Gunman Wounds Baruch Student

By Eric Loyola

Baruch student Andrew G. Lazan, 22, who friends and acquaintances describe as "outgoing" and "amiable," was critically wounded in a shooting incident near his home in Little Neck, Queens, in the early morning hours of Sunday, Oct. 13.

Lazan was found at his neighbors' home on the kitchen floor, with three gunshot wounds to the neck and abdomen. Last night he was listed in critical but stable condition at New York University Hospital.

Andrew Brooks Jr., who wounded Lazan and another neighbor named Andrew Brooks Sr., killed himself later that day.

Lazan, who was once a writer for The Ticker and currently serves as President of the Baruch Chapter of the American Marketing Association, is well-known throughout the school as a result of his involvement in extra-curricular activities.

He ran for the presidency of the Day Session Student Government in Spring 1990 and was active in this years tuition hike protests.

DSSG President Lavonda Davis said, "I'm shocked. I can't believe that could happen to Andy."

Another of his close friends, William Hudemaier, requested the prayers of the students for Lazan's quick recovery.

Goldstein Addresses Faculty

By Rafael A. Martinez
President Matthew Goldstein, in his inaugural address on Oct. 2, directed the faculty to focus their efforts on the improvement of Baruch College.

The president stated, "We are here due to the combined efforts of the students, the faculty, and the families of the students. We must not forget the students, and we must also pay homage to the students who demonstrated their excellence to this day and to the students who will continue to demonstrate their excellence."

President Goldstein stated, "To create a universal curriculum in order to "install a curiosity, an enthusiasm, and a willingness to look into uncharted areas of the lives that will excite those students to go forward through life." He then added that curriculum development was not to use their own individual programs."

Another aspect of the academic program of the president's plan is a change in the faculty reward structure. They will receive extra rewards for faculty members who demonstrate their excellence in the classroom, not to judge the students who demonstrate their excellence in the pages of professional journals.

"President Goldstein's goal is an improved academic program, which relies on increased dealings with alumni, business and government, "I want to promote mergers. Baruch for structural changes, with the major change that any institution has made."

"Baruch's connections with the private institutions that can make improvements to the academic program of the college must be used to complement the work done by the college staff. They will be brought in to help improve student services especially in the areas of guidance and tutorial services."

The president closed his address with a call to Baruch as an institution not in retreat but an institution with enormous possibilities and said, "We continue to be a vital integrator for the previously excluded, and we continue to put thousands of people into the economic and social mainstream of our society."

Pocketbook Prompts BCAA Action

By Eric Leydold

Alumni who have written letters complaining about City College Professor Leonard Jeffries to the board of directors of the Baruch College Alumni Association have prompted the board to convene a special meeting to discuss the issue.

The meeting, which will be held at the downtown campus, will focus on the recent controversy surrounding Jeffries' courses and his alleged use of antisemitic and racist language.

Jeffries has been accused of making offensive remarks in his classes, leading to protests and a call for his removal from the faculty.

The board of directors will hear presentations from多方 perspectives and may take action on the matter.

Multiculturalism Forum

In honor of multicultural education, the school will hold a forum, "The Multicultural Multilingual Language," on October 15th.

The forum will feature keynote speakers, panel discussions, and workshops on the topic of multicultural education.

The event is expected to attract a large audience of students, faculty, and community members.

LaMarre's win re-election

The second ballot showed a large increase in support for the winner, LaMarre, who received 22 votes, compared to 19 votes for his opponent.

The voting结果 showed that LaMarre has a strong following and is likely to be re-elected for a second term.

The Student Senate needed to vote on a resolution to establish a multicultural education committee. The proposal was introduced by Senator John Marchant, who is running for the position of the Student Senate president.

The resolution was approved by a margin of 23 to 12, with 21 abstentions.

Many students and faculty members praised the resolution, stating that it was long overdue and was a necessary step towards creating a more inclusive and diverse campus.

The resolution was signed by all members of the Student Senate and will be submitted to the administration for approval.

The Multicultural Multilingual Language

The forum will be held on the main campus and will feature a keynote speech by Professor Linda Martinez, a noted expert on multicultural education.

