Baruch Salutes Great Women In History

By Frank Mongbe
Staff Writer

At the close of Women's History Month, the women of Baruch, led by Luz Rodriguez and Allison Lee, capped March with a discussion of women's health issues and an awards ceremony. Lee, a speaker from the Women of Color Network, discussed what she thinks the nine issues women should be aware of are.

"We still have control over our destiny, our lives," said Lee who stressed the need for women to take control of their health. "Everything was done for the man."

In recent years, there has been a lot of research on women's health issues.

"Breast cancer is the first disease we worry about," said Lee, who implored women to have mammograms done to check for lumps. An early detection of cancerous cells can give a fighting chance, Lee stressed. She said that half of women cancer-sufferers in America die of cancer.

Lee also noted that people who do not have children and those who have had children after reaching 30, have a higher chance of getting cancer.

According to the American Cancer Society, the risk of cancer can be reduced by having a proper diet. A booklet of the 10 dietary nutrients for prevention of cancer were given to the audience members. These nutrients included fish, seed, olive, soy, wheat germ and tomato.

Other issues discussed were heart disease and osteoporosis.

Lee said that heart-disease is mostly a result of eating too much fat. Osteoporosis is also a disease that mostly affects women over 30. It is caused by the lack of calcium, which in turn causes holes in your bones. A way to prevent it is to exercise and take

Hundreds Gather In Park to Vent Anger Against NYPD

Police. Taking No Chances, Cordon Off Union Square

By Macolville Jean-Francois

Hundreds of high school and college students crowded into the south-east section of Union Square Park last Wednesday to rally against police brutality. In response to a call to action by the Student Liberation Action Movement at Hunter College, the students, joined by parents, teachers and others concerned, came to voice their feelings about the killing of Black, Latino and other youths of color in New York City.

"It's my people that are being killed," said April Banks, a Baruch College senior. "I should be here. I could be next."

Undergraduate Student Government Vice President Braulio Medina concurred. "This calls to me from the essence," said Medina. "Some people have not realized what's truly important," continued Medina in speculation of some students' reasons for not attending.

Fears of police harassment, beatings and killings have propelled some of the city's young people to take action. Since the Amadou Diallo verdict was announced on Feb. 25, others have died at the hands of police. Among them are Malcolm Ferguson and Patrick Dormond. Only five days prior to the rally, police had killed two youths in Brooklyn. According to a SLAM press release, April 5 marks the 41st day since that verdict.

I'm outraged because of the way the police are treating us," said Jessica Lowman, a 17-year-old high school senior at Brooklyn College Academy. "I'm not a target and they need to recognize that.

The rally's cultural tone was apparent as speakers and performers shared their thoughts. Instead of having high-profile community activists as speakers, the organizers left it to the young people from such high schools as Institute of Collaborative Education to run the show. The pro-

Dating and sex is important in our daily lives. Sex is essential for procreation. Rabbi Shmuley Botzach is an acclaimed and well-known author. He has eleven books out on the market. His bestsellers include Kosher Sex, Dating Secrets of the Ten Commandments and Jewish Guide to Adultery.

Botzach was nice enough to come to Baruch college and shed some light on this topic. According to Botzach, all dating intentions fall into three categories: sex and sexual pleasure, fun and enjoyment and marriage and a family. "He took something that is very serious, and explained it objectively," said Dimetry, a student who attended. "I agreed with most of the things."

Many people today date as a game and some people take it more seriously. "It's almost like Cruel Intentions for some and for others it's very serious," said Dimetry. Some probably would not think that dating could be so complicated but after analyzing several relationships with Baruch students, the dysfunctionality of relationships was made

Skylight Lounge Provides Venue for Lecture on Race, History And Engenderment of Harlem Renaissance

By Hasani Gittens
Op-Ed Editor

The Harlem Renaissance, the period of high society and intellectualism in uptown Manhattan from post World War I to the Great Depression, or, arguably, even up to World War II, was a defining moment in Black American life and has most always been thought about in terms of race rather than gender. The noun, however, is one of its own defining terms: "the New Negro," coined, or at least popularized, by Alain Locke -- comes from the Spanish for "black" in the masculine sense. Professor Cheryl A. Wall, chairwoman of the Department of English at Rutgers University, and author of Women of the Harlem Renaissance, graced the Skylight Lounge of Baruch's 23rd Street Building to speak on the feminine aspect of the era.

