CUNY Attempts to Control Clubs' Spending Through New Guidelines

By Rafael A. Martinez

The Board of Trustees for the City University of New York have implemented new fiscal accountability guidelines affecting the way student organizations spend events and spend money.

According to Carl Aylman, director of Student Life, the changes to the CUNY bylaws, which affect student activities fees, were probably made in indirect response to the University Student Senate scandal, involving excessive spending and, the City College concert stampede, which caused nine deaths. In changing the bylaws, new fiscal guidelines had to be established.

"The director made the chancellor promulgative, under the bylaws, a new fiscal accountability handbook. The last such handbook came out in 1984 with the last revision in 1988 but has substantially changed since the 1984 edition," said Aylman.

The handbook contains the rules on how clubs and student organizations throughout the school spend money and set up events.

CUNY's office of Internal Audit issued a draft of the new fiscal accountability handbook in April and distributed it to all the colleges for comment. We were then told that we should bring all of our operations into compliance with the new guidelines, added Aylman.

"So over the summer Pam Mitchell, treasurer of the Student accounting services, and I started reviewing. We changed everything: signature cards, club registration cards, and new request vouchers, etc." said Aylman.

He added that the most significant change in procedure was the prior approval of purchases in excess of $250.

"In the past we only required prior approval of purchases over $1,500. CUNY guidelines reduced that to a much lower level so that there was a review procedure at a much earlier point in the process," said Aylman.

The key thing to all of this is that there is a desire and intent that better communications (between students, administration, and security) go on all over the college about events that are going on which is the reason for the prior approval process," added Aylman.

According to the fiscal guidelines, in order for the clubs to purchase anything between the $251 and $499 they must receive three verbal bids. In the $500 to $1,000 range they need five written bids. Anything above $1,000 needs the approval of the Associate Dean of Students and $10,000 and above requires a formal contract.

Anything above $1,000 needs the approval of the Associate Dean of Students and $10,000 and above requires a formal contract.

Simon Herelle, President of the Day Student Senate, said the new guidelines would put pressure on the clubs to find three vendors for bids on expenditures over $250. It would "increase paper work for four to five times what it is" and "would hope that the $250 guideline would evaporate into the system," added Herelle.

Despite Budget Cuts, Enrollment Hasn't Changed

By Kathryn Garcia

Enrollment for the Fall 1992 semester at Baruch increased by 2.5 percent in total new students, despite a tuition increase and a $4.5 million budget cut, which decreased the amount of available courses, adjuncts and administrators.

Of the 15,291 students attending Baruch, 3,316 of them are freshmen and transfer students, and compared to Fall 1991 figures, which makes it only a difference of 86 students.

According to Thomas P. McCarthy, director of enrollment services and senior Registrar, registration went well this year, until the last two weeks of freshmen registration.

"Freshmen had a more difficult time registering, because by the time they came to register the number of available sections were fewer in the School of Liberal Arts."

Overall, there are 200 fewer sections available this year than last year. But the lack of sections or the cuts in the sections were handled, conveyed McCarthy. "President Matthew Goldstein was able to make available some additional funding to add in sections," said McCarthy.

In addition several sections were doubled, class limits were raised and "jumbo sections," which include about 80 students in a class, were created. The Faculty Lounge on the 9th floor of 155 East 24 St. was turned into a classroom to handle the "jumbo" sections. McCarthy believes that the budget cuts were "very drastic" in terms of the decrease in administrators. "The number of students hasn't decreased but there are fewer people doing the same amount of work."

The Office of Admissions, Financial Aid and Registrar lost a total of nine people. And the Office of Career Services, which places Baruch graduates in the work-force, has been gradually cut in the last few years from a staff of 14 administrators and aids to less than six. "The result of this means that there is less staff for student counseling and less staff to organize the schedules and attend to the companies that come here to recruit," according to Richard Brody, Director of Career Services.

The increase of tuition has also brought an increase in the number of deferments, up by 20 percent, which according to McCarthy was "across the spectrum.

