, most of us would not have recognized the name Professor Thomas Atkins as a household word. Today, the name of Thomas Atkins is synonymous with Baruch College. Atkins is a teacher, a scholar, and a man who has dedicated his life to the pursuit of excellence in education.

Atkins was the first to introduce the concept of a liberal arts education in a business school. He believed that a liberal arts education was essential for a successful career in business. Atkins was also the first to introduce the concept of a master's degree in business administration. He believed that a master's degree was necessary for a successful career in business.

Atkins was a man of many talents. He was a prolific writer, a skilled orator, and a dedicated teacher. He was also a man of great compassion. Atkins was known for his ability to connect with his students and to provide them with the guidance and support they needed to succeed in their careers.

TOUR OF THE TWELVE INCH

MICHAEL JACKSON HAS MADE THE SWITCH

Michael Jackson's sound is constantly evolving. His greatest hits, such as "Billie Jean," "Thriller," and "Beat It," were originally released on 12-inch records, and the same was true for his 1982 album, "Thriller." However, the 12-inch record is not as common today as it once was. Jackson's latest album, "Dangerous," was released on both 12-inch and compact disc formats. This change in format is significant because it reflects the changing music industry and the shift towards digital music streaming.

New and exciting music is becoming an everyday affair for fans of all ages. With the rise of digital music, fans can now listen to new songs as soon as they are released. This has led to a decrease in the popularity of physical copies of records, such as 12-inch records. However, Jackson's decision to release his latest album on both formats is a nod to the past, and it shows that he is not afraid to experiment with different formats to reach his fans.

The Wall, then compares this cover to the cover of the 12-inch record. This comparison highlights the changes that have occurred in the music industry over the years. The 12-inch record was a physical format that fans could hold, touch, and enjoy. It was a way for fans to connect with the music and the artist. However, with the rise of digital music, this connection has been lost. The Wall suggests that Jackson's decision to release his latest album on both formats is a way for him to reconnect with his fans and to honor the legacy of the 12-inch record.

In conclusion, Michael Jackson's decision to release his latest album on both 12-inch and compact disc formats is significant. It reflects the changing music industry and the shift towards digital music streaming. However, it also shows that Jackson is not afraid to experiment with different formats to reach his fans. It is a nod to the past, and it shows that he is committed to connecting with his fans and to honoring the legacy of the 12-inch record.

BOOK REVIEW

THE HOLOCAUST IN HISTORY

By Michael R. Marrs

This book provides an overview of the Holocaust, a period in which millions of people were murdered by the Nazi regime. The book covers the events leading up to the Holocaust, the events during the Holocaust, and the aftermath of the Holocaust. The book also discusses the causes of the Holocaust, the role of the Nazis, and the role of the Allies in ending the Holocaust.

The book is well-written and easy to read. It is a good introduction to the Holocaust for anyone who is interested in learning more about this tragic event. The book is also a good resource for those who are already familiar with the Holocaust and want to learn more about the details.

The book is divided into several chapters. Each chapter covers a different aspect of the Holocaust. The chapters include:

1. The Holocaust and World War II
2. The Holocaust and the Jewish Question
3. The Holocaust and the Nazi Regime
4. The Holocaust and the Allies
5. The Holocaust and the Aftermath

Overall, this book is a good resource for anyone who is interested in learning more about the Holocaust. It is well-written and easy to read, and it provides a good introduction to the events of this tragic period.
Road Warriors, They Ain't

The Baruch Saints entered a season with high hopes. Coach Grimble's team had four starters returning from last year's team. However, the Saints fell short of expectations, finishing with a 9-8 record. The Saints were unable to sustain their early success, which saw them win their first four games, and ultimately finished in the middle of the pack.

Although Kings Point also started strong, they were unable to maintain their early success and finished with a losing record. The Saints' defense was able to shut down the Kings Point offense, leading to a 12-point victory. The Saints were led by Mike Bart, who scored 17 points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

The Saints continued their winning streak by defeating the Kings Point in late January. With a 9-8 record, the Saints were one more win away from breaking even. Staying on a roll, they went on to win six straight games, with Reid leading the charge.

