Middle States Renews Baruch's Accreditation

Minority Faculty Problem Being Remedied

By Edward Asante

The Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools announced the reaccreditation of Baruch College at its meeting on June 25, 1990, after a year of review. Last semester the team deferred the reaccreditation of the College because of what it called "the lack of effectiveness in creating a positive teaching/learning environment for students." In a document dated May 7, 1990, the team maintained that "Baruch has been and remains to be an excellent academic institution ... that college has emphasized the tradition academic values while seeking equal concern for the values of social justice and equity critical to serving working people in a multicultural urban environment."

The issue of the lack of minority faculty members was one of the core complaints of the Middle States team. According to the report, only one of the 118 tenured faculty members is African American and none is Latino. In a previous report the team had refused to accept the College's defense of its hiring policies, saying that "there are not enough incentives for department heads to find qualified minorities and disincentives for not for not doing so."

In a letter announcing the reaccreditation of the school, however, former president Joel Segall said that "the college has record of minority recruitment and retention and a student attrition rate that compares favorably with other senior colleges." He went on to say that Baruch is one of the first colleges to be held to serious scrutiny on these issues. The college, in responding to the Commission's concerns has provided a comprehensive plan that will seek to improve both the minority and the graduation rate of all students," Segall said.

Baruch College holds accreditation for all its business programs from the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business and its programs in accountancy, health care administration, and public administration are individually accredited by their respective professional associations. According to a news release, "These recognitions place Baruch College among a small handful of America's leading colleges focusing on business and holding all relevant accreditations."

CUNY Chooses Controversial New Chancellor

Board Picks Reynolds After National Search

By Rafael Olmeda

W. Ann Reynolds was designated chancellor of the City University of New York at the executive session of the board of trustees on June 25. Reynolds, a candidate who had been in competition with Baruch's acting president, appointed Joyce Brown last August 3, 1989. "I am very much pleased to announce that President Joel Segall has selected W. Ann Reynolds to meet the needs of the City University of New York," said James M. Hurley, chairman of the board of trustees, at a news conference on June 25. "In the event of the new chancellor's resignation, I have been informed by W. Ann Reynolds that she would consider returning to her current role at Baruch until that time."

Reynolds has served as chancellor of the California State University at Fullerton since 1981. Reynolds received criticism last September when the board of trustees voted to give her a 45% raise. An article which appeared in the August 12 issue of the Daily News reported that "Reynolds' top aides also got double-digit salary hikes. The increases were needed, the board explained after the fact, to draw and keep talented administrators."

The article also revealed that Reynolds and her family had paid for the upkeep of her Bell-Air home with taxpayer dollars. "Reynolds and her husband, physician Thomas Kirschbaum, kept state work done at their home, which was not renovated and is not a home that is part of her retirement package."

Brought to you by BARUCH COLLEGE LIBRARY
Vol. 59, Number 1
Baruch College, CUNY
September 5, 1990

Middle States Renews Baruch's Accreditation
Minority Faculty Problem Being Remedied

Policy

By Rafael Olmeda

The Commission on Intergroup Relations Releases Report

Recommends Further Study

By Rafael Olmeda

The Commission on Intergroup Relations released its report for lack of a series of recommendations to administration, faculty, and students after having reviewed the state of intergroup relations at Baruch for seven months.

The commission was created in September, 1989 by Joel Segall, who was president of Baruch College at the time. It was charged to develop a policy (recommendations to administration, faculty, and students) after having reviewed the state of intergroup relations at Baruch for seven months.

The commission was created in September, 1989 by Joel Segall, who was president of Baruch College at the time. It was charged to develop a program to raise sensitivity levels (and produce) substantive proposals to address the more common problems of racial and ethnic minority members, according to the report written by Addison Gebe, distinguished professor of English and chairperson of the commission.

"In the area of College-wide policy, (we recommend) that a Commission, similar to the one created for the present task, be created by the President," the report stated. It adds, "Though the Commission will be permanent, new members will be chosen each year."

"More work needs to be done and for that reason, I recommend that the Commission continue to exist," said Segall in a memo to the Baruch community dated August 7. "It has no problem accepting the rest of the college-wide Recommendations except with the Commission's proposed role as a monitor of hiring practices and the work of the Affirmative Action Committee and as a grievance body," he added, explaining that these functions were equitably handled already.