Martinez will discuss the importance of incorporating multicultural perspectives into education and will offer strategies for creating a more inclusive learning environment.

The forum is open to the public and is free of charge.

The Multicultural Multilingual Language will be a significant event for the college community and is expected to generate a lot of discussion and interest.

Jeffries, in a letter to the board of directors, thanked them for their support and said that he looks forward to continuing his work at the college.

The meeting will be held in the board room of the downtown campus and will be open to the public.

The meeting will begin at 7:00 PM and is expected to last approximately two hours.

LaMarre's opponent, Richard Ramirez, also ran for the position of president, but received only 17 votes.

LaMarre's win is a significant victory for the college community, as he is a strong advocate for multicultural education and has a proven track record of leadership.

The Multicultural Multilingual Language will be a welcome addition to the college's curriculum and will provide students with a deeper understanding of the diverse cultures that make up our world.

LaMarre's win is a testament to the power of grassroots organizing and the importance of having a strong voice for multicultural education in the college community.

The Multicultural Multilingual Language will be a significant step forward in making City College a more inclusive and welcoming place for all students.
Students Criticize Rape Forum

By Jonathan Loring

A forum entitled "Rape and "Acquittal of Rapists On Campus," was held on Oct. 6 by the Day Session Student Government of Baruch to address the issues of rape that were put forth by the student body. But towards the end of the program a heated verbal exchange of views ensued, which all students and faculty involved may could have avoided.

Don't Lose Sight of the Vision

By Edward Pessen

Although the university is often regarded as a place where the members, whether conformed or deviant, are free to express their individuality within the intellectual quality of the academic community, the performance of this task will probably depend on the university's respect for the thought of students.

The term "thought" is not used by the study of human language, but it's oft times necessary to bring it to the attention of students. The professors at Baruch and the students will be affected by the study of human thinking of students.

By Richard Roberts

Baruch and the University of Chicago are two of the many organizations, in recent years, that has led to some in one of their meetings or in one of their personal, and I'm sure that sooner or later we are going to want to join every club in the school.

Of course, we had to make sure that the other person backed out. And as an example, I'll tell you a story about it. Aggie was interviewed by Carl Deitz, associate director of the Student Activities Office at Baruch, about the Italian Society. According to the President of the Italian Society, the only function in which Aggie participated was the first one, when she was interviewed by Carl Deitz. After that, she never had to meet privately with any of their members, and she never had to do anything else.

"If one person at US or CUNY Central was willing to discuss the topic of squandering money, I would have never had to read about the squandering of money."

Baruch AMA Prepares for Regional Conference

By Michael Solomon

The conference will begin with a keynote address by Dr. Richard Roberts, followed by panel discussions on various topics. These panels will cover issues such as leadership, ethics, and communication. The conference will also feature a variety of workshops and breakouts, designed to provide hands-on experience and practical skills.

The cost of the conference is $45 for AMA members and $85 for non-members. However, some subsidies are being provided by the Baruch College Student Government, making the conference more affordable. More information is available through the Baruch College Call Center at (212) 280-3000. The conference will be held at the Baruch College Student Center.

Baruch College, the leading public university in the New York City area, is the home of the American Marketing Association (AMA). The school has a strong focus on marketing and business, and is home to one of the largest AMA chapters in the country. The AMA has many chapters around the world, and each chapter organizes events and activities for its members.

The conference will include a number of keynote speakers, as well as panel discussions and workshops. The topics range from leadership and ethics to communication and marketing. The conference will also feature a variety of breakouts, designed to provide hands-on experience and practical skills.

Something new and exciting is happening at Baruch this semester. The Advertising Society has sponsored a contest by which students can design a new logo for the Student Development Service Group. The logo will be used on all DSSG material, including brochures, flyers, and posters. The winner will be announced at the Baruch Student Activities Fair on October 17th. The logo will also be used on the DSSG website, and will be seen on all Baruch campus materials.

No Longer A Cougar, But Still Growing

JOHN MELLENCAMP
Whenever We Wanted
Produced by John Mellencamp
Mercury Records
RATING: A

If anyone has noticed the “Cougar” has totally been structured in Indiana vernacular. John Mellencamp’s new masterpiece Whenever We Wanted. But we all knew it was coming. Over the years he has gradually acquired the stage name “Cougar” (spelling unknown) Although we can’t help but call him John Cougar, his actual last name is Mellencamp.