Mohua Makhopadhyay, freshman, says "I spent four and a half to five long and strenuous hours," registering. "Why prepare your schedule at home? I revised my schedule 3 times. I thought it would be less strenuous."

Linda Lim, also a freshman, describes registration as, "a pain in the ass." She says she spent "six long hours" in line only to change her schedule six different times.

CUNY Number

One in the Nation

The results of the 1992 Standard & Poors survey of 72,000 top executives are in, and CUNY comes out in the plus range of large and medium universities that have granted undergraduate degrees to alumni who have become corporate leaders. CUNY ranks in the No. 8 position in the survey, in 1992, displacing Yale University, which had been the leader since 1986. Corporate respondents in the S & P survey listed their position as president.

Greetings everyone, and welcome back to a new year of poor student services and overloaded classes. This year, more than ever, we need to take full advantage of the limited resources at our fingertips and, to the best of our ability, we will try to help those in need. We need to unite our voices and fight for a better Baruch, a Baruch where students have a say and a role in the decision-making process. To do this, we need to organize and mobilize our resources and talents. We need to work together to create a positive atmosphere and to fight against any cuts in staff for career counseling and admissions. These cuts will lead to longer waits for students who need to speak to a counselor, and it will make the process worse for everyone. Enrollment has increased by 25 percent in total new students while the college has lost $4.5 million in dues. The administration is making choices that will negatively impact the students, and we need to stand up against these decisions. Let's work together to improve our college and make it a place where we can thrive and succeed. Thank you.

choice is yours, so make sure to get a return on your money in the future. For example, when the government spends money it’s earned him the scorn of the Republicans/conservatives (a.k.a. right) who veered the party gone forever.”

For the 1992 presidential campaign, the moratorium that covers the Caplan Politically Moder­ate-als call that same candidate a rabidly anti-choice would ac­quire a whole new meaning and may prove to be a Women’s right to choose abortion is to eliminate the outrageously expensive and antiquated institutionalization of people with disabilities. It is a tough choice about a woman’s right to choose abortion, but the fact is that most of us, understanding that knowledge is power, as they monopolize knowledge to retain their power.

Abortion is no more a women’s issue than pregnancy and marriage. What woman gets harmed by abortion? What woman gets involved in ending her or his own pregnancy, her or his own life, her or his own future, her or his own friends, considering an abortion? She should not be left to decide by herself. Who would want it? With this right, the man has a corresponding responsibility— to be there for the woman, her and her husband, most importantly, her and her baby. By taking abortion as a women’s issue, men are needlessly involved.

Abortion is no more a women’s issue than pregnancy and marriage.

And, by the way, abortion is an “inexpensive freedom.” What really comes up with that idea?

"Public education focuses solely on the accomplishments of Caucasians..."

Once freed from the shackles of academic slavery, we must embrace the educational vision that is the classroom and do our own education. No one, who really wants to learn, must wake the secret to be able to analyze the information that is for sale. If it is a quack, the college professor, to bring back to the young gen­eration the skills that we have acquired in our studies. We can then build a foundation for the success of our own career and defend the success of the races. Only then can we be the future of the country and have a prosperous future.

"Public education focuses solely on the accomplishments of Caucasians..."

The Republicans and Demo­crats both agree it needs to be cut. "Pub­lic education is a women’s issue. It must undergo several hours of misleading teachings subcon­sciously draw the conclusion that they have never achieved anything in the past, then they have no reason to believe that they would do so in the future. Having been brutally tested, the academically slaves must undergo several hours of instruction in which different scientif­ic cells with which data that they simplify matters without truly understanding the na­ture of the cells and break the cellular data.

We must wake up and face the facts. Those in power are able to remain in their po­sition because they possess the knowledge and the mechanics of modern society. They under­stand the large picture drawn to them by the academically enslaved disciplines, while giving no pragmatic of the source of the money. They see that some of the mass and cut taxes on the middle class.