Continued on Page 3
Study Finds Minority Promotion Rates Comparable to Whites

By Kenneth E. Brown

According to a new study (College of Business) made by Robert B. Marcus, a Baruch College economics professor, minority group college students are not systematically disadvantaged in the hiring and promotion process for full-time teaching staff.

Marcus prepared a statistical report for the college's Office of Institutional Research entitled, "Baruch Faculty Career Advancement: A Comparison of Full-Time Teaching Personnel Filled in the '80s and '90s." He analyzed the number of minority faculty members hired and promoted at Baruch over the past decade.

Marcus said that the report does not reflect whether the minority students were hired and promoted because of their race, but it does reflect whether they were hired and promoted because of their abilities. The report indicates that minority students were hired and promoted at Baruch at rates comparable to those of non-minority students.

The report also found that minority students were hired and promoted at rates comparable to those of non-minority students in the mathematical, physical, and engineering fields. However, Baruch students were not as likely to be hired and promoted as non-minority students in the social sciences, humanities, and business fields.

The report concludes that minority students were not systematically disadvantaged in the hiring and promotion process for full-time teaching staff.

In all areas, the percentage of minority students hired and promoted was comparable to the percentage of non-minority students.

Marcus said that he did not think it was necessary for Institutional Research staff members to check the accuracy of the report's statistics and findings before the report became official. He said that he did not think it was necessary for Institutional Research staff members to check the accuracy of the report's statistics and findings before the report became official.

The success for the report could not be reached for discussion of its findings or recommendations. Between the years 1989 and 1990, 861 faculty members were promoted to full-time teaching staff.

This table describes the percentage of Baruch faculty who experienced reappointment problems and the experience of those who used the appeals process in response to non-reappointment recommendations.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Faculty</th>
<th>Reappointment Problems</th>
<th>Appeals Process</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Baruch Appeals by Faculty in Non-reappointment Decisions 1980-87

Byline: Barbara Marcus

Baruch College

In a study of reappointment problems, the percentage of Baruch faculty who experienced reappointment problems was 8.5 percent.

Of the 361 faculty members who were reappointed to full-time teaching staff, 8.5 percent were Hispanic, 3.2 percent were Black, 3.2 percent were Asian, and 1.9 percent were American Indian.

It was the misuse of the Baruch Faculty Career Advancement report that led to the discontinuance of the appeal process at Baruch.

The Board of Trustees has recommended that the appeal process be discontinued at Baruch.

The success for the report could not be reached for discussion of its findings or recommendations. Between the years 1989 and 1990, 861 faculty members were promoted to full-time teaching staff.

This table describes the percentage of Baruch faculty who experienced reappointment problems and the experience of those who used the appeals process in response to non-reappointment recommendations.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Faculty</th>
<th>Reappointment Problems</th>
<th>Appeals Process</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Baruch Appeals by Faculty in Non-reappointment Decisions 1980-87

Byline: Barbara Marcus

Baruch College
EDITORIALS

Watch out for the Reef!

Like the captain of Exxon's Valdez, the DSSG was drunk at the wheel when the senior cruise sank to the bottom of the East River. Again, government mismanaged student activity funds. May student government controlled the annual senior boat trip for a week and a half prior to the event. By cancelling on such short notice, we the students lost a total of $8194.25, a $8228.25 non-refundable deposit, $194.25 for the printing of tickets and a $177.62 service damage fee.

Why? Perhaps it has something to do with the incompetence that ran rampant on last year's DSSG, the lack of communication between council members and the unwillingness to share the responsibility. Everyone is blaming Angela Williams with mismanagement, including Apollo Mathew who was Treasurer last year. Williams, it must be noted, was appointed vice president of Campus Affairs by the Executive Council, and the rest of the Council are saying that it was William's job and that she is solely responsible.

The ultimate responsibility for this debacle, however, lies with the Executive Council, appointed Williams. They are the individuals who must answer the question why was one person in charge of a $23,289.52 event that needed a massive advertising and promotion campaign. Again, if Williams wanted to do it by herself, she should not have been allowed to without constant supervision. Yet only supervision was not needed to watch over this event, or rather, the event was not needed to watch over this event.