Baruch's defense was key in their success, as they limited the Kings Point offense to just 57 points. Reid had a strong game, scoring 11 points and grabbing 10 rebounds. Murray added 16 points, and Michael Hargis contributed 14 points.

The Saints went on to win their final two games of the regular season, finishing with a 13-0 record. They won their last two games by double digits, with Reid leading the way.

The ladies have won six straight basketball games, but Coach Perry is not satisfied. Not because of the team's play which has been excellent, but because the support the team and players receive is not as widespread as it should be. The spirit of our readers and fans is very important to us. We would like to see more support for our basketball teams, who have done a great job so far.

Coach Perry has had enough. "I would personally like to remind all the Baruch students who are members of the Baruch College community to come out and support our basketball teams. It makes no sense to me why we support our volleyball, archery, fencing and the men's basketball teams, while we do not do the same for our women's basketball team."

PUCK YOU!

By MICKY EMERISH

Wayne Gretzky, formerly of the Edmonton Oilers, presently of the Los Angeles Kings is known as the Great Gretzky and the Great American Athlete among other "Greats."

On Jan. 24, he earned all his titles and some new ones.

A colleague and I went to see Gretzky play the Washington Capitals. He was magnificent. No one controls the puck like he does. He controlled the camera man, too. We all controlled him. He collected two goals and six assists to prevent the Caps from scoring two goals in the first five minutes of the game.

We went into the locker room after the win to see the Washington coach, coach Tompy, the coach who should be named. He told us how his team gave up all his goals and how he liked L.A.

The following week, he took up his head, and any monster he was a rout. "It's impossible," I asked him another question and he kept answering me. He was around the world. The team blew a victory and he was still playing. He was still answering questions for about 15 minutes and even found time to give a little meat into the Oilers.

He was asked how he thought his team was doing and he replied, "When you tear points ahead of second place and only have five games ahead of you, you are doing pretty good."

When he was finished with his post-game interviews, we asked him for a press. Of course the Great Ambassador obliged. He even (not sure about this) did an autograph. He justified his blacking uniform by saying, "I'm just in the show."

The other four starters are also off to a great start.

And Other Sport Thoughts

Bill White was named National League President. He was no other player, illustrated by his seven Gold Gloves and six All-Star appearances. He was a great broadcaster; you will all know him if you watched any Atlanta Braves game ever. He was a great manager, but had a habit of running his team over on the air.

Now, is it possible to be a League President?

Yes, he's the first fill in the job.

The only NFL release is John Elway of the Denver Broncos. In fact, they can't tell you any other sport fan, it’s a must to read.

Quick Start for Volleyballers

By MICKEY KRAMER

"We haven’t reached our potential!" Freshman setter, Huy Tran has high expectations as he made this statement while his volleyball team stands tall in the CUNY standings with a 5-1 record (only losing to Queens College, a division two school).

After defeating USMMA in three straight games and struggling to beat Lehman in five games (Tran called the victory, “Embracing... It was the worst... We barely won”), Baruch’s volleyball team made its home debut against York; and that too, turned out to be a minor struggle.

The men spiked their way to an early 10-3 lead in game one, but played terribly the rest of the way to lose 13-15.

Art and talent took over the rest of the way. The Sheepshead Bay High School connection took over in game two. Tran was a power hitter, Billy Sappa (both Bay graduates) played excellently in the second game. After falling behind 1-4, Tran set Sappa for five consecutive smashes. David “The Wall” Rosado added some fine serves and blocks to seal game two.

The score was 6-8 York. He served six straight points and the game was won. Baruch’s, by a 15-8 final.

The last game belonged to Sappa and Rosado. Sappa, who leads the team in kills, contributed six kills in the last game to go along with Rosado’s seven tremendous blocks. Baruch led throughout the game and won the game and the match by a 15-10 score.

The Statesmen extended their winning streak to five games with victories on the 26 and 28 of Jan. over Fordham and Vasser respectively.