The room, a small side-wing on the third floor of one of Baruch's oldest buildings, at 17 Lexington Avenue was about more than half full to the optimizer. The gathered crowd was mostly of students from Professor Tuzyline Allan's Eng 3950 "Harlem Renaissance" class, for whom mainly the lecture was given. There were also a handful of other students and teachers, mostly from the English department.

The topic of the lecture was Engendering the Harlem Renaissance. She began with a treatment of

Independent Filmmaking

Profile of an Independent Film Producer

By Germania Vasquez
Features Editor

The telephone rings. Films and papers are all over the floor of the small office of Killer Films in Noho, East Village. Meanwhile, Katie Roumel, a producer, sits upstairs in her designated office space, scrutinizing her head and rubbing her eyes, while waiting for one more phone call. She has been working on this film for two months and is already making plans for work during the weekend. "Do you want me to get to the office?" she asks, reaching for a sheet of paper and someone in the office. "It's a thin line." She is still willing to go out and work on another project despite of her tiring return from the Orient in a few weeks.

This Rhinehold native came to New York City for the first time after obtaining her bachelor's degree in Women Studies with a minor in German Film Criticism from the College of William and Mary. In 1992, looking for a good job, as so many other women, she decided to go to Killer Films. "The world of film-making is frightening," she says. "Everyone produces films. They produce a film, and then they are doing something else."

As a result, taking on this opportunity came handy. Now, Roumel is Head of Production in the company. "It is a lot of hard work, a lot of hard work," she says, "but it is a lot of fun."

Identifying the project, she is busy re-equipping the two producing companies with enough money to start a film. With much energy input, she often makes plans for work in advance. It is also part of her office. "I am shooting Kiss Me Guido," right before and after, and I am watching. "I was watching the director around a lot of people, and it was a lot of fun."

Philosophy Corner

Are We Controlled By Our Universe Or Are We Free-Willed?

By Joseph Mambrummer
Senior Staff Writer

The New York Times Magazine recently published an interesting article called "Why Make Sex Difficult?". Before reading off the list of philosophy, here is a little lessons in genetics that we can analyze ourselves. We may not be able to change their destiny, but we are certainly capable of the two produced previously.

"Women have pairs of chromosomes called "XX," while men have pairs called "X'Y." In the beginning, the embryo would actually become female. If the embryo female, the embryo would actually become female. If the embryo male, the embryo would actually become male. It is still willing to go out and work on another project despite of her tiring return from the Orient in a few weeks.

In addition, according to Roumel, "If the budget is too low, that affects the time span of the shooting. The lower the budget, the less time we spend on this project."

"There are several ways to produce a film. One way is getting the right people. You get a script, you get a writer, you get a director, you get a producer. You can also be the producer." The producer can also be the writer, the director, and the actor. "In the independent world, it usually

Dad's father, Miguel Gonzales, returned home to Cuba from the States with his family in 1959. It was a hard time. The family lived for a little while in the Brooklyn Housing Project, and they had to work full time to make ends meet. He was a hard worker. One of the hard parts was that, up until that point, he had not attended high school. This is a picture of Miguel Gonzales, with his family in the United States. He was a Cuban who came to the United States with his wife and children, looking for a better life. He worked hard, and he made sure his children had the best education possible. A Measurment of Gratitude from the Office of Student Life
To the Baruch Community,

Now that we are certain that a Health Center that will be here a few weeks from the beginning of the college has found a site, it is time to think about the student health in the future.

Many community members within the Baruch student body have been hospitalized or treated in clinics in the area. In some cases, students have had to go to the hospital for minor injuries or illnesses, but in other cases, they have had to go to the emergency room after being treated by a police officer.

The student body has been very active and involved in the community. This is a reflection of the high level of student participation in Baruch. The level of student participation in Baruch appears to be hovering near the average.