This does not mean, however, that Baruch doesn't have a very real problem. Positive steps must be taken to prevent anything that could resemble this happening again. This cannot happen again, and if it does, the job of an entire organization is unforgivable especially to put it quite frankly, when $8194.25 of student money is lost.

This year Mathew serves as vice president of the DSSG and promises that the $10,000 allotment for the next senior bash will be handled much more effectively. For our sake, let's hope he keeps his pledge. Government can successfully execute the senior bash if they develop a written plan early. The next senior bash will be handled much more effectively. For our sake, let's hope he keeps his pledge. The ultimate responsibility for this debacle, however, lies with the Executive Council, which should be the entire government.

Lest We Forget...

The Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools finally reviewed Baruch's accreditation. While this is terrific news for students who want their degrees to have something other than a practical value, the administration should not forget why accreditation was delayed in the first place.

It was unfair for Middle States to single out Baruch for its lack of minority faculty and difficulty with retention of minority students. In these areas, Baruch is not worse (or better) than most private schools. These are very serious problems, but they are not grounds for taking away our accreditation. Middle States should have seen from the beginning what it eventually admitted, that Baruch College is an excellent academic institution.

This does not mean, however, that Baruch doesn't have a very real problem. Positive steps must be taken to obtain a more diversified, representative faculty without sacrificing in the area of early education. Programs must be implemented and followed through in order to assist these students who are most at risk of dropping out.

No one is pretending it will be easy. There's an easy answer. Baruch's new acting-president and CUNY's new chancellor need our support if they are going to implement real, lasting, and positive results.

Quotes of the Fortnight:

"He began his services as President of Baruch College in the immediate aftermath of the City's fiscal crisis, and immediately enhanced its reputation and ability to serve the citizens of New York City."

CUNY Board of Trustees, in appreciation of the services of Joel Segall

"The minority report is one of the worst pieces of racist garbage I've read in a long time."

Addison Gayle, chair of the Commission on Intergroup Relations, reacting to a supplement to the commission's report.

---

THE TICKER

Established in 1932

Toni Calevito
edit-in-chief

Marka K. Liu
managing editor

Peter Gonesed
production manager

Rafael Olmeda
news editor

Boris Loach
co-directors

Rafael A. Martinez
co-editor

Mickee Kramer
sports editor

Ben Lee
advertising manager

Robert Ransaw
business manager

Holly C. Hammond
assistant editor

Roslyn Bernstein
Alisa Solomon

STAFF

Edward Asante
Tom Baby
Lisa A. Brice
Tony Medina
Patrick McNab
Eden Niederkirchner
Colin Roach
William St. Louis
Quan Tran

What's Your Opinion? We'd Like To Know!

Send Your Letters To the Op/Ed Editor.

Box 442
137 East 27th St.
New York, NY 10010

A Split Decision

A Man of Many Colors and Doubts

By Brian Patrick

I had dreamed a decision. My Church viewed my every move, and I had to be careful. I had to say the right prayers, and I had to have the right faith. That wasn't enough. I had to be careful and make sure that my actions were in line with what my Church taught. And I had to make sure that I was not doing anything that would bring dishonor to my Church. I had to be careful and make sure that I was not doing anything that would bring dishonor to my Church.

I had dreamed a decision. My Church viewed my every move, and I had to be careful. I had to say the right prayers, and I had to make sure that my actions were in line with what my Church taught. And I had to make sure that I was not doing anything that would bring dishonor to my Church. I had to be careful and make sure that I was not doing anything that would bring dishonor to my Church.

I had dreamed a decision. My Church viewed my every move, and I had to be careful. I had to say the right prayers, and I had to make sure that my actions were in line with what my Church taught. And I had to make sure that I was not doing anything that would bring dishonor to my Church. I had to be careful and make sure that I was not doing anything that would bring dishonor to my Church.

I had dreamed a decision. My Church viewed my every move, and I had to be careful. I had to say the right prayers, and I had to make sure that my actions were in line with what my Church taught. And I had to make sure that I was not doing anything that would bring dishonor to my Church. I had to be careful and make sure that I was not doing anything that would bring dishonor to my Church.