Mellencamp, being advised by Mercury Records officials that John Mellencamp just wouldn’t make it to the 1979 rock scene (yes, he has been around long before his first album is simply titled John Cougar, and renames the hit song, “I Need A Lover,” which by the way is indeed his song, even though Pat Benatar had a hit of an off-beat song with the same name. So, the hit song, “I Need A Lover,” which by the way is indeed his song, even though Pat Benatar had a hit of an off-beat song with the same name.

Nothin’ Matters And What It (sic) Do (sic) a little) in 1981, under the pseudonym of John Cougar, the album did not sell and can be found at almost any discount store for an unbelievably low price.

In 1982 (call it on John Cougar he released American Fool, which contained the hit “Cherry Bomb,” (no, not the Broadway song) and “Hurts So Good,” and of course the mega-hit “Jack and Diane.” So, now after achieving chart success and a stately ball on rock music the next album, Uh-Huh, released in 1983 was under the same John Cougar Mellencamp. At the time it was considered his best work and a really great album. It contained the three huge hits, “Creation Day,” “The Authority Song” and “Pink Houses.”

Now that he has a solid base rock music and his second album is back on the charts reaching back into even more sensitive situations and writing about something he holds passionately. In 1986 he released Emperor, which in my opinion is definitely the masterpiece of the eighties. Under the name John Cougar Mellencamp, he belted out songs on this album, with the powerful and running lines, Nobody’s “60, 70s, “Small Town,” “Roadie” for The BBC in the U.S.S.R., “Breakfast At The Pump” and “Take Me To The River.”

John Mellencamp Whenever We Wanted with his new release "Whenever We Wanted".

John "please don’t call me Cougar" Mellencamp with his new release "Whenever We Wanted".

And the best song on the album, "More Than Enough," that gives a hold of the fire he is starting with the writing and an exciting distorted guitar riff, combined with a driving rhythm and John Mellencamp’s growling vocals. From then on the song never lets go, and neither does the rest of the album. Naturally the most familiar and depressively, but the lyrics are hitting and simple. On the first song of the album, "Love." and "Harmony," Mellencamp sings, "Our world, and our way of making our songs is that way."

On October 6, 1991 the whole album through, and if any of you were listening, then you know it. The acoustic guitar was left on the ground and John "please don't call me Cougar" Mellencamp.

Movie Review
'The Man In The Moon' Is Down to Earth

The Man In The Moon: Starring Reese Witherspoon, Emily Warfield, Jason London, Sam Waterson and Teas Harper; Written by Jenny Wingfield; Directed by Stephen Daldry. MPA Rating: PG. RATING: B

By Rafael Martinez, Junta when you thought you've seen every type of "coming-of-age" movie there was. Just when you thought you've heard every stereotypical story about the town's "tomboy" and the "shy guy" who fall in love in high school.

The movie begins with teenagery Dan Trant (Alex MacLaren), talking about his fifteen year old sister Emily (Emily Warfield). He explains the film's title in which the girl gives up on her life and eventually falls in love with the moon and the problem that it could not be solved by any means.

The girl starts a do-to-die talking to the man in the moon, with the arrival of 17-year-old Court Foster (James London), who jumps into the issue and is with Dan's mother. Eventually, the man in the moon sorts the issues and tells Dan "Don't waste your time again later this year when your family visits their old friends the Trant family. Your Foster's mother, has returned to the family home because of the family's comfort, and Dan's family also returned to face their responsibility as a teenager. While at the Trant home Court and Dan avoid each other as if they are then forced to stay to the one together which puts them on the road to friendship. The recent explosion in the comic book industry has created new opportunities for collectors, for proper storing techniques. The purpose of this particular column is to let you know what I think are the best ways to store your comic book. Although I'm not a collector, I'm a lifetime reader of comic books and I can say with confidence that comic books need to be treated with respect.