According to the Baruch College Enrollment Management Office, the average participation in Baruch appears to be hovering near the average. As I stood, silent and proud, carrying my red, white and blue, I had committed no crime other than fighting for freedom than live in slavery. I am ready to die for what I believe in. Are you?

The 32 years after the assassination of Martin Luther King, we had not yet achieved the dream of equality. It was a day to remember and to honor the memory of those who had lost their lives in the struggle for freedom.

The rally was held at Union Square, where I was standing and the turnstile, this place was not far enough away from the battle. I could hear the sounds of the fighting, the screams of the wounded, and the cries of the dying. I could see the bodies of those who had fallen, and I could feel the heat of the battle. Partnership Between NBC And WWF Boost Stock Price

By Jon Minners

NBC will take a minority stake in the WWF for $131, which amounts to a 10% investment and 2% of the company. Earlier, McMahon announced plans with The New York Times to invest $25 million in the WWF. This investment came in addition to the NBC deal that is expected to take place in the near future.

Late last year when the World Wrestling Federation went public, shares of shares jumped by 50% to $25. A decade from the beginning of the World Wrestling Federation, some industry analysts believe that McMahon has turned the company into a force to be reckoned with.

McMahon, who has been building his wrestling empire for nearly 20 years, is now looking to expand his empire further by entering the world of entertainment. WWF Entertainment (WWE) stock rose to a new high earlier this year when shares started to drop to less than $10 a share. The company's stock price has since risen to over $25, reflecting the success of its recent ventures into the music and entertainment industries.

Ron Ziegler, an analyst with Ziegler Capital Management, said that the investment in WWE represents the company's commitment to expanding beyond its traditional wrestling business. He added that the investment is also a reflection of the company's ability to generate revenue from different sources.

McMahon, who is known for his innovative approach to marketing and promotion, is expected to continue to drive the company's growth in the coming years. With the addition of the WWE stock to its portfolio, NBC is expected to see a significant increase in its overall value.

Monday Night Football in 17 sports of head-to-head competition among young adult males, ages 12 to 24, by 43 percent.

NBC is in the business of appealing to younger viewers, and this is a great opportunity to attract even more young adult males to the network. NBC, whose President Scott Panetta said it had miscalculated their audience when they first introduced their new Sunday night football program, is now seeing its audience grow.

“In addition to this, WWF personalities have been extremely visible in the mainstream media. Duane Johnson’s (better known as The Rock) appearance on Saturday Night Live has increased the WWF's visibility among young radio viewers. And both The Rock and Mick Foley (a.k.a. Macho Man) took their live tours to the top of the New York Times best-seller list. Such mainstream popularity has made the WWF a good bet for a variety of licensing opportunities,” he said.

“Despite these changes, entertainment values will continue to be driven by video games in the Internet media. DOW and Yahoo! are just two of the companies who have been active in the entertainment industry.”

The XFL is planning to return this year, and is expected to be bigger and better than ever. The league is looking to attract more young adult males to its programming, and has already seen an increase in its viewership.

In addition to this, WWF personalities have been extremely visible in the mainstream media. Duane Johnson’s (better known as The Rock) appearance on Saturday Night Live has increased the WWF's visibility among young radio viewers.

An NFL deal with CBS to take over the XFL and broadcast it to CBS channels caused music videos to jump up to $15 a share. Only a few of 24 music video cable networks deal with the XFL, making NBC's strong network presence a key to promoting the XFL.

At the end of 1999, NBC and the WWF announced a joint venture to produce programming for the XFL. The venture, which is expected to generate $1 billion in revenue for NBC, is a testament to the growing popularity of the XFL.

“If this continues, we're going to see a lot more young adult males tuning in to the XFL.”

Keynote Speaker: Joan Almedilla

Joan Almedilla is a young adult and a dedicated Catholic. Joan was born and raised in Cebu City, Philippines. She is a professional singer and actress who has played Kim in the Broadway production of Miss Saigon. Currently, Joan is performing the role of Fantine in the National Tour of Les Misérables. Her other credits include several solo albums and student films. In addition, Joan has performed in various benefits for AIDS and breast cancer victims. As a committed woman of faith, Joan has creatively embraced God as an integral part of her personal and professional life.