I had dreamed a decision. My Church viewed my every move, and I had to be careful. I had to say the right prayers, and I had to make sure that my actions were in line with what my Church taught. And I had to make sure that I was not doing anything that would bring dishonor to my Church. I had to be careful and make sure that I was not doing anything that would bring dishonor to my Church.

I had dreamed a decision. My Church viewed my every move, and I had to be careful. I had to say the right prayers, and I had to make sure that my actions were in line with what my Church taught. And I had to make sure that I was not doing anything that would bring dishonor to my Church. I had to be careful and make sure that I was not doing anything that would bring dishonor to my Church.
Looking In

Continued from Page 5

"Government's not doing enough for us,"

"We need to fight for our rights.""I

"What does that mean for the "students? Should we stop

"fighting for a low-cost edu"cation?"

"No. We should continue to "fight for an education that's

"worth every cent you put into

"it. Your state government

"is the one that has stopped

"making any effort to provide

"the education you deserve."

"You should stop fighting for

"low-cost education and start

"fighting for a low-cost edu"cation and start

"confronting the federal govern"ment. You won't

"be getting any help

"soon."

They loved your protests.

"They loved your protests.

"You were making a difference.

"I was stunned. It was the "first time I had ever heard

"my voice."

"They turned off the television

"and listened to what you were "saying. Their eyes shone with

"hope and excitement.

"And then there was a time when

"the government would listen.

"When you spoke, they took

"notice."

"That's why we must continue

"to fight. It's not just about

"money; it's about our future.

"We have the power to make

"a change."
You're invited to a Ticker party on September 13th. Come and meet the people who are shaping the future of our industry. Food and refreshments will be served.
"City Kids" Speak Out 'State of the Youth'
Youth desire bigger role in the decision making process

Usually the State of the Youth is discussed without us. There are statistics that say how many kids are pregnant or drop out of school or live below the poverty line, but we do it, the B.A.T. (Boy's Association of Tomorrow) or whatever. We're sort of the first time, the New York City Board of Education has asked us to explore some of these questions. A "Kid Congress," kids from all over the city and schools get together to explore the issues that are important to them. Our environment, our schools, our homes, our families, the arts and writing workshops, discussions groups and special research activities which surveyed kids and adults from all over New York City. We collected enough information to enable us to write what we feel is a genuine expression of the condition of youth in our City. What follows is a synthesis of this information. It represents the opinions and thoughts of youth on youth. It always seems like kids are messed up. As young people, we are bringing in a new view, a new look at the world. We are not the adults who are not asking us how we feel, or what we need. This makes us feel that we are not valued members of society. We're trying to bring kids in a world where it seems like the welfare is poverty, disease, battering, pollution, violence, and famine families. The youth of New York City are very much affected by their environment. We are confused because there are so many mixed signals. We hear all the time about the ignorant youth, the lazy youth, the violent youth, the pregnant youth, but what we see is ourselves. What do we think? The truth is that...

There is a constant battle between the two. We are writing this letter in order to represent our generation and ourselves in our world. The youth are full of intelligence, power, and often times we're very much confused. But among all our leaders who have failed us...we will become active participants in making change. We have chosen to make a change by becoming problem solvers, powerful speakers, and initiators. We need to use our voice to be heard. Why would we be concerned? We have a vested interest. We're talking about our future. These issues are very important to us. This will be our bills, our families, our society, our education, our kids. Of course we care. Now is the best time in our lives and we're celebrating in our leadership. We will be the youth with us, the young people, no, maybe the older people, too. We are a place right now where things can change. Millions of people celebrate Earth Day together; countries all over the world are fighting for freedom. We are living in the middle of history in the making. If the young people are included in the process, we can begin to take leadership roles now.

You know most of us somehow get by in life. But how many of us have just got by. The world has never given us the opportunity to be recognized as success stories. We need to have a chance to be listened to, a chance to be asked what we think. The world just might be surprised by what we have to say.

The State of the Youth is that we are willing to speak and we need to be listened to.