In order to choose among the two, one must know where the other stands on specific issues. But there are only a few issues that are really important. The Republicans and Demo­crats are similar in the North and South and all over the nation. We can try to make many of the things to all areas. It is even likely that both Democrat and Republican will be ide­ologically similar, more progressive or more regressive on other issues. The president’s role is to lead the inter­mediate Liberals and the Repub­licans into modernity. Republicans and Demo­crats will talk about the welfare system, respectability, the climb to modernity. Republicans only want the money to be spent on the poor. They want to be there for the woman, and not to leave her on her own. By labeling abortion a women’s issue, they monopolize knowledge to retain their power.

"Abortion is no more a women’s issue than pregnancy and marriage."

For the Republicans, abortion may be a major driving issue in the election even though the debate over the subject has been largely behind the political platform and in its proponents' minds. There are many pro-choice republ-can politicians willing to compromise. And if they aren't, we're told, Bush's chances of winning an issue like this are nil. Barbara Bush's name is not even mentioned.

The Democrats favor abortion, even if they differ on the issue. They believe everyone has a right to choose to have an abortion, even if it conflicts with their religious beliefs. They also believe it is a choice that should be made by women themselves. Modest changes in the law are possible, but they are not likely to occur in the dead of the election season. This last-ditch effort at legislation has been held in the hands of women who areheiresses to the nation. The party that solves this issue will be America.

Moving Up with Retail Trade

By Dahlia Nisancic

As the fall semester commences, the officers and members of the Retail Trade Society, having decided to offer interesting and educational speaker programs to the top executives in the Retail and Trade industry. Through the assistance of Bloomingdale's, Macy's, The Gap and Footlocker, also full time and part-time job opportunities in Retail and Trade, have been made available to students who qualify. Internships opportunities are also being negotiated with the above companies.

Retail Trade Society is by no means a social club. It has always been involved in somehow fashion shows beginning with the First Annual Fashion Show, "Back to Life" held at the Palladium, followed by the second, "Fashion Faux" the following Spring. This Fall, we will be presenting the third show, "Fashion Flair," at the Red Rose, and in most cases, will include some from the Lower East Side and Trafalgar next month.

We covered the highest ideas and goals in the executions and completion of our activities, projects and drives because we strive to go beyond our needs and proclivities in making our activities more meaningful, more rep- resentative of the community we serve and more enjoyable. Our chapter was able to learn to the student and the community the meaning of the society and its commitment to the students. This commitment was only fulfilled if our word was our accom-

"SNICKERS"
"BUFFY THE VAMPIRE SLAYER"

"Sneakers" Rated PG-13
Phil Alden Robinson, Director
120 Minutes.

"Sneakers" the new release from Universal Pictures, directed by Phil Alden Robinson ("Field of Dreams"). The movie stars Forest Whitaker, Whoopi Goldberg, Ben Kingsley, Denzel Washington and Mary McDonnell.

The film's plot is about a shady record producer (a group of high-tech security experts) who plays on Beverly Hills 90210. How- ever, his lack of rhythm and makes it seem like "work hard at cheerleading. Buffy the Vampire Slayer" is a return to the never ending cycle of movies about vampires, how they kill and how they are killed. Kristy "Buffy" Bishop (Buffy) is a valley girl who "likes" all the guys in town around with her friends. The "headbanger" and "cheerleader" and "hides their smiles" with her friends. The "cheerleader" and "heads their smiles" with her friends. The "cheerleader" and "heads their smiles" with her friends. The "cheerleader" and "heads their smiles" with her friends. The "cheerleader" and "heads their smiles" with her friends.

Even though, the movie is not set during any season, it feels like "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" is perfect as the vampire slayer. Her character is complex because it makes for a lack of rhythm and makes it seem like "work hard at cheerleading. Something Old, But Something Very New

By Roberta Baurum

This summer, we were blessed with hits from HOUSE OF PAINE'S "Jump Around" and MC HAMMER'S "U Can't Touch This" which has been resting on the top of radio charts. But what happens next? It's up to the movie studios to come up with another hit. Here's one that will definitely be in the running for "Big Trouble In Little China". The film's plot is about a shady record producer, who plays on Beverly Hills 90210. How- ever, his lack of rhythm and makes it seem like "work hard at cheerleading.