Life is always changing, especially for young adults. Our lives are in constant motion, facing many daily joys and challenges with family, friends, relationships, careers, and faith. As we journey on life’s winding road, we find some of our steps as slow and steady as a waltz, while other steps are as quick and varying as a swing dance. When we embrace Christ as our Partner in this dance of life, we find His joy and peace, which strengthens and nourishes us. Come join us on Saturday, April 29, 2000, as we celebrate our young adult experience and our faith in the Lord of the Dance.

Volleyball Season Ends

By Kenyatta Piao

At the beginning of the season, vintage player and leader Eric Frikok went down in an injury and had not missed his last match for the season. This was a major setback and perhaps the start of the 10-3 season that has just ended.

The more played poorly throughout the season and the team barely managed to avert the CUNY volleyball tournament at the eighth seed. This ensured that the team would have to play against the best in the league in CUNY. The tournament was 21-3 in CUNY and 20-20 with a winning percentage of 101 overall for the season and had a losing streak of three going into the tournament.

In a game missing the Statoresult last in games in Hunter 15-3, 15-10 and 15-9. When questioned, sophomore Chris Waldmann said, "I am just glad for the six players that stuck through all the adversity this season. It's tough to bear!" We play the XFL to get ratings. I guess if I were to commentate, I would write about wrestling in his columns. He downplayed his role model. He wanted a good team, but none of its players can do the circumstances. Added Waldmann, "Against CUNY, the effect was there despite the margin. I am looking forward to next year as we expect to see a much better team next year!"

Hey ya! Only a few more commentaries left, so I am going to make ours our last. Check this out. Baruch finishes first is the promise. I gain all those commentaries where I demanded a permanent president. I won't say anything bad about the president, but he should be doing his job and not being the president. Who do you think is the president of Baruch?

So, I'm watching Westworld 2000, and our hero John Brown is doing the same thing he did in the last show. He wants to, but he knows he can't. The president is going to do whatever he wants, and he's going to make sure that he gets what he wants. He has been doing this for a long time now. How does it feel to watch a show about something that is happening right now?

It's amazing how little space has been given since being sentenced for life after gambling on his political career. I mean, the guy is a gambling addict. I mean, he's been doing it for a long time. He's doing it again. He's been doing it for a long time. He's doing it again. The president is going to do whatever he wants, and he's going to make sure that he gets what he wants. He has been doing this for a long time now. How does it feel to watch a show about something that is happening right now?

It's amazing how little space has been given since being sentenced for life after gambling on his political career. I mean, the guy is a gambling addict. I mean, he's been doing it for a long time. He's doing it again. He's been doing it for a long time. He's doing it again. The president is going to do whatever he wants, and he's going to make sure that he gets what he wants. WHO’S THE BEST MC: BIGGIE OR CAGE?

By Jon Minners

Once you stood at the crossroads of life, standing about death. Death seems to be synonymous with Bonzai Thugs-N-Harmony. They have a clear level of agression. They are theWar on Drugs. They are the people who are taking the life out of us. Everyone wants to mimic their flow and rations was bad enough, but now we have rap- ing like Ice-T and BTNH glorifying the use of ecstasy. This is not right, and it sounds strange to a group of rappers who want to change the world around and corrupt it.

Still, forgetting about social issues, I found Eminem to be very catchy, almost addictive, so I speak. The words, as always, were fine and meaningful, but it was about drugs. If you listen to the words, you may not want to take the substance anymore. Even though they are saying how good it is, what they say it makes them do is also a turnoff.

No matter what they rap about, everything flows smoothly. The words are admirable, perhaps, making you want to sing along even if you can’t ever hope to keep up with them. The beats intertwine well with the words, making for complete songs that simply kick ass.

My favorite song right now is The Righteous Ones, which features David’s Daughters. This song is extremely catchy. I am an even bigger sucker for the old-school gangsta rap.

Another song that had it going for it was Too Cool. If you listen to the words, you can’t help but say hell yeah, if you think you can relate. The beat, I think, is a word and a half.

Bone Thugs-N-Harmony Get Resurrected

By Jon Minners

One of the most famous rap groups of all time is Backstreet Boys. Their hits include “I Want It That Way” and “I'm a Slave 4 You.”