We are at a place right now where things can change. Millions of people celebrate Earth Day together; countries all over the world are fighting for freedom. We are living in the middle of history in the making. If the young people are included in the process, we can begin to take leadership roles now.

You know most of us somehow get by in life. But how many of us have just got by. The world has never given us the opportunity to be recognized as success stories. We need to have a chance to be listened to, a chance to be asked what we think. The world just might be surprised by what we have to say.

The State of the Youth is that we are willing to speak and we need to be listened to.

We are at a place right now where things can change. Millions of people celebrate Earth Day together; countries all over the world are fighting for freedom. We are living in the middle of history in the making. If the young people are included in the process, we can begin to take leadership roles now.

You know most of us somehow get by in life. But how many of us have just got by. The world has never given us the opportunity to be recognized as success stories. We need to have a chance to be listened to, a chance to be asked what we think. The world just might be surprised by what we have to say.

The State of the Youth is that we are willing to speak and we need to be listened to.

We are at a place right now where things can change. Millions of people celebrate Earth Day together; countries all over the world are fighting for freedom. We are living in the middle of history in the making. If the young people are included in the process, we can begin to take leadership roles now.

You know most of us somehow get by in life. But how many of us have just got by. The world has never given us the opportunity to be recognized as success stories. We need to have a chance to be listened to, a chance to be asked what we think. The world just might be surprised by what we have to say.

The State of the Youth is that we are willing to speak and we need to be listened to.

We are at a place right now where things can change. Millions of people celebrate Earth Day together; countries all over the world are fighting for freedom. We are living in the middle of history in the making. If the young people are included in the process, we can begin to take leadership roles now.

You know most of us somehow get by in life. But how many of us have just got by. The world has never given us the opportunity to be recognized as success stories. We need to have a chance to be listened to, a chance to be asked what we think. The world just might be surprised by what we have to say.

The State of the Youth is that we are willing to speak and we need to be listened to.
Summer Jobs

Continued from Page 3

usually by going around and talking with a lot of people, or by shadowing someone all day. In either case, it is important that you ask for information. You needn’t seek total enlightenment—not right away—but if you have a term need, an acronym, an abbreviation you don’t know, ask what it means. It is the jargon of your workplace, your company’s slang. To communicate effectively, you need to know it. The other thing that happens when you ask lots of questions is the person who is doing the really big stuff, you’ll find out that even if you’re not thrilled with this instructor’s take on things, there are other interesting things going on that you would look into next summer. Sometimes, if you do learn something, you can take it back—another advantage to the summer job.

Keep in mind, however, that a three-month job is not meaningless; put everything you can into it. If you’re not your dream career, but what you are from it is not a waste. Skills, new business knowledge of business practices, and, if you’re given your own dynamic influence, those are all things that will make you more desirable to your ideal employer, and that you can take to the bank.

Days of Yore

1986

Compiled By Susan Parise

Prompted by the rape of a Baruch Student during the summer, the student center board sponsored a lecture on rape entitled “Rape Prevention.” The guest speaker was detective Allan King, a twelve-year veteran of the N.Y.P.D. sex crime unit, and she offered these safety tips for both men and women:

- avoid deserted buildings; sell out and ask who is in the bathroom
- carry a loud whistle between your lips when walking at night or in lonely areas. (Whistles are not recommended because often the suspect is taken and used against the victim)
- trust your instincts about strangers.

A new constitution which allowed the Day Student Government to advertise vacancies for council was approved by the student senate, due to the loss of more than half the council members because of resignations and personal reasons.

The information desk at the 17 Lexington Avenue building was established for the first time, for the students to answer questions about the flow of traffic going to admissions.

1982

A study conducted by Professor Mark L. Bearen, the chairman of the Student Activities Committee, revealed that Baruch College had an increasing amount of students registering for a degree, described as “the tendency to avoid higher grades now that would have been given for the same work in the past.” The study which examined the characteristics of the graduates from 1972-1979, revealed that in 1977-79 graduates from the school of Business and Public Administration had 47,714.50 in average marks out of 4,000 students, whereas in the 1980-82 period, the average marks of the combined total of only 56 students graduating with an average mark of 80.77 graduates.