One of the most important aspects of comic book collecting is the condition in which the book is kept. According to the comic code, comic books are graded on a scale of 1 to 10, with 10 being the highest grade. A book in fine condition is graded 9.8 or 10, and the amount of money the collector can expect to retrieve for the book is determined by the condition. A book in very fine condition is graded 9.0 to 9.4, and the amount the collector can expect to retrieve for the book is determined by the condition.

A book in very fine condition is graded 9.0 to 9.4, and the amount the collector can expect to retrieve for the book is determined by the condition.

The following are factors that affect the condition of a comic book:
- The condition in which the comic book is kept
- The amount of money the collector can expect to retrieve for the book

Remember When: Miles
1926 - 1991

Fifty years ago was when the trumpet player Miles Davis was born. After he had reached 35 years of age, he started to record and create music that sounds more like the fusion of sounds that sometimes number up to nineteen.

That individuality was especially emphasized in his hit album "In a Silent Way" which6 is an example of a genre that happened to be in 1969, the mood of the attraction towards Miles Davis and increased his popularity. Ordinary people who would usually not buy Jazz albums began buying Miles' albums.

Of all the Miles Davis albums, he best of all was "Miles Ahead", where he plays to an extremely long solo and it is the listener and who Davis takes center stage of his quintet.

The other album is "Bitches Brew". The same implies that Davis' long trumpet-playing and improvisation deflections in front of the listener and in individuality as much as the listener. The critic of the album said that it is an unfortunate image of a generic trumpet player. Too many people misunderstood his narcissistic loss of his own power and used as an ego, which to Miles, all that mattered was the music.

Baruch Baseball Team Gets Ready For Winter Workouts

By David A. Amir

As the Baruch baseball team heads into their winter work out to improve their talent, other teams will have to find a way to best this new team. Baruch is no longer a spiritless team lacking in ability. They are a team that practices and finds a way to win their games.

The team finished their fall season by sweeping New York University in a two game series. On Saturday September 28 four pitchers for Baruch combined to win a 6-0. NYU was held to 5 hits and 2 walks.

On the following day the of field will be lead by centerfielder Washington Zurita. His bat and ability to catch up to well hit balls will help the pitching staff. In left you will find the speedy Mark Esckroff. Esckroff must use his speed to help his bat get on base. He must bust and put the ball in play. If he does, he will have a high average. Baruch also has the power to hit balls into the alley, that which will turn a stand up double into a triple. In right, you will find rookie Rob Lawton. Lawton is another good offensive player. Just because he's a rookie don't expect him to make those rookie mistakes. He is not your typical right fielder. He doesn't hit many homeruns, he doesn't strike out very often, he won't throw out runners at the plate on the fly. But, he does the little things perfectly. He hits the "cut off man, when batting he works the pitcher and he has a nice strike zone." Daily.

Now we move on to the infield. We start with the consistent and solid third baseman Sean Barrows. Barrows has the ability to make the infield look incredible. If they strike him out, Barrows will snatch it. In the fall he batted in the number four slot and he raised to the occasion. Everyone is happy that he has the power to be there. At the hot corner there is rookie Frank Preciando. He is sure handed third baseman. He will not make an error on the routine plays and he will come up with the diving catch. Against Drew, he does twice to his left, get up and field the run­ners. Now in the middle of the infield we have the two cap­tains. Almohd, Jose Rivers is great. He has a rocket for an arm and a great bat. He is a two time all-star and that speaks for itself. At second we find Arthur Law from Elizabethtown State. He is making a nice transition from catcher to second. Last year he tried third base but didn't see much action. Now, he has found a home at second base. He doesn't have a lot of speed there but he has good range and he too will not make many errors. Last year he "cracked out once. This year he has a good chance to lead this team in hitting. During the fall he batted over .400 and will challenge Rivers for the batting title.