Backstreet Boys have been around for a while, but their recent album, “In a World Like This,” has injected a new lease of life into their career. The album features 12 tracks, all of which showcase the group’s signature sound.

The album opens with the lead single, “I Want It That Way.” The song is a catchy pop-rock number that features the group’s signature harmonies. The lyrics are about love and relationships, which is a common theme in their music.

The second single, “I’m a Slave 4 You,” is a more up-tempo number that features the group’s signature four-part harmonies. The lyrics are about a man who is in love with a woman and is willing to do anything to make her happy.

Other tracks on the album include “Larger Than Life,” “I’ll Never Stop,” and “In a World Like This.” These tracks continue to showcase the group’s signature sound and have catchy hooks and朗朗上口的旋律。

Overall, “In a World Like This” is a great album that shows the group’s continued growth and evolution as artists. It’s a must-listen for any Backstreet Boys fan.

The greatest video game on the planet, according to the folks from GameSpot, is NHL: Rock the Rink. This is a game that combines hockey with wrestling, like you've never seen before. It's full of action, and the gameplay is amazing.

The game is very similar to Resident Evil in that you play as a member of the NHL team, and you have to make your way through the players to score a goal. The gameplay is fast-paced and difficult, and you have to use your skills to survive.

The graphics in this game are amazing. The hockey is smooth and realistic, and the wrestling moves are hilarious. The sound effects are also great, and you can hear the crowd cheering as you make your way through the players.

This game is a must-play for any hockey or wrestling fan. It's an addiction, and I was as addicted to it as Bush Jr. was to cocaine. It's a great game, and I highly recommend it to all of you.

Rock the Rink Rocks the Playstation

I have been on a kick of hockey games lately, and I think I have played just about every hockey game out there. But there is one game that I keep coming back to, and that is NHL: Rock the Rink.

This game is a lot of fun, and it's not just because of the hockey. It's also because of the wrestling. You can do all sorts of wrestling moves on the ice, which is definitely a first for me. But the hockey is also really good. The graphics are great, and the gameplay is smooth.

I have played this game a lot, and I have enjoyed it every time. It's a game that I can play for hours on end, and I never get tired of it. I highly recommend it to anyone who is a fan of hockey or wrestling.

In the past, I have been very down on games with skateboards in them. Anyone remember how much I hated the first Tony Hawk game? It was terrible. But then I played Tony Hawk's Pro Skater 2, and I was immediately hooked. It was so much fun.

So, what is my gripe with these games? I think they are not very exciting, and the gameplay is not very good. But then I played Tony Hawk's Pro Skater 4, and I was hooked again. The graphics are great, and the gameplay is smooth.

I would recommend this game to anyone who is a fan of skateboarding or video games. It's a great game, and I highly recommend it.
John Cusack’s High Fidelity:

By Jon Minners

Remembering the Good with the Bad

Story of a relationship, but the characters seem to lose their music. The love for the band is there, but it is just a little too much for the story. The main character, John Cusack, knows songs better than he knows his own phone number. They make references to the top songs of the movie, but it is not very clear. The movie is slow and kind of sad in a way. Also, it is a little too long.

Cusack is cast as the role of the guy who has left his girlfriend. He is a funny guy and he seems to lose his music. He is with a co-star, Iben Hjejle, in the movie.

Son of More Music
Corgan, a Poetic Genius

As you enter, you feel like you are taking a walk into a past era. Either you go out with a bang or you go out with a whimper. The Smashing Pumpkins went out with a whimper. In what many have hailed as the Smashing Pumpkins' last CD, Billy Corgan and his bandmates have come up with a pretty depressing CD.

Come on in and bring this flyer to avoid getting booted. The Smashing Pumpkins' last CD is called Machina/The Machines of God. It's a pretty depressing CD. Now, while I said they went out with a whimper, I didn't mean it as a bad thing. I liked this CD, because every track seemed more depressing than the last. I guess Corgan is really thinking about leaving and it's very melancholy. About it, I like depressing music and no matter what Corgan sings, his voice seems to have a fascination of an everlasting God.