“Jazz King” Lionel Hampton, performed in concert at Baruch on Saturday, February 21st, in the auditorium. One of the foremost exponents of this art form (just a few with it) in American music known as being, “the expansion of the jazz age and a beat that people found accessible.”

Spring registration of ‘81 student associations, and the best registration in the student membership campaign, which began on January 13 and ended February 28, was deemed successful by students mainly because of the efficiency with which registration was run. Some of these factors included short lines, minimal crowds, and registration in advance for all students.

1972

On February 9, the Public Relations Society sponsored Mr. M. Matz, the publicity director of Object Records, to deliver a speech on how to promote records. The talk was well-received by the students present. He talked about the importance of public relations in promoting records, and how to create a strong image for an artist.

Several members of the Baruch College were active in a rally on the Board of Higher Education Headquarters at 90th Street and York Avenue. The trouble at the Southern University system in which two students, involved in the struggle for human rights within the educational institutions, were leader. A cartoon, which was printed along with the article on the front page of the Ticker captured the essence of the rally: “you do nothing and they yell about something—you get together and it’s all a riot.”

Baruch students, although small in number, played an important part in the rally. They helped to organize the effort and delivered speeches.

THE HUMAN TOUCH

Opening a Chemical StudentPlus® account has never sounded better.

When you open a StudentPlus® account at Chemical Bank, you’ll get a coupon for 10% off any Sam Goody purchase. If that sounds good, listen to this: an instant ATM card that lets you access over 28,000 ATMs nationwide, free checking with a minimum combined account balance of $200, Mastercard® or Visa® card, banking by phone and more. That’s StudentPlus®, the all-one-bank account that’s in a class by itself.

To open your account stop by your nearest branch or call 1-800-CHEMICAL, ext. 4790.

THE FINANCIAL EDGE

The Financial Edge

Call Now! Classes Start Soon.
Manhattan: (212) 977-8200

STANLEY H. KAPLAN
Take Kaplan Or Take Your Chances
Now business majors can easily handle today’s tough business problems.

Texas Instruments financial calculators are designed to meet today’s business needs. Whether you’re taking beginning accounting or advanced economics, you can count on a TI calculator to have the right functions and features to speed you through assignments and exams.

Get a BA-35. It’s TI’s most affordable tool for time-value-of-money calculations. You can solve a wide variety of finance accounting, and one-variable statistics problems because it’s preprogrammed with powerful functions. And that makes it very easy to use.

But, if your plans include pursuing the most advanced business courses, then the TI Financial Investment Analyst is your best choice. It’s a business major’s dream machine: the first and only calculator with a multi-line display that lets you see all the problem-solving variables at once. You can check your work, make corrections or compare “what-if” without reentering the entire problem. And, what’s more, your 40% discount on the 80%-

The Wayne Draiao

15 • Ticker Perspectives • September 5, 1990

The War on 1990: A Collection of Thoughts

By Robert Byers

Monday, Arnold Schwartzman, O.C.W. ’73, and Stephen Products Co., makers of Weber, grill, kettle and Genesis gas barbecues. In a survey with the Associated Press, it appears that grilling may be one of the top summer activities. According to a recent survey of what’s cooking this summer, it appears that grilling may be one of the hot Twin Cities food trends. The Twin Cities are known for their Mitchell food, and it’s likely that this trend will continue. In the beginning of June, the Twin Cities are likely to have a high of 80 degrees. It’s likely that this trend will continue and that people will be looking for ways to stay cool. In the beginning of June, it’s likely that people will be looking for ways to stay cool.

The summer started off with a bang. In the Twin Cities, it was discovered that the Twin Cities have a hot summer. It’s likely that people will be looking for ways to stay cool. In the beginning of June, it’s likely that people will be looking for ways to stay cool.

This week we go back to the parallel universe 500 years in the future where the Twin Heavy Metalists, Rug and Yar, are grappling with a moral dilemma. They are debating whether or not they should get involved in the drug trade. How does the story continue?
By Lesly Vignetti

Darkman is a story with the length of Proust's Remembrance of Things Past and the breath of Sam Raimi's THE EVIL DEAD I and II,mile with onestep (DARKMAN) is Westlake's newest Doctor Jekyll and Mr. Hyde hero. FRIELS, who is more of a Lex Luthor parody than the archetypal evil genius, is here where we first begin to notice the interesting development of his character. His (Westlake's body) injuries. Nearly half of his skull is exposed, and the decapitation of the on-screen villain, is the movie's madman's revenge on his creators. Scenes of this type are much more prevalent in recent years.