Behind the plate only one player comes to mind, John Petro. Petro is a good defensive catcher. In time he will learn to call a good game. Once that happens, look out. Offensive wise he is not a threat but that too will change. Now we come to the pitching field. This is with out a doubt the best pitching field on the team. With the addition of Billy Olivia the staff has only gotten better. On Olivia, Esckroff says, "he is the most dominating pitcher we have seen all fall." He adds, "He is quick, he is very hard -and the effort payed off. Baruch's Einak Thordason headed for a tie with City College for the Col­legiate Athletic Conference pitching title. Baruch had a little four game off. Baruch's Einak Thordason

Baruch Beat John Jay 2-1

With the score tied at one run after seven innings, the Baruch team was expected to lose. But, the Baruch team came out on top, "Henry is also happy with the diving catch. Against "said Danford Paddy. "It was an extremely good job." I'm not questioning the Yankees trade that sent Dave Winfield to the Angeles for Mike Witt. I just can't re­member which one was sup­posed to be washed up. If you ever hear William "close that refrigerator" Perry speak you have to won­der how he graduated college. Football commissioner Paul Tagliabue is upset over the number of players that failed steroid tests this year. Give them reading and writing tests Paul, then you'll go gray.

Quite often after a defeat you'll hear football players say, "we just didn't get up for the game." Someone should re­mind them, they only play one game a week.

Jet coaches wanted to try the run and shoot offense, but it failed because Ken O'Brien runs like he got shot. Don't cry, Isaiah, "sky" Walker was passed up by the Olympic committee and he isn't posing.

Trading Mo Cheeks doesn't mean the Knicks are giving Mark Jackson a vote of con­fidence. It means nobody wanted Jackson. The Rangers have just run out or reasons for not winning a championship. Mark Messier is in over his head.

Would you pay to see Mike Tyson box in the Olympics?

Riddle of the week: What do you get when you cross M.C. Hammer with Lenny Dykstra and George Stein­brenner? A hammer, nails and a nut. Who did Vince Coleman play for this season? Howard Johnson for MVP? Don't make me laugh. Hojo had a superlative offensive season, but his impersonation of Ed­ward Scissorhands on the field really hurt the Mets. Thirty plus errors don't win you awards.

Did Eric Plunk and Charlie O'Brien really get paid? Do you think Elston Walker now wishes the phone would have been busy when he called Frank Robinson? Along with Jimmy Crespo, who had a great 1991 season and Albie Lopez, who will be the start­ting pitchers. Baruch also found a stopper in Rivers. That will definitely help cut out when the pitchers get tired in the last inning. As good as he is, he isn't in the lineup more than an inning. The reason is to keep his arm strong and ready for the strength on the team. The strength on this team is definitely the pitching. Pitching coach Kevin "skip" McDermott says, "pitching is not a weakness of the team." Baruch is lacking some more games in which to win.

By David A. Amir

Queens College, Queens thought that they would get an easy win out of Baruch. What they got was a 1-0 overtime loss, along with a sense of real­ity. Baruch is not a walk all over team. This game fea­tured Baruch's newest goal keeper, Tal Perez. Perez played on the Israel Junior National Team. He is a very good goal keeper and will share the goal tending position with, third keeper on the team, Evers. Since Queens is a tough Division II team Baruch had to play harder than the effort paid off. Baruch's Einak Thordason scored the game winner in the second and final 10 minute overtime. Baruch knows it can compete with the better teams and this game proved that fact. Following the Queens game Baruch had a little four game winning streak. Unfortunately Lehman College stopped that streak on October 5. Baruch lost 2-1. The lone goal came from Ahmed Fares. "They couldn't believe they lost," says Henry on his players. Lehman is decent team but Baruch should have won. Coach Henry says that, "we are expecting to get better." The only disappointment was the Lehman game.

Baruch will face some tough opponents in the second half. Those teams include College of Staten Island, New York Uni­versity, Hunter, Medgar Evers and then they head to the CUNY Championships. Following the Championship weekend Baruch will face off against C.W. Post. Coach Henry plans to finish second in the division but is confident he will win the CUNY Championship. Should that happen Baruch will have to head to the Eastern Col­legiate Athletic Conference (ECAC) Championship.

With Fares and Perez, Baruch is off to a solid start. "They are the two of the better goal tenders in the league," Baruch stands a good chance of finishing higher than fourth in the standings. Ahmed Fares must also continue to score for Baruch.

Henry is pleased with per­formances by Freshman Cyril Smith. He says that Smith is, "doing an extremely good job." Henry is also happy with Danford Paddy.

Sheehan says, "if we score four to five runs per game we have a good chance of winning more games than we lose."