The winning streak was snapped on Feb. 1 against Queens College. They were swept in straight games by the scores of (15-8, 16-14, 15-6). Even though it was a division two team; the players were pleased by the beating. Tran had this to say, “We’re good, but we should be better. It’s a matter of getting together. We need more intensity to beat the better teams.”

Second year player, Chris Demers had this to say concerning the loss, “I was disgusted. We’re better than that, and we shouldn’t let it happen again.”

Demers is an interesting character. He’s a leader of the bench cheers when he’s not playing. And he also has an important role on the team. Just like last season, he comes into the game to play defense (usually replacing "The Wall"). Is he pleased with his role? "I’m satisfied now. But I want to contribute more. It will take practice, but I think I can help — More."

Demers, who I’ll dub (for now) "The Platoon Leader," also has some interesting closing comments. "Even though we have five wins, we still have to get together more... We have great personnel, but..."

The men play most of the remaining games at home and with a 5-1 record a successful year is all but guaranteed.

What will happen when this team finally GETS together?

Ladies on a Roll!

By MICKEY KRAMER

Home is such a nice word. Especially for the women’s basketball team.

In their six game hot streak, they have reeled off five in succession in their home gymnasium. The latest teams to fall to the vastly improved Stateswomen are Mt. St. Vincent, SUNY Maritime, Marymount and Yeshiva.

On Jan. 23, Baruch whipped Vin­­cent 68-51. They sprinted out to a 14-6 lead with 13 minutes to play in the opening half. Hillary Williams scored eight quick points. Baruch went cold and lost their lead 22-24, with three and a half minutes left in the half. A late surge though, gave the Stateswomen a 31-27 lead.

The ladies pulled away early in the second half with ALL-EVERYTHING, Williams scoring seven straight. They had a 10 point lead after a minute. They stretched the lead to 46-33 four minutes into the second half.

Williams, on her way to another All-Star season, scored 41 points. Maria Epp added 18.

On the winning streak and the huge improvements during the last two weeks, Coach Penny Weiner says, “We’re playing well... We’re jelling.”

Assistant, John Michael adds, “We’re getting into a rhythm.

Two days later, the ladies encountered a problem: Epp, their starting forward was unable to play due to an injured arch. Lovanda Davis and Sakina Parker filled in capably. In a defensive duel, Baruch defeated Maritime 41-35. Baruch pulled out to a 31-20 halftime edge. They got some surprising scoring punch from point guard, Stephanie Varucados, who finished with a season-high 11 points (10 in the first half). Also, Williams, who Varucados simply calls, "Great!" contributed a typical 24 point effort; and she was in foul trouble.

In years past, when Baruch was involved in an old fashioned a-kicking, they were sure to be on the losing end; no questions asked.

On Jan. 31, the Stateswomen defeated Marymount 82-73. The game began, as most Baruch games do, with a Williams driving layup. Two-nothing. Three minutes into the game, the score was 12-0, and Williams had 10.

The shutout continued; 16... 18... 20... And finally 22 to nothing. Williams “The Wonder” had 18 points.

At 11:59, the shutout was broken. The crowd, which consisted mainly the men’s basketball team, let out a collective groan.

The reserves got some quality minutes the rest of the way. Parker, Davis, Nesma El Touche, Cleo Guiste and Kit Yuk Ho all contributed off the bench.

With 8:10 left in the half, Williams scored her twenties-second, and final points of the half. They led 12-8.

A tenacious defense led to many turnovers throughout the game, especially in the first half, which ended with a 45-12 Baruch lead.

The laughter continued. Four and a half minutes into the final half, the ladies increased their lead to an unheard of 41 points, 55-14. The lead stayed in the fourties the rest of the way, until games end Feb. 1 on Queens College.

The reserves played tremendous owners, contributed six kills in seven tremendous blocks. Baruch led throughout the game and won the game and the match by a 15-10 score.

The Statesmen extended their winning streak to five games with victories on the 26 and 28 of Jan. over Fordham and Vasser respectively.