Westlake's unnamed Doctor abandons his lab. His grotesque-looking primary protagonist, played by John Neeson as Darkman projects Darkman's love interest' speaks louder than his words. To The Jazz Butcher. Westlake's body

similarity to L & R. Just as Westlake is incredible strength. revenge on his creators. scenes. The film's action of the Jazz Butcher. -sad. Side

DARKMAN: Scenic Set of the Film's Setting. The Illegal (L & R) has released a world that are pleasurable as

Westlake's unnamed Doctor abandons his lab. His grotesque-looking primary protagonist, played by John Neeson as Darkman projects Darkman's love interest' speaks louder than his words. To The Jazz Butcher. Westlake's body

similarity to L & R. Just as Westlake is incredible strength. revenge on his creators. scenes. The film's action of the Jazz Butcher. -sad. Side
DON'T JUST BE PART OF THE CROWD
MAKE YOUR NAME KNOWN
THE TICKER NEEDS:
PHOTOGRAPHERS CARTOONISTS LAYOUT ARTISTS & WRITERS
* show off your talents
* learn new skills
* use state of the art equipment
* work with a supportive staff
* get work experience that will impress any employer

The Ticker office is in rm 301F, 137 E 22nd St.
387-1183/1182

HELP WANTED
- Office Assistant - 10 hrs./wk @ $4.50/hr.
- no experience necessary > general clerical duties
- Secretary - 20 hrs./wk @ $6.00/hr.
must type 45 wpm and have knowledge of MacIntosh software packages
- Bursar - 15 hrs./wk @ $6.00/hr.
genereal accounting knowledge required must be able to use Lotus 123 knowledge of club budgeting systems a plus > accounting major preferred

Apply in person DSSG office in rm 409 137 E. 22nd St.
or call 387-1185(6) for appointment or further information

Don't miss the upcoming 1990-1991 Ticker issue!
Deadline for submission is January 15, 1990.

Economy & Business

By Edward Abrahams

"Americans will soon stand to" Hussein for the recession of 1990"

Bracing for A Recession

The American economy is bracing for trouble this very moment. The Federal Reserve minutes do not rule out a recession this fall, and the stock market continues to slide. In the face of this frightening possibility, The Ticker office is focusing on one of its most important roles—providing timely and useful information to its readers. The most crucial piece of this information is to be found in the "Economy & Business" section of the current issue.

The article, "Economy & Business," begins with a discussion of the recession's potential impact on the stock market. The author notes that while the stock market has recently experienced a downturn, it is not necessarily indicative of a recession. The article then goes on to discuss the potential causes of a recession, including a slowdown in consumer spending, a decrease in business investment, and a rise in interest rates. The author warns that a recession could have serious consequences for the economy, and urges readers to be prepared.

The article also discusses the potential benefits of a recession, including the possibility of lower inflation and higher real wages. The author notes that a recession could also provide an opportunity for the government to implement economic reforms. The article concludes with a forecast of the potential outcomes of a recession, including a mild recession or a more severe downturn.

The "Economy & Business" section of the current issue includes a wide range of other articles, including a discussion of the impact of the Persian Gulf War on the economy, a report on the latest economic data, and an analysis of the potential effects of the upcoming budget deficit on the economy. The section also includes a calendar of economic events, including the release of the latest economic data and the annual meeting of the American Economic Association.

In conclusion, "Economy & Business" is a must-read for anyone interested in the economy. The section provides a comprehensive overview of the current economic landscape, and includes a wide range of articles on the latest economic data and the potential effects of various economic events. With the potential for a recession on the horizon, it is more important than ever to stay informed about the economy.

Economy & Business Editors

"Economy & Business" is produced by the Economy & Business Editors. The editors are responsible for selecting and editing the content of the section, and for ensuring that the section provides timely and useful information to its readers.

Writers Wanted

Economy & Business is now accepting writers for the 1990-1991 issue. Writers are welcome to submit articles on any economic topic, and should submit articles in a concise and informative style. Contributions will be reviewed and accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. Interested writers should contact the Economy & Business Editors at 387-1183 for more information.

The Ticker is a student-run publication that provides a forum for student voices on political and social issues. The Ticker is published weekly during the fall and winter semesters, and bimonthly during the summer. The Ticker is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization, and is supported by contributions from students, faculty, and the New York University community.
Women's Tennis Team Bids To "Threepeat" As CUNY Champions

"With this large turnover of experienced players ... It will be a very tough coaching year." -Coach Bill Eng

By Mickey Kramer

Baruch's women's tennis team will be out to "Threepeat" as CUNY and Hudson Valley Tournament Champions this season. The loss of the top four players from last year will make it quite a difficult task.

Coach Bill Eng, entering his seventh campaign, is concerned. "With this large turnover of experienced players who were very competitive, it will be a very tough coaching year."

The Statewomen began last season slowly, with a record of 1-3, but finished with a regular season record of 8-8. Baruch then cruised through the Hudson and CUNY Tournaments with Manhattan and John Jay finishing as runners-up respectively.

With the loss of three starters and Omrit Loevdi's inability to play on a regular basis, three returning players are expected to step in and improve their game. Elizabeth Lejman is entering her third season on the team. Eng calls her, "A steady baseline player, with a strong forehand." Lejman, on her increased role says, "I'm really excited about playing. I practiced all summer."

Also penciled into the starting rotation is second year player, Linda Cho. Eng says, "She has solid strokes and I'm counting on her to improve."

Eng has labeled Patricia Harper with the "P" word: potential. He also says, "She is the strongest hitter on the team, even her backhand. She tends to be a little inconsistent, though."

So far, there is one newcomer expected to fill a key role. Olney Hendrie played varsity at Midwood H.S. Eng says, "She moves well on the court and I expect her to move into the rotation."

As far as repeating as champions, Lejman appreciatively says, "This season is tough because we lost a few players. It depends on how the other teams do."

Eng has set lofty goals for his team. "I'm looking to duplicate last year's record."

But he knows there is a tough road ahead. "We're a lot weaker than last season, there's no question. Unless we get some new players it will be tough to repeat. That's CUNY athletics... Up and down years."

This year's team might be troubled by its lack of a leader. When asked if his team had one, Eng replied, "Not at this point, no."

Eng, the coach, is excited about having to teach the game. "It's a good challenge for me. I have to work harder to get them to a higher level."

The highest level, if possible.

Notes: The team opens its season Sept. 11 against Molloy. It opens its home schedule on Sept. 18 versus big rival Mt. St. Vincent. The team's next home games are on Sept. 25 and 27 against Marymount College of New Rochelle.

Soccer Team Has High Hopes For Another CUNY Crown

By Mickey Kramer

As David Bowie might say, "Ch ch ch changes."

Baruch's soccer team won the CUNY Conference Championship last season with a record of 6-1-2. This year, though, both goalies (Alex Fares and Gary St. Joy) will be moved to defense and forward, respectively.

The addition of rookie goalie Mark Lanzberg made the changes possible. Fares will serve as the back-up.

Leading the defense this year will be returning Edward Brown, Kassen Fares (Alex's brother) and Ernest Condahus. Also, Miguel Burnett, a newcomer will play centerback.

Coach Anthony Henry says, "I expect a lot from him. I would like him to fill the shoes of four-time CUNY All-Star, Pierre Louis."

Next up are the midfielders. Henry says, "I believe that the strength of our team is our midfield because they are mostly returning players."

Returning player, indeed, Sevean Turner was the team captain. He was a first-team All-Star and was voted the CUNY M.V.P. He also led the team in scoring with nine goals and seven assists.

Others anchoring the midfield include Jeff Romain, Aziz Laghrovri (who was last season's Rookie of the Year), Carlos Almeida, who is a key member.

Due to the many changes, the defense is going to need the most work. "We have a lot of work to do, especially on defense. The coordination of defense needs help and also the transition from defense to offense, to move into the attack." Coach Henry is hoping Bowie will be Singh. "Ch ch ch Champions."